MISS PARTRIDGE DEAD.

10/14
Succumbs After Long Illness, Taught in Public Schools over Forty Years. Dec 5 1914

On Saturday afternoon Miss Maggie Partridge died at the family home. She had been ill for several months and was surrounded by her immediate family when the final summons came to her. Miss Partridge was a daughter of John and Mary Regan Partridge, early residents of Eagle. She was born on the Partridge homestead, now known as the Colyer estate, on Dec. 19, 1854. She attended the common schools and when she attained her majority engaged in teaching, a vocation which she followed during her life time and which covered a period of over forty years. At Eagleville, her home district, she taught twelve years and many of the school registers in this township, Mukwonago and Genesee, have her name recorded as teacher. For a time she also taught school in Illinois.

She was an able and painstaking teacher, loved by her pupils and admired by the community in general. It would be difficult for us to enumerate the many of her early pupils who have attained high positions in the business and social world.

The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Leibler of White-water, an Episcopal minister, officiating. Interment was in Oak Ridge cemetery. The large attendance evidenced the respect in which she was held in the community in which she was born and reared and in which she passed her whole life. She leaves surviving her two brothers, J. M. and F. B. Partridge, and four sisters, Mrs. Eugene Watrous, Mrs. Anna McCarthy and the Misses Dora and Edna Partridge, all of whom, excepting Mrs. McCarthy, reside at Eagle. We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family in the loss they have sustained by the death of their beloved sister.
