SUICIDE OF GEORGE I. EMERY

Long Time Resident of Town of Oconomowoc Hangs and Shoots Self

George I. Emery, 65 years of age, a well known farmer of the town of Oconomowoc, was found dead last Saturday in a barn on his farm. A son found the body, which was hanging from a rafter over a large hay mow.

The coroner, John Schaeffel, was notified of the suicide and at once proceeded to the Emery farm, where he arrived about 3 o'clock p. m. He at once inspected the body and made a careful investigation of the surroundings, which brought to light the fact that there were three wounds on the body, one in the breast and two in the temple. This prompted further investigation and it resulted in finding a 22 calibre revolver in the hay and three empty cartridges. Dr. M. R. Wilkinson accompanied Coroner Schaeffel and took part in the investigation.

The circumstances surrounding the sad affair led the coroner to believe that a further inquiry into the case was desirable and a coroner's jury was summoned to meet on Tuesday, April 15, at 10:30 o'clock a. m. The City hall, Oconomowoc, was fixed upon as the place for hearing evidence.

At the Inquest

The jury returned a verdict of hanging while mentally deranged.

The deceased leaves surviving him his wife, three sons and five daughters. Mr. Emery was frequently chosen to local offices in the town of Oconomowoc and several times served as a member of the county board of supervisors. He was a Republican in politics, and was also a devoted member of the fraternity of Odd Fellows and other organizations. He had the respect of neighbors and many friends sincerely mourn his tragic end.

PROBATE MATTERS DISPOSED OF

A number of probate matters were disposed of by Judge David W. Agnew at a special term of the County court Tuesday. The wills were admitted to probate in the estates of Christian F. Freidenberg, Eliza Johnson, Mary Morris and Curtis J. Shaver and the estate of Henry Schultz was adjourned to May 5. Final accounts were settled and inheritance taxes assessed in the estates of D. McL. Miller and Hannah J. Boyle. The final account was settled in the estate of Thomas Butler, while in the estate of Mary Jane Cooling the hearing on final account was adjourned from day to day, as was the hearing on petition for administration in the estate of Anna Kearney. A guardian was appointed for Mary Treptow, insane, and administration was granted in the estate of August Treptow. In the estate of Fredericka Diehl objections were filed to several claims and the hearing on the same set for April 25. A special term will be held April 22, when two matters will be heard, petition for probate in the estate of John G. Laing, and petition for administration in the estate of Carl Schultz.

CLARK MANN IS GETTING BETTER

Clark Mann is getting better. His physician, Dr. G. S. Love, thinks he will get well. Since the boy's injuries were of a terrible nature, The Freeman representative asked if his recovery was not unusual. "Unusual," echoed the doctor, "unheard of. I have never known of such a case and have not found anyone else who ever did. There is nothing left on that side of the boy except his ribs." Clark is 15 years old. His arm and shoulder blade were torn from his body when his clothing caught in the revolving shaft of a gasoline engine. He is son of Sam Mann of the town of Waukesha.

AND YET ANOTHER SUICIDE

Frank Klinger Hung Himself in a Dairy Barn Last Thursday

The discovery, by his son, of his father hanging lifeless in the dairy barn at his home in the town of Menomonee on April 10, caused a great shock to his family and friends. Frank Klinger died by his own hand and without the least sign of any mental derangement up to the time of the deed. Thursday morning he arose as usual and had breakfast with his family. His son hitched the team to a rig to take the little folks to the country school. After the son had gone Mr. Klinger went to the barn to do some work. His wife intended to go with him to feed the chickens. He urged her not to do so, saying that it was raining and he would take care of the poultry. He left the house and the wife, busy with her home duties, did not think anything of his absence and not until the son returned was it known that the father had committed suicide.

Mr. Klinger was ill some time ago, but had apparently recovered. He was a man of retiring disposition; his family life was ideal and he was on good terms with all his neighbors. No reason has been advanced for the rash act except that he had been downcast because of the loss of some money. He had mentioned this several times to his family, but they had always urged him not to think of it.

Deceased was 58 years of age. He had held several places of trust and was clerk of the school district for a number of years. He is survived by his wife and four children.

Coroner John Schaeffel was notified and after a careful inquiry decided the circumstances surrounding the death did not call for the summoning of a jury.

NOW FOR FLOWERS AND VEGETABLES

Congressman Hal. Therefore, any who wish to make use of them can obtain a supply by calling and making their wishes known. First come, first served as long as the supply lasts. These seeds are distributed free.

COLLEGE SOLD OUT OF SEED POTATOES

No more seed potatoes can be supplied to Wisconsin farmers by the College of Agriculture this spring, the supply being completely exhausted, according to the report issued by Prof. J. G. Milward.

A few weeks ago the college, through the horticultural department, offered to distribute seed potatoes in lots of two bushels or less at practically cost prices. The application for this seed was so immediate that the department was sold out almost at once. Thus no more orders can be accepted.

The distribution of this high class seed through the potato growing sections of Wisconsin should help to standardize varieties in this state and make possible more shipments than ever of potato seed in carload lots to other sections of the country.

SYSTEM IN QUESTION

Contemplated Changes in Rural School Conditions

OHIO FOLLOWS WISCONSIN

Recent Reports Show Wide Divergence of Opinion as to Condition of the Schools

Madison, April 15.—A person prominently connected with the school investigation of the board of public affairs, in response to a request from a local newspaper man, issued the following statement:

The report of the board of public affairs on rural schools has placed Wisconsin in the forefront of the movement for a reorganization of our educational system. Ohio has followed the lead of Wisconsin and one of the Wisconsin investigators is in charge of the Ohio survey. Missouri and Texas are following close upon Ohio. Thirty-four states in the union are now considering following Wisconsin's lead. The progressive movement has reached education, and Wisconsin is in the front.

The board of public affairs' report presents in vivid concrete form the facts about the rural schools of Wisconsin. The United States bureau of education in a bulletin by A. C. Manahan, just issued, says that these conditions exist everywhere in the United States. The county superintendents of Wisconsin attack the report and charge in a general way that the work of this committee shows their unfamiliarity with country schools and country school conditions.

If the report of the board of public affairs is untrue, then Superintendent Cary's statements in his last biennial report are wholly untrue, then Inspector Laisen's statements in the same report are untrue; then the findings of the committee of fifteen are untrue; then the statements of the citizens of Wisconsin to the committee of fifteen are false. The statements of these various authorities regarding rural schools in parallel columns are contained in a folder prepared by the board of public affairs, which may be had for the asking. The only difference between the other authorities and the board of public affairs is that the board has presented the facts more concretely and more vividly, and sent its findings broadcast over the state so that the citizens would know the conditions of the rural schools of the state. It has been felt that as soon as the facts were known the aroused citizens of Wisconsin would support remedial legislation.

The county superintendents met in Madison. All the facts relating to the report and the men making it were at their disposal by calling at the board of public affairs. The truth could be had for the asking. But no one came. What statements contained in the report do the county superintendents assail? What criticisms upon the supervision of the rural schools do they deny? What facts do they controvert? Not one. Let us assail the persons who made the report, they resolve. An old and sometimes effective answer, when facts cannot be effective, is to assail the persons who made the report. The county superintendents expect to find some people who can be taken in by the old mud-slinging methods. What are their answers to the criticisms of the report?

The three introductory resolutions contain the customary pious phrases of willingness of being investigated and frankly facing school problems. But send us investigators of national reputation as educators, they pray.

In the fourth resolution the first valiant blow is struck. The head of the investigating committee and the expert accountant who investigated the accounting methods and who is presumably referred to under the title "assistant statistician", have been conveniently shoved aside as "expert accountants". The other members of the committee have the following qualifications:

- (1) They are young in the business of education;
- (2) They are novices in this sort of investigation;
- (3) They are students in the bureau of research on their first piece of practice work.

Where did the county superintendents get hold of this information which they so insinuatingly claim "should be borne in mind"?

Messrs. Farmer and Brittain were responsible for the description of rural school conditions. Twenty-five years of teaching in the schools of Minnesota ought to take Mr. Farmer out of the amateur class. His experience includes four years teaching in rural schools and twenty years of vital contact with the problems of rural schools because of his work as institute conductor, director of teachers' training schools, instructor in state normal and university summer schools for teachers, and as special lecturer before county school board conventions. Mr. Brittain studied under Dr. G. Stanley Hall at Clark university and received the degree of Ph. D. from that university. He has had an experience of twenty years in the business of education, covering all grades of schools from a teacher in the rural schools to a city superintendent of schools.

Three men doing graduate work in the department of education, University of Wisconsin, and now holding important educational positions, assisted in the investigation of schools in two counties reported on. These are the men "young in the business of education". The county superintendents knew the essentials of these facts when they voted upon the resolutions.

(2) Before coming to Wisconsin, the head of the investigating committee had spent five years with the bureau of municipal research in doing exactly the kind of work that is involved in this investigation, namely, the measuring of the efficiency of supervising and administrative methods. He is responsible for the collection, analysis and presentation of the data relating to the offices of the state and county superintendents.

been reviewed and scrutinized by the director of the training school for public service, Dr. William H. Allen, a man recognized to have some of that national reputation as an educator that the county superintendents stipulate as necessary for the understanding of their work.

(3) This insinuation of "students on their first piece of practice work" is a neat way of hiding lies behind plausible truths. The committee hedges behind "if we are properly informed". If the committee had not been in such a hurry to gather its information it might have gotten it straight that the "training school for public service" has no "students" in the sense the committee tries to use this word and that that organization engaged Messrs. Farmer and Brittain to undertake this work at salaries that no county superintendents and few school men in this state enjoy.

Resolution 5. The report states that a general examination was made in twenty-seven counties and a detailed investigation in 131 schools in thirteen counties. Many schools, not included in the 131 reported on, were visited and it is very probable that counties were seen "between trains". But it is a misstatement to say that any such county is included in the number reported on as investigated.

(a) "The most thorough investigation made was in relation to financial affairs; particularly in three centers in the north, namely, in the region where the township system was just going out of existence through a change in the law."

This whole paragraph is untrue. School accounts in ten counties were examined by the accountants. No one but the county superintendents would emphasize this phase of the work as most thorough.

(b) "In a majority of cases where the reader of this report would be led to believe that deductions have been drawn from numerous and typical cases, the instances cited in the report were not deductions whatsoever, but extreme instances of their kind."

This is an arrant lie. The report states exactly the number of schools in which a certain condition was found. It makes no deductions; it states facts. (For example, p. 40.):

- (a) Out of 131 schools—
- (1) 17 were not visited during the year by either the state inspector or the county superintendent;
- (2) 66 were visited once by the county superintendent;
- (3) 30 were visited twice by the county superintendent;
- (4) 8 were visited by the state rural school inspector;
- (5) from 18 the information was not available;
- (b) In one school the records show that there has been no visit by the county superintendent in six years. The teacher, who had served in this school for two years, stated that during her incumbency the county superintendent had not visited the school. Not a pupil had ever seen the county superintendent in the school. In the same county, out of ten schools inspected, only two had been visited by the county superintendent during the school year.

Resolution 6. Having qualified their competency in the manner shown, the county superintendents then pronounce judgment, not judgment as to the facts, because these they carefully eschew, but of educational qualifications and personal efficiency of the individuals employed. Listen to some other judgments of the report. A. E. Winship, in an editorial under the title "A Notable Achievement", in the National Journal of Education, says: "This investigation has been so complete, so adequate, so definite and specific that nothing is left for any one to question."

President King of Oberlin College says: "It is encouraging to find that so careful a survey has been made and the remedies so clearly outlined. It seems to me to be an admirable piece of work."

Prof. O'Shea says: "It is a valuable report not so much because it presents a body of new facts regarding the rural schools or a new point of view respecting methods of improving them, but because it re-enforces in an impressive way observations already made by many educational people and the conclusions they have reached regarding fundamental reforms which must be brought about if the country schools are to become efficient. The investigators have done their work thoroughly and accurately. They have presented the results of their inquiries in a simple, orderly, intelligible manner. They have gathered a large number of definite, convincing illustrations of the backward condition of the typical rural schools."

Prof. Cuddeby of Leland Stanford Junior University says, "that the report is an excellent one, that the facts set forth are not surprising to any one who has studied the educational question."

Miss Mabel Carey: "I have just read your preliminary report on conditions and needs of rural schools in Wisconsin, with the very greatest interest. It is the best thing of its kind I have ever seen."

Perhaps some of the county superintendents recognize these names as among those of national reputation. The last resolution says that the investigation should have been first given to the legislature "and judiciously handled by that body of representative citizens". This has a peculiarly familiar sound. Bury the report in the legislative archives where it is safe from the inquiring public. The fair name of Wisconsin has not suffered from this report. If the county superintendents follow the newspapers in other states they will find that the "Wisconsin idea" of first investigating and then acting has found renewed praise. Not all educators when the reflection of the school system is held up to them cry out, let us smash the mirror. In his message to the Ohio legislature, Gov. Cox says: "This subject (education) suggests possibilities of such tremendous moment to the people that legislation should be preceded by investigation." Wisconsin has had the investigation and it remains for the legislature to do the rest. In Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, there are now calls for statewide investigations. But Wisconsin, now as ever, set the pace.

PROGRESSIVE LEGISLATION.

The following article taken from The Shorthorn World relative to the recent sale at Anoka Farms will be read with interest by many:

It has been the custom of the Anoka Farm for a number of years to hold an annual spring sale, and on April 2, at the farm located in the suburbs of Waukesha, the eleventh sale was held. No such a crowd of representative feeders has assembled around an auction ring in the last decade as was present on this occasion. It was evident before the auction opened that a record was to be made. The cattle were a choice lot in breeding and were presented in splendid form.

The day opened with cloud and rain but the eager crowd was apparently unmindful of inclemency of the weather until they had carefully inspected the offering which was to be seen to advantage in the light, roomy stalls. After this the immense crowd repaired to the comfortable Harding home, where Mrs. Harding received the visitors in charming manner, causing all to feel a hearty welcome. After a sumptuous lunch the crowd returned to the ringside where Col. Woods mounted the block and with a few preliminary remarks on the life of the founder of Anoka Farm, the late George Harding, and a tribute to the late Col. George P. Bellows, the auction opened.

There were no sensational prices in this sale the top vendue being Sultan's Aconite 2d that went to Hearts Delight Farm for $1,750, Bellows Bros. being the competitor. The bull, Gloster Mine, which has been so successfully shown, topped the bull end of the sale at $1,625, to E. A. Hess, Council Bluffs, Ia., after a spirited contest between Carpenter & Carpenter and Hearts Delight Farm. Cruickshank Fashion, a very high-class calf, went at $1,200 to H. H. Diers, St. Olaf, Ia. Carry & Son, Ellis, S. D., being the runners-up on this bull. The July calf, Prince Lavender, distinguished by a most beautiful coat of hair as well as many other good points, went to Hearts Delight Farm at $1,100, Wm. Mansfield, Wisner, Neb., being the contender up to the last bid. Mr. Mansfield finally suited himself with Gloster Sultan at $850, a very reasonable price for this high-class young bull. Sultan Ringleader, was a splendid red bull which had a right perhaps to bring considerably more than the $675 he brought from F. Schofield, Hillsboro, Tex.

The thousand dollar mark was topped for the second time among the females by the Canadian champion, Mischief E. the 3d, which with a neat red bull calf, at foot, went to H. Reese & Sons, Pilger, Neb., at $1,075. Snow Queen the well known white show heifer, looking her prettiest, went to Elmendorf at $980.

Mr. W. L. Miner of Hearts Delight Farm the great show piece at Chazy, New York, not only had 8 head of cattle on sale, but was himself a good bidder on the best things offered by Mr. Harding.

Average on 26 females sold by Anoka was $502.31; on 11 bulls was $710.45. Average on the total offering of 37 head from Anoka Farms was $564.20. Mr. Miners 8 head averaged $310.

AN IMPORTANT ROAD QUESTION

Was Taken Under Consideration at Annual Town Meeting

Lisbon, April 14.—Among subjects that came up for discussion at the business meeting on election day was "What shall we do with the $1,812.59 that is in the town treasury, which is to be spent on our highways during the next year?"

Under the old system the town was divided into forty-eight districts and each district had an overseer, commonly called pathmaster. These pathmasters were appointed by the town board and in many cases begged by the board to take the office, and the ability of the man was seldom taken into consideration, for, as there is no compensation connected with the office, many men will not be bothered with the extra work and trouble.

They were under no binding obligations at all to fulfill their duties properly, as neither oath, bond nor promise was required, and in many cases the warrants were not returned. In some districts the taxes are not worked at all. And in almost all cases the taxes are all worked out in the summer and none held back for work which could be done the following spring, when a little work, as the roads are drying, is one of the best times to make good roads, and when a few minutes, some times when the water runs wild as the snow is melting, could prevent hundreds of yards of gravel and crushed stone from being washed into ditches, or gullies prevented being made if the water was properly controlled. To-day there is a ditch in front of Horace Wilden's place some 2 feet wide, about 2 feet deep and several rods long. It will require two men and a team one or more days to repair this place, besides the chances the town is taking of paying damages it would be liable for in case of accidents before the repairing is done, just because it was not any one person's business to spend a few minutes cutting a hole through a snow bank.

After considering these and many more facts the outgoing town board recommended that the road districts be left as they are at the present time, but that superintendents be done away with and that four overseers be appointed for the entire town. These men could be appointed with consideration as to their ability and surroundings, put under oath or bond and made to report when and where all work is done and where all money is spent. And that is a far wiser way than to turn over $1,812.59 to forty-eight men and let them divide it among themselves and friends without any security to the town of faithful and honest return for the money.

When this recommendation came up to be voted on, evidently some of the forty-eight were there and, knowing they would have to earn their share of the $1,812.59 if it were carried, they succeeded in getting it voted down. We therefore fell back into the old rut but we are going to partly fill it up, for the town board was instructed to purchase twelve new road drags.

Pain and Pleasure go Together

Editor Freeman: The park of pleasure is the place for the house of pain. There has been a great deal of discussion on this. Now I think it is a very proper place for it. It is very quiet and surely very pleasant, if it faces the library. There is an ordinance for keeping back yards and back yards clean, when I think will be enforced if they are not tended. I think the council did a wise thing to decide as they did. I am a taxpayer. Some of the people think a hospital would raise our taxes and I think that makes them fight it. I am willing to pay more taxes if it goes to a hospital.

One of our friends was in Trinity hospital in Milwaukee once and he found the library a great pastime when he got able to be out, and I don't see why our park could not be a pleasure also. The library and the hospital in the city park would be an honor to the city as well as the library and monument that are there.
