SURPRISED ON TWENTY-FIFTH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cruver were pleasantly surprised last Saturday evening by friends and relatives, the occasion being their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Among the guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hurst, Mrs. Mary Ann Burnell and Miss Dorothy Jones, of North Prairie; Mrs. Luella Betts, Miss Avie Betts, Billy Stienke and Mrs. Charles Burdon, Madison; Mr. and Mrs. John Trewyn and children, Ralph, Burton, Mildred and Harriet, Whitewater; Miss Stella Bass, Jefferson; Mr. and Mrs. George Harker, Misses Norma and Beth Titus, Mukwonago; Miss Hattie Harris, Elkhorn; Mrs. Grace Onyon, Mrs. Lila Olson, Mr. and Mrs. William Burton, Mr. and Mrs. William Knight, Mrs. Harriet Burton and Mrs. Roy Smart and daughter, Maxine, all of Eagle.

Music and dancing were in order for the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Cruver were the recipients of many beautiful gifts.

Miss Annamae Balding, of Waukesha, was a Sunday guest of Harriet Cruver.

Edward A. Worm and family and Emil Eucke and family, of Wauwatosa, passed through Eagle Sunday on their way to visit friends at Wandawega lake near Lauderdale. The Worm family resided in Eagle some years ago and many friends who are always glad to meet them.

Harry Smart and family and Miss Beulah Silvernail motored to the Nelson Dewey park near Prairie du Chien last week and had some great experience with detours on the way. Harry reports that near Prairie du Chien they ran over a rattlesnake, and some more goes with it, and the detour was worse than the road from Tom Clearys to Troy Center. They returned from La Crosse by way of highway thirty-three. Otherwise they had a fine trip.

A large number of relatives and friends from Whitewater, LaGrange, Elkhorn, Eau Claire and other places attended the funeral of Frank Baker, Wednesday afternoon. There was an unusual large attendance and many beautiful floral tributes. Interment was in the family lot at Little Prairie. Rev. W. J. Perry, former pastor of the M. E. church officiated, assisted by Rev. E. Langdon, pastor.

O. B. Coombe and nephew, Fred Griswold, of Lake Mills, made us a pleasant call, Wednesday. Mr. Coombe was formerly a merchant at Eagle and later a banker in his home town.

A heavy frost did much damage, Saturday, warmer weather followed.

Everett S. Baker has purchased a half interest in the grain and feed business at Readstown, Vernon county and will take possession, October first. His associate is Edward Wiley, of Janesville, a well known dealer of that city. Mr. Baker was formerly salesman for Krause Milling company, of Milwaukee, and resigned his position to engage in business on his own account. We wish him success.

Mrs. F. W. Faestel, of Troy Center, visited Waukesha on business, Wednesday, and from there went to Milwaukee to visit her aunt, Mrs. Emma Paul.

Herman O. Kent, candidate for governor on the socialist ticket and Mr. Coleman, secretary, passed through Eagle this week distributing campaign literature. Mr. Kent appears to be a nice man personally but we do not subscribe to his doctrine.

The Eagle girls' club will give a dance tonight, Sept. 30th, at the opera hall. Good music and a good time are promised.

In our obituary notice of the late Mrs. Walter McWilliams who died in Palmyra, recently, we omitted the name of Mrs. Michael F. Breidenbach as one of her surviving children. Pardon us, we make the correction.

D. O. Caunders and niece, of Dousman, were Eagle visitors, Wednesday.

Mrs. Jay Silvernail, Mrs. Sylvia Sherman and son, Winton, are on an auto trip to Stewartville, Minn.

The I. K. U. K. club was entertained Saturday evening at the home of J. C. Agathen.

FRANCIS BAKER

Francis Baker, son of John and Grace Bone Baker, was born in North Petherwin Parish, Devonshire, England, December, 1845. He was the fifth of a family of nine and at the age of three was brought to America where the family settled in the town of Troy, Walworth county. His childhood and youth were spent in the normal round of pioneer activities. In early manhood he attended Milton academy, now Milton college, two winter sessions, and for a few years subsequently, taught the winter term in various schools in the southern part of the state.

On October 14, 1879, he married Lydia Ann Duffin and established a home on Section 33 of Eagle township where his active life has been spent. To this union were born five children: John Earl, adviser to the Chinese government; Sarah Alice, teacher of biology in Eau Claire high school; Lenna Grace (Mrs. Ray Hulce); Aurel (Mrs. Harold Pardee), who as a Red cross nurse was in service on the Russian, Belgian and American fronts during the World War; and a son who died at birth. His wife, the four named children and together with four grandchildren and three younger brothers, James, Richard and Alfred survive. Some nine years ago he purchased the home within the village of Eagle where he lived a nominally retired life until his death, September 26.

In politics Mr. Baker was an independent and never was a candidate for public office. From early manhood he was a member of the Methodist church in whose work he took an active part. Industrious, cautious and thrifty, he was able to participate in the general improvement of the times and to acquire a modest competence. His life was one of the constructive forces of the neighborhood in which he lived and his achievements were of the substantial kind necessary to progressive communities. Of him it may truly be said that he had

The splendid strength of hearts That he must have who plays A common, toilsome part Subject by the great, yet does it With the brave wish in his breast, That he may serve mankind Where he may serve the best."

"THE KING OF THE TURF" AT EAGLE OPERA HOUSE

The blast of the bugle. The flurry of excitement in the stands, where are massed the flower and chivalry of the Old South! The prancing thoroughbreds on the track! The whirr of the barrier, sprung, "They're off!" All the color and speed and excitement of the Sport of Kings is woven around "The King of the Turf," F. O. B.'s big racing production which will be shown at the Eagle Opera House, October 3rd, for its premier presentation in this part of the country. With a list of illustrious names in the cast which includes George Irving, Patsy Ruth Miller, Kenneth Harlan, Al Roscoe, Kathleen Kirkham, Mary Carr, David Torrence, Dave Kirby, William Franey and Ed Phillips in the stellar parts and a strong company of supporting players, Director James Hogan has taken this story by Louis Joseph Vance and John Brownell and made of it a classic of turf history that will long be remembered. Two splendid races, one of them filled with all the spectacular possibilities of the Steeplechase, give a sensational beginning and ending respectively to this fast-moving melodrama; and between them stretches a story taut with human emotion and brilliantly interspersed with some of the most uproarious comedy seen on the screen in a decade. J. Grubb Alexander is credited with adapting this powerful and unusual tale to the purposes of the Silver Sheet.

RESCUE SQUADS TALK WITH MEN HELD PRISONERS

AMBULANCES, NURSES AND PHYSICIANS GATHER TO ASSIST IN REMOVAL OF ENTOMBED MEN

IRONWOOD, Mich. (U.P.)—All forty-three of the miners entombed in the G. Pabst mine of the Oliver Mining Co., are alive, company officials announced this afternoon.

A statement by J. C. Barrett of the Oliver Mining Co., said that "the men are all alive and their rescue will be completed within a few hours". Barrett said that members of the rescue party had conversed with the entombed miners.

Barrett said that all forty-three of the men are on the eighth level of the mine. They reported they were suffering from hunger, but said all were alive.

Rescue of the men came after they had been imprisoned 780 feet below the surface following a cave-in Friday which blocked the only method of egress through the Pabst shaft and defied workers for almost 124 hours.

Ambulances, physicians and nurses waited at the entrance of the mine for the men to be brought up. Removing them, it was said, will take several hours.

ALL ARE ALIVE
Relatives and friends of the entombed men broke through the ropes that have held them back from the mine entrance and packed around the entry. Drooping spirits revived, and causing scenes of indescribable joy.

"They're alive. They are alive," was the word spread quickly through Ironwood, and brought hundreds of additional persons to the scene.

From the other three operations that were being carried on came scores of rescue workers, each eager to be one of the party that was sent down to overcome the remaining obstacles and make it safe for the men to be brought out of the mine.

The men will be removed by a circuitous path, first being lowered to the twentieth level through the regular shaft, then to the twenty-sixth level, and from there over and up the "G" shaft.

IRONWOOD, Mich. (U.P.)—No word of encouragement has come from the G. Pabst mine, where forty-three men have been entombed since a cave-in, Friday. The 110th hour of their imprisonment came and passed at 11:30 A. M. today. Officials of the Oliver Mining company had predicted that there was no hope for the men after the 110th hour.

Fourth of Distance
This was one-fourth of the direct distance from the surface to the eighth level, and renewed the energy of all the rescue crews, for it shortened the time when a pipe will be run through the aperture to convey food to those below, if they are alive.

Speedier progress also was reported by rescue workers in charge of two of the three operations which are tunnelling shafts to the two levels where the men are believed to be.

However, a setback occurred as the result of seepage of water into the "G" shaft, which is the only unobstructed entry into the mine. The moisture increased the danger of a new cave-in and made extreme caution necessary in using the shaft.

The rescue has become a grim struggle which death already may have won. Human effort has done its utmost, but it is a slow ordeal to overcome the resistance of the walls of rock which hold the miners imprisoned, and many precious hours had been lost in changing tactics or abandoning work already started.

Lights Are Out
Somewhere, 780 feet below the surface, are forty of the miners, known to be without food, their carbide lamps long since burned out, their water supply perhaps only what seeps through the rocks, and pure air uncertain.

Still another 500 feet beneath them are either two or three other miners, whose circumstances are identical, but who may be the first to be reached.

There are some who cling to the hope that the men are alive. Faint tappings sounded on air pipes early Tuesday, but whether they were sounds made by the rescue crews has not been determined, and since, the noises have not recurred.

Even the women at the mine mouth are losing hope. As late as Tuesday, they welcomed every scrap of information from the rescuers, but now, as the shifts change at half-hour intervals, they are silent and sad.

It is possible the rock prisons may be reached today, but no one can speak with certainty. The best progress has been made in working upward from the twenty-sixth level, where two of the miners are known to have been working. The crew engaged in this attempt has had less obstacles than any other.

The shaft that is expected to be the first to reach the forty men on the eighth level, is being driven at an angle, from the Aurora mine adjoining. The entire distance is about 280 feet, and it is estimated half that has been conquered.

One of two other attempts at tunnelling met with a slow start. It is the 2 1/2-inch hole that a diamond drill is piercing into the rock to provide a channel for communicating with the men on the eighth level and passing down concentrated food, that is relied on as a last hope. This operation is speedy, but it got a late start.

RESCUE SQUAD DRILLERS BREAK WORLD RECORD

IRONWOOD, Mich. — One world's record was believed to have been broken today. Desperate, because of the bleak prospect, the rescue party in charge of the diamond drill sank a 2 1/2-inch hole downward from the surface at a rate of speed never before equalled in such an operation. The drill had penetrated 100 feet at noon today.

Mother Ending Life's Game Asks Hornsby to Finish Ball Series

NEW YORK (U.P.)—"Mother's dying wish, is that I remain with the team and play through the series, and I will follow her wishes," Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, told the United Press.

The young manager of the National League pennant winners, being notified that his aged mother was not expected to survive through the day, called his aunt in Austin, Texas, by phone, and was told that his mother asked as a dying favor that her boy remain with the team.

"If it is God's will that she must die before the series is ended and before I can reach her bedside, the obsequies will be held later," Hornsby said in a choking voice. "Mrs. Hornsby is leaving, today, for Austin."

Early in the afternoon Clarence Lloyd, representing the St. Louis club, called newspapermen together and said that despite the wish of Hornsby's mother that he play out the series, Hornsby might reconsider and leave for Austin.

Hornsby, he said, had not yet definitely made up his mind but that if he did leave he would probably go at 6 p. m. today. In case Hornsby leaves, Bill Killefer will be in charge of the club and Hornsby probably would rejoin it in St. Louis Tuesday, Lloyd said.

OPTIMISTS TOLD NEEDS OF WAUKESHA BOYS

Speaking before the Optimist club at the Wednesday noon luncheon, at Hotel Waukesha, today, Prof. J. E. Worthington stated that the first need in working for the underprivileged boys in the city was men,—men who would devote their time to aiding the boys. If this phase was taken care of, Professor Worthington stated he was of the opinion, that the other problems would be ironed out.

As the club's principal purpose is to assist the unfortunate boys, the speaker confined his talk to some of the needs in the city and he remarked that he was pleased to know that the Optimist club had been organized here believing there was a need for its services. Professor Worthington said that the local schools supply the physical and mental paths for development of the boys of the city, fairly well, but that there was demand nevertheless for the social and ethical development of the underprivileged child.

BOBBED HAIR PUTS CRIMP IN HARPIN INDUSTRY

PARIS.—In a recent list of bankruptcies there were seven manufacturers of women's hair combs and two manufacturers of hairpins. That is one of the results of hair shingling, while, on the other hand, since 1924 the number of hairdressers devoting themselves to shingling met with a slow start. It is the 2 1/2-inch hole that a diamond drill is piercing into the rock to provide a channel for communicating with the men on the eighth level and passing down concentrated food, that is relied on as a last hope. This operation is speedy, but it got a late start.

Co-ed of Week Becomes Bride of Day as Sink Is Victor Over Books

RIPON, Wis. (U.P.)—Kitchenettes are far nicer than dormitories, at least Lorraine Johann, of Sheboygan, feels that way about it.

Miss Johann, who entered Ripon college as a freshman, decided after a week in school, she wasn't made to study.

She left to return to her home in Sheboygan. There she was met by her sweetheart, Nick Hiltgen. They talked things over, and now the co-ed of a week is a bride of a day.

Word was received here that the couple were married in Waukegan. The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Johann, is still convinced that the life of a co-ed is not the kind she cared to live.

The bride's father is a well-known insurance man, prominent in the T. P. A. of Wisconsin, having held office in that organization.

U. W. DAILY CARDINAL RAPS PROHIBITION

EDITORIAL IN STUDENT PAPER SAYS HAS BROUGHT NOTHING BUT RUINATION

MADISON—(U.P.)—The Daily Cardinal, University of Wisconsin official newspaper owned and controlled by the student body, in an editorial today, stated that "the eighteenth amendment has accomplished nothing but the ruination of our economic organs, our taste and our one-time respect for federal law."

"The more we see of the workings of the prohibition experiment, the more we become convinced of the futility in dealing with a moral problem—that of temperance," it stated, charging that the country clergy and small town press are the champions of Volsteadism.

"Reformers also tell us that prohibition is a total success are hiding their heads in the sand, like the ostrich."

Evils wrought by "the extreme Volstead law," the Cardinal declared, "are felt most painfully by the youth of the country, and especially the college youth."

"Students drink in the spirit of braggadocio. It is the natural reaction of youth to rules and regulations."

"It is not difficult for students to secure liquor to commemorate the passing of examinations, football victories, and other special occasions. The local bootlegger guarantees ten-minute delivery to student rooming and fraternity houses. All the student has to do is to call a certain telephone number, ask for Jim, and give him an address. And the kind of stuff Jim brings isn't fit for human consumption. The gin, rotgut, white mule and other spiked beer that students drink is certainly not conducive to good health."

"To us it would seem much more preferable to have each of 100 students drink legally a glass of good beer than to have one incapacitate himself with a bottle of rotgut alcohol."

"As students, we do not believe we deserve the censure that has been heaped upon our heads by militant reformers on the outside. We lay the blame for whatever law violations there happen to be in our midst on the professional protectors of our morals, who have foisted this unjust, radical and unreasonable law upon us."

"The Cardinal believes in temperance, and it believes that by modification of the present law the cause of the proponents of temperance could be ultimately achieved."

SPURIOUS NOTE PASSER WILL BE TAKEN TO ASYLUM

ALIENISTS FIND ALLEGED FORGER INSANE AND SUBJECT TO IMPULSE

Zoda Victoria, 22, charged with having forged a number of checks and tendered them as payment for purchases made at stores throughout the county, was committed to the Wisconsin Hospital for the Criminal Insane, at Waupun, this morning, when Drs. W. B. Campbell and J. P. Ward testified that the defendant's mental condition made him irresponsible for his acts. The physicians stated that while Victoria sensed the difference between right and wrong he gave in to uncontrollable impulses at certain times.

Victoria is said to have signed the name of a prominent Waukesha official to checks of local industries all of which were drawn on the Waukesha National bank. According to what appeared to be a carefully conceived plan, the alleged forger would pass the spurious checks on whenever he made small purchases. His activities were centered principally in the vicinity of Menomonee Falls where several merchants complained of being victims of the bogus checks.

Milwaukee police were hot on the trail of an accomplice whom Victoria declared had been implicated in his activities and was supposed to have been the brains of a forging ring. A thorough combing of pool halls and other underworld rendezvous failed to locate any trace of the culprit. Police believe that Victoria was obsessed with the idea as he is accustomed to labor under hallucinations.

RABBIT SEASON TO OPEN HERE NOV. 1

That there are many Waukesha hunters who are not certain as to when the rabbit season opens in the county is the belief of County Clerk William Koehler who stated today that he is besieged with letters and telephone calls asking for information on the subject.

The open season for hunting rabbits in Waukesha county and in most of the southeastern counties is Nov. 1, according to Clerk Koehler. So far this year the office has issued 1,250 hunting licenses which is a greater number than issued last season.

Although there is an open season on partridges in the northern part of the state, Waukesha hunters are going to observe an appeal made by the state not to shoot them. Disease this summer had wiped out many of the birds, it is stated.

AUTO IS MOST USEFUL, MOST DEADLY THING

JUDGE SAYS CARS HAVE DESTROYED MORE LIVES THAN ALL WAR INSTRUMENTS

(By United Press.)
APPLETON, Wis.—The automobile, in its short existence, has proved to be the most useful instrument ever placed in the hands of man and at the same time the most deadly. Judge Alva R. Corlett of the Cleveland, O., municipal court declared, today, before the second annual Fox River Valley Safety conference, where he recommended jail sentences for lawless automobile drivers.

"The automobile has been more destructive of life and limb than all the instruments of war," he said, citing that in 1917 and 1918 our automobile casualties were 427,000, while American casualties for the same period, in the World war, were 317,387.

"In seven years the figures have more than doubled," said Judge Corlett. "Last year, automobiles and injured 630,000."

"Thousands of traffic laws have been enacted by legislative bodies in every state, and city, and village, in the United States and most of them are unenforced or inadequately enforced most of the time."

Explaining the experiences of the City of Cleveland, Judge Corlett asserted that "mere nominal fines have not deterred the lawless drivers, while jail sentences have." When there has been lax law enforcement deaths have increased from 50 to 200 percent, and when the penalties have been adequate, certain, and impartially administered, deaths have decreased 50 percent, he declared.

"We must have a driver's license law to eliminate the physically and mentally unfit," he said. "It is just as foolish and silly to employ the police to chase pedestrians from the path of the ignorant and insane drivers, whom we now license to drive, as it would be for the police to run down the street warning people of the approach of an intoxicated or insane man with a loaded gun."

Many Irresponsible Drivers
"Another thing that experience has demonstrated is the fact that at least a majority of those driving automobiles are irresponsible financially, and in case of accidents often causing death or serious injuries they are unable to respond in damages to those they have injured. This condition should be remedied by providing compulsory liability insurance similar to the industrial liability insurance in force in many states.

The Rev. Mr. Langdon and family attended a farewell reception at Racine, Thursday evening.

"Much relief will come, in time, from the widening and opening of streets, plans for which are being worked out by city officials, but many lives and much time would be saved by prohibiting parking in congested districts and on all main arteries of traffic. It is an absurdity to complain about congestion while foolishly allowing the use of the streets for storage purposes. A few people should not be permitted or licensed to do a thing to the great detriment or inconvenience of vast numbers of people. Parking on main streets should be limited to brief periods while taking on or discharging passengers or merchandise."

"We should strive for uniformity in traffic laws and regulations and the enforcement of such measures as have proven effective should be constant and unremitting, throughout the whole country," he concluded.

THE NAME PERSHING

In 1682, when William Penn founded Pennsylvania, his new province contained fewer than 1,000 white inhabitants, mainly Swedes, Finns, Hollanders, and Germans (Acclius). As land without settlers is of little value, the proprietor inaugurated a campaign of advertising which included agents in Germany whose personal solicitation and alluring circulars resulted in land sales and the coming of immigrants. Material attractions were reinforced by Penn's liberal charter, which guaranteed religious freedom even to Unitarians. Hence it was that Pennsylvania became the focus of so many sectarians in that intolerant age. The first contingent of German immigrants arrived as early as 1683, founding Germantown, now an interesting part of Philadelphia. The reports sent abroad by their scholarly leader, Pastorius, and others, brought such large accessions from the Fatherland, that as early as 1717 legislation was proposed to curb them. Accordingly a law was passed in 1727, obliging all male foreigners above the age of sixteen to take the oath of allegiance to the king of England. However, this did not check their coming, for by 1755 it was estimated that nearly one-half the population of Pennsylvania was of German stock.

In 1856 Prof. Daniel Rupp published a book containing more than 30,000 names of such non-British male immigrants who had taken the aforesaid oath at the port of Philadelphia, from 1727 to 1776. He copied these names, together with other important data, from the archives at Harrisburg. The ancestral patronymics of millions of Americans can be traced to this interesting list, among them being that of General Pershing. On page 216 of this unique authority we find this entry:

"Oct. 2, 1749. Foreigners from Swabia, Wirtemberg, and Darmstadt, ship Jacob, Adolph de Grove, Captain, from Amsterdam, last from Shields, England, 290 passengers."

Among the ninety-five persons taking the oath was Friederich Pfoersch, the first paternal ancestor on these shores of General Pershing, our most distinguished living soldier. This much has been admitted by his eulogists, but embellishments have been added which do not bear scrutiny, such as the cause for the changed pronunciation from Pfoersch to Pershing. The name was pronounced in the German states mentioned in the above-cited report in practically the same way as it is now, Pershing. At that time, whether at the beginning or at the end of a word, was pronounced colloquially by these people like p. This custom survives to this day in the German dialects of all that section, including Alsace, Lorraine-Allemande, and Rhenish Bavaria. The people of the last named province, once a part of the old Lower Palatinate, still call the district, die Pfalz, but pronounce it Palz, and call themselves Pelzer, though they spell it Pfaelzer.

Stapleton's "Memorials of the Huguenots in America," Carlisle, Pa., 1901, does not list Friederich Pfoersch, but mentions a Nicholas Paschon, who arrived at Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1732, and is classified as a Palatine, though he may have been of French Huguenot descent like his fellow-passengers, Boschung (Beauchamps), and Dubo (Dubois). This unreliable publication does claim Judge Cyrus L. Pershing as a Huguenot, but of Alsacian and not of French descent.

About ninety-two per cent of Rupp's 30,000 names are German, the rest being Dutch, French, and Portuguese. Some of the French Huguenots who had found refuge in the Palatinate, whence, after a sojourn of some years, they migrated to America. Millions of Americans, now scattered over the country, trace their descent from those sturdy German immigrants who at the outbreak of the Revolution had converted the wilderness of Penn's Woods into the most prosperous farming region in the thirteen colonies. Their descendants still occupy the old farmsteads, rich as ever by virtue of intelligent, industrious cultivation; while their buildings and villages are the acme of neatness and substantiality. Old customs survive, and quaintly dressed sectarians may be seen. The historic shrines at Germantown, Bethlehem, Lititz, Ephrata, and Manheim are replete with treasures of early handicraft, learning and culture—rare musical scores and instruments, and priceless German imprints of the colonial period, such as the monumental "Blutige Schauplatz" of the Ephrata press, published in 1748, and the Saur quarto "Bible," of 1743, the first bible printed in a European language in America. Misrepresented as ignorant by writers who knew them not, the Germans of colonial Pennsylvania supported their presses as did no other colony; hence Drake's "American Biography" (1871) could justly say that Saur (Sower) "was by far the most extensive book manufacturer then, and for many years subsequently." The German dialect of their Palatine forebears also survives, interspersed with numerous words and idioms of British-American origin, which again has reacted upon the vernacular. The habit of the Pennsylvania Germans is a promising field for the student of American speech.

ATTEMPTED STEAL OF WAUKESHA SPRING WATER FOR WORLD'S FAIR, CHICAGO

In 1892 a company of Chicago men conceived the idea of piping the water from the Hygeia Spring to the 1893 World's Fair in Chicago, a distance of 100 miles. In order to do this they must put their pipes across several streets. The people felt that pumping the water and forcing it that distance through pipes would contaminate its purity and affect the flow of the other springs, and so refused to allow them the privilege. After several weeks of wrangling over the proposition, they decided to outwit the authorities here. Since an injunction could not be served on Sunday the projectors came here just before midnight Saturday with a special train, including several carloads of workmen and all the necessary tools to tear up our streets and lay the pipes across while the people were asleep. Fortunately, one man overheard a telephone message to clear the tracks for a special train. Suspecting trouble, he called on several of the prominent men and they gathered down town to prepare the injunction papers and to await developments. They also got out the fire hose and armed themselves with shot guns—most of them not loaded, but they were successful in frightening the workmen.

Just before midnight the St. Paul train arrived and unloaded. The firebell was rung to such good effect that soon nearly the entire male population was on the streets. Hon. J. J. Hadfield, a very determined man and afraid of nobody, was mayor. He told them that if they put a spade into the ground they would do it at their peril. After much bantering, by the use of the firehose and the brandishing of the guns, they drove the frightened workmen back into the train, which was withdrawn a few miles out of town, to return about four o'clock in the morning when they thought the people all asleep—but not so. Once more the firebell called the citizens to action, and the invaders again met a warm reception.

Convinced that the village would not allow them to cross the streets they now tried another plan. They could get their pipes to the Industrial School grounds, so they went to the legislature to get a bill through, allowing them to pipe the water across the Industrial School grounds. For a month, Messrs. Ryan, Haight, Frame, and Colonel Jones fought the bill, but with the aid of an open bar dispensing free liquor, the company succeeded in having the bill passed by both houses of the legislature.

Then the only recourse was an appeal to Governor Peck for a veto. A special train was secured and nearly every man in Waukesha went to Madison, leaving only the women to protect the town with the firehose if needed. Every store, office and saloon in town was closed, and the men with a badge, "No Pipeline", on their coats, marched to the capitol and laid their petition before the governor, the legislature being in session at the time. The clippings and the cartoon tell the rest of the story.

Later the same company secured and piped the water from the spring at Big Bend and sold it on the World's Fair grounds as Waukesha water. If any of you were there and tasted the water, or saw the wry faces of those who drank it, you would have concluded that it did not add to the reputation of Waukesha water.

Accompanying this account also were clippings from the Milwaukee papers giving details of the successful effort to secure a veto by Gov. George W. Peck, of a bill passed by the legislature to permit of the piping of the water across the Industrial School grounds. These papers will be placed in the possession of the society for permanent keeping.

Blood Pressure, Bed-Wetting and other morbid affections of the body. Years of experience and the complete records of great number of cases successfully treated prove that the methods of the National Doctors are very dependable.

The Physicians of the National Doctors have at their command the knowledge and resources of the entire organization.

Many people keep on suffering from ailments that might be greatly improved because they cannot afford to go to high-priced Specialists away from home, and few communities have sufficient numbers of such cases to support a local hospital.

The National Doctors have solved this problem by having their trained Specialists travel from town to town to meet the sick. They instruct patients, recommend a course of treatment, and teach ailing men and women how to take care of themselves at home.

To those having ailments of long standing, whatever the trouble may be, and notwithstanding the poor results of former treatments come and talk it over.

Examination and advice FREE. Ladies are requested to come escorted. (Laboratories Milwaukee, Wisconsin)
