OVERPRODUCTION ON THE FARM

In some parts of the country farmers have taken seriously the warning of the Federal Farm Board against overproduction. In other parts they have paid no attention to it, and have sowed more winter wheat than last year.

It will take a long time, before farmers are so well organized and information about crop conditions and production so well understood by all of them, that they will not plant too much. But it is true as anything ever said from a pulpit that the principal trouble with agriculture, insofar as agriculture can do anything about it, is that too many farmers are growing too much of the same commodity, not only in America but all over the world.

Chairman Legge of the Farm Board pointed out the other day that Nebraska has cut down the winter wheat acreage twelve percent. If all of the other wheat-growing regions did the same thing, and kept their spring sowing down in the same proportion, the result would certainly be vastly larger returns for every wheat grower. But every farmer who plants as much to wheat this year as he did last year is reducing his own income and causing all of the other wheat-growers to lose also. Nobody makes any money on it if there were only half as much of it grown and in the market.

Missouri and Arkansas have some excuse for sowing more winter wheat than a year ago. The drought hit those states harder than it did most of the rest of the wheat country, and much of the winter wheat sown there is for pasturage for live-stock. Wheatfeeding to cattle and hogs has proved a very successful and profitable way of using up the surplus. But all of the efforts of the Government to stabilize the production of the staple crops and to organize their marketing on an orderly basis will be futile until all farmers, everywhere, get into the habit of working together toward the same end. And that end is smaller crops of everything with higher prices per unit of production.

Better five dollars an acre profit from a hundred acres than a dollar an acre loss from five hundred acres.

THE UPTURN IS BEGINNING

Reports from all over the country are to the effect that the Christmas trade everywhere was far better than merchants had anticipated, and that stocks of merchandise have been so far sold out that the shelves are practically bare in many sections in every line of goods.

This month in the larger cities the big stores are cashing in with post-holiday bargain sales to clear off the rest of their stocks, and people are buying much more freely than six months ago.

That is the most encouraging sign of the times. It means, of course, that the retailers have got to begin buying right away from the wholesalers, who in turn have got to send their orders to the mills and factories. The wheels will begin to turn more rapidly as soon as this flood of new buying orders is under full headway. Men will go back to work, and in turn will have money to spend.

Unless something unforeseen happens, we cannot look for an instant return of the old prosperity. It will creep upon us unaware, as it has always done in the past, until some morning, while most of us are still croaking about hard times, everybody will realize at the same moment that the hard times are over. That is what has always happened, and there is no reason to think it won't happen that way this time.

WISDOM AT A PREMIUM

If America ever had a need for wisdom and understanding on the part of public officials and business men, it needs those qualities now.

The social and economic problems that came to a head in the past year have produced a multitude of proposals for half-baked and unsound legislation. Men in the highest positions are seeking to commit the nation to programs which would result in a tremendous increase in taxes, without permanently solving any problems.

The cure for our present-day difficulties lies with industry and the people. Wise and well-considered governmental aid can help. But the public—which will, in the long run, reap the benefit from or pay for whatever action is taken now—should do its part in helping to maintain sound government and business free from fake panaceas proposed by emotional or vote-seeking office holders.

State News

By Fred L. Holmes

Madison, Wis., Jan. 21.—Revelation of Gov. Philip F. LaFollette's program was the leading feature of the opening days of Wisconsin's legislative session.

LaFollette outlined a bill for a four cent gas tax to raise about $3,000,000 additional money. Of this sum $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 would go to finance the elimination of about ninety railroad grade crossings to give employment to about 10,000 men. About $3,000,000 would be used to make up for abolition of personal taxes on automobiles also proposed. Besides this there would be a state fund for snow removal and more extensive state aid to localities. With the prospect that the gas tax would not raise enough to meet this program money would be borrowed from other funds. Railroads would pay about 33 per cent of the grade crossing crusade over a three year period.

Another LaFollette plan would be to declare any candidate receiving the majority of all votes in the primary finally elected without another contest. Where no candidate had a majority over all opponents the highest two would enter the final election, regardless of party.

LaFollette's utility plan calls for a constitutional amendment to permit the state to go into the light, heat and power business and another measure would permit cities and villages to go beyond their present debt limitations in acquiring utilities. One bill would permit cities and rural sections to combine into large power districts and another would permit municipalities to build plants to compete with privately-owned utilities now serving the locality.

Other plans call for an executive council of 20, a revision of the corrupt practices act, abolition of reciprocal features of the insurance and inheritance tax laws and a boost in taxes for life insurance companies.

If the LaFollette plan to employ 10,000 men at grade crossing elimination is passed there will be a separate board to see that only men who have lived in the state for at least five years will be given jobs. The grade crossings to be included in the program would be those near cities where unemployment relief is needed most.

Although Gov. LaFollette controlled the senate for organization purposes, it remains doubtful as to how many of the governor's plans will be accepted by the upper house. There was just one flurry the first week when Senator J. H. Carroll, Glidden, objected to the naming of Senator Thomas Duncan, Milwaukee, as chairman of the joint finance committee. Carroll objected because Duncan is a socialist and he believed this important post should go to a member of the party in control of the state. But his protest drew but his own and the vote of Senator James Barker, Antigo.

Many legislators are backing plans to grant relief to the unemployed and World War veterans. Senator Conrad Shearer, Kenosha, has a bill to defer tax collections when it is shown that a person cannot pay because of unemployment. Senator V. S. Keppel, Holmen, and Assemblyman William Miller, West Salem, have introduced bills to open ice fishing and it is estimated that there will be 40 bills to permit ice fishing as a relief to the unemployed. Senator Philip Nelson, Maple, has offered a resolution asking congress to pay back money collected from soldiers during the world war for war risk insurance, contending that it is up to the employer to insure employees against hazards. Senator Bernard Gettelman, Milwaukee, has another resolution asking congress to pay soldier adjusted compensation certificates in cash.

Gov. LaFollette will read his second message to the legislature next week, the document to present the executive financial program as required under the budget law enacted at the last session of the legislature. This message will deal with appropriations for the various state activities.

Some time later LaFollette will present a third message dealing with new legislation not covered in his first message. The third message will deal with such subjects as revision of the educational system under a state board of education as recommended by the legislative committee on education.

Senator Walter S. Goodland, Racine, has offered the legislature a plan to relieve the tax situation in northern Wisconsin counties. Under Senator Goodland's plan the state would place a special mill tax on property to buy the delinquent lands of the north as a relief to the counties. Fourteen counties report that more than 20 percent of their property has been returned delinquent.

Senator O. S. Loomis, Mauston, has a novel plan to curb the sale of oleomargarine. He would require all of the butter substitute to be colored green before it could be sold in the state.

Gasoline sold at retail within the State during 1930 totaled 56,113 carloads, or 448,905,600 gallons, as compared with 50,463 carloads or 403,701,100 gallons sold during the year 1929, according to Roy L. Brecke, State Supervisors of the Wisconsin Oil Department.

Three plans are already under consideration affecting the small loan companies of which more than 75 have already been licensed to operate in Wisconsin. Present indications are that if the small loan law is not repealed it will be greatly modified by the present session of the legislature.

Philip H. Porter, appointed to the railroad commission by Gov. Walter J. Kohler, resigned to Gov. Philip F. LaFollette to become effective immediately. LaFollette is expected to name a successor soon.

Lawrence M. Judd, Governor of Hawaii, says:

That devotion is an element in one's life that, when developed and practiced, contributes to happiness and peace of mind. There are many avenues through which full development may be reached—devotion to God, devotion to country, to the family circle, devotion to business and to one's friends.

The old Puritan instincts that prompted the institutions of Thanksgiving and Christmas and New Year's Day have apparently lost much of their charm to the present generation. The family circle is yet intact, but a "hole in one" and a "rubber" are potential successors. Business has yet some lure, but too often the young man and the young woman works for the clock rather than for their future. Friends are valued, but the vibrant ring of gold is at times more alluring.

I am not willing to live in the past. The present is wonderful, and the future promises further marvels, but the factors that are building this age to artful devices must be curbed lest devotion belong only to the past. In this day of fleeting vision, the course of youth must be guided, else they leave the straight and narrow to find their lives plowing irredeemably into the mire of disaster. One will succeed, while another will fail. Such is inevitable, but that one who appreciates his God-given Possibilities, his inherent ambitions, and determines to devote his life to those higher qualities—if he work when it is time to work, rest when it is time to rest, play during playtime, and appreciate that he is a member of the world's machinery, the devotion that was known to our forebearers can again be acclaimed a part of life.

HOME CANNING OF MEAT SAVES TIME AND MONEY

Steaks, roasts and chops that are almost like fresh meat may appear on the table the year around if the homemaker has canned some meat during the slaughtering season. Canning a whole beef, hog lamb or veal at one time is quicker and cheaper than cooking the meat for each meal separately. Mrs. Margaret McCordic, extension specialist in house management at the Wisconsin college of agriculture, has found.

It is not only for reasons of economy that both farm and city women are canning meat for future use. Canned meat, if carefully done in as many ways as possible, provides a greater variety in meals than is possible to most farm homemakers when canned meat is not used, believes Mrs. McCordic.

If the meat is to be canned, there needs to be no waiting for steady freezing weather, and the animal can be slaughtered when it has reached just the right degree of finish, so that the choicest of meat can be had. Moreover, there is no loss when the weather suddenly turns warm during the winter.

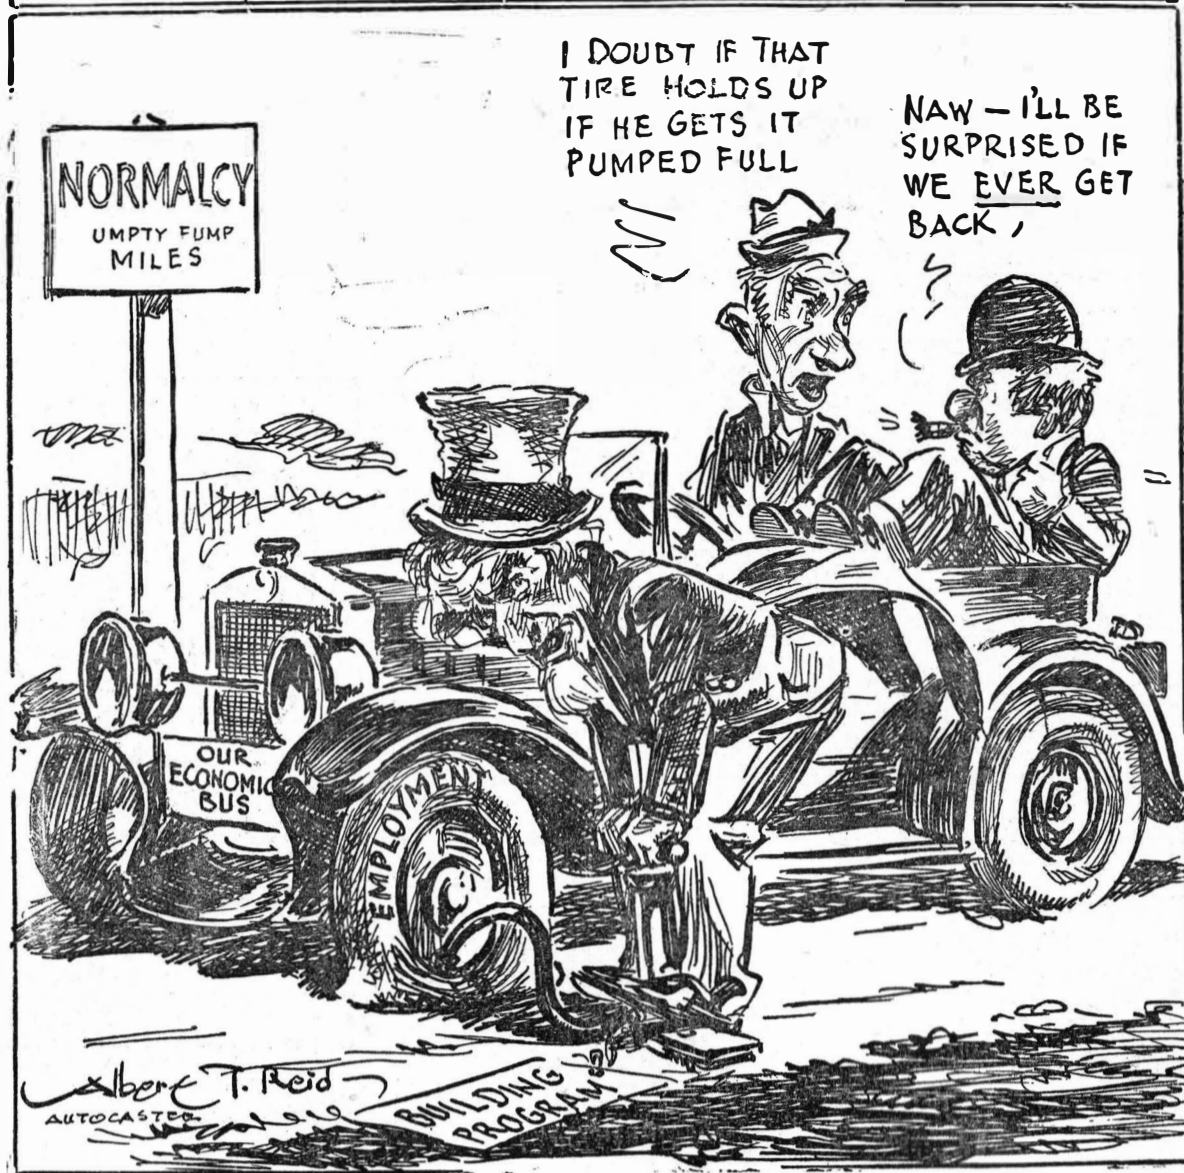

With a supply of canned meat on hand, an emergency meal for unexpected guests or extra hired help is easily prepared.

Since meat spoils very easily, Mrs. McCordic emphasizes the importance of extreme cleanliness in the preparation of meats for canning. Only the meat which is absolutely fresh and from healthy animals should be canned.

For variety, and in order to make use of the different cuts, some of the meat can be canned as steak, the larger pieces for roasts, and the flank and plate can be rolled and sewed with coarse thread for rolled roasts. These larger pieces must be processed somewhat longer than the smaller pieces since the heat penetrates them more slowly. The smaller pieces can be ground into hamburger, seasoned in different ways, and canned as patties or meat loaf. Liver can be sliced, seared and canned

Don't Leave All the Work to Uncle Sam

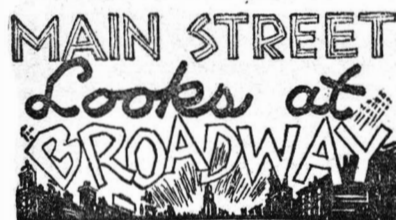

By Albert T. Reid

Just as is the steak. The method of canning and the kind of cans used will depend on the equipment which the housewife has on hand. Glass jars can be used as for vegetables and processed in the wash boiler for at least 3 1-2 hours. If tin cans are used, these too can be processed in the boiler. More of them can be put in at one time than of the glass jars thus saving time and fuel. These can be cooled immediately after processing by plunging them into cold water.

The safest and most convenient way to can meats is to use the tin cans and process them in the pressure cooker. Complete directions for canning meats by either the hot water bath or pressure cooker method are given in Circular 176 on Successful Home Canning which may be secured by writing to the college of agriculture at Madison.

YULETIDE

New York has been called, in song and story, a "great, cruel city without a heart."

But that statement was a hard one to believe during the Christmas season. In homes, prisons and charity lines, thousands were fed and given clothing. All New York participated in the spirit of Christmas. Never before was the need for help so evident, and never before has the city been so generous in making Christmas a merry one for those who were not fortunate enough, but certainly deserving, to have one of their own.

The Municipal Lodging House served Christmas dinner to 8,100 jobless men and women. At three Salvation Army stations, thousands of needy men, women and children ate turkey dinners made possible by contributions of the public. The leading newspapers of the city waged intense relief campaigns, and several are continuing to maintain food supply trucks to feed those in the breadlines which form daily.

CHILDREN MADE HAPPY

One newspaper alone fed 15,000 families, representing 85,000 persons. Special Christmas parties, were held at many institutions, prisons, veterans hospitals and churches. Sailors at the Brooklyn Navy Yard were hosts to 150 children, and other children in the district were entertained on various ships. Restaurant proprietors gave generous meals free of charge to the hungry, and in similar ways hotels brought cheer to those who most needed it. In the Tombs and other city prisons and in Sing Sing, routine was forgotten for the day while prisoners enjoyed holiday dinners and unusual privileges.

The spirit of Christmas giving reigned, and some charities laid foundations for a program of relief which will be effective the year around.

TWELVE MILES OUT.

One colored gentleman, however, was not satisfied with the quality of Christmas cheer being dispensed (in bottles) in New York. He announced his distrust of holiday liquor and said he was going out where gin was gin and not varnish or words to that effect. He accordingly set out in a row boat, his destination being 12 miles out. But his nautical career was cut short by a police launch, which overtook the lone sailor off Governor's Island and brought him back. Although he did not exactly achieve his goal, to him must go the credit of proving that the man who would walk a mile for a certain cigarette is surely a piker.

Very Latests

By Mary Marshall

During the years of the war and those that followed, women's clothes became practically buttonless. It took time to sew on buttons and to make buttonholes and, as clothes became simpler and straighter, ways were devised to get along without buttons. They disappeared entirely from underthings and fortunately are not likely to return. Coats and of material. But great changes have taken place and, along with the general revival of feminine details of dress, buttons of an elaborate ornamental sort have come back into favor.

Many of the new blouses are made with rows of narrow buttons. Tailored jackets now have four or six buttons where once they had but one or two. The sketch shows a way of using buttons for a purely ornamental purpose that you will find smart and amusing. The buttons chosen were round, fabric-covered buttons and they were strung through the center. The same idea may be carried out with two or four-hole buttons, by running the connecting cord through the holes with two or four strands of silk.

The new long-sleeved dresses fit closely at the wrists and often the seam is left open five or six inches and finished with small silk loops on one side and a row of small round buttons on the other side—six or eight buttons being used on each sleeve. These buttons may be of the fabric-covered sort, though a more interesting effect is gained if they are of metal or colored glass.

The use of cranberries need not stop at the end of the holidays. They are available until March, and should be used to add color and flavor to meals throughout the winter.

Where the land is not too rolling, lime for spring use may be spread over the snow during the winter months and worked into the ground by discing or dragging as soon as the condition of the ground will permit.

Better Breakfasts

THE new year, 1931, is going to be a better year than 1930, we are told. Financiers promise us better business conditions, stylists promise us better styles and everything seems to promise us better breaks. Better breakfasts is all we need then, to start these promising days at top-speed. This would seem to be a real contribution toward the movement for better times.

Plan your breakfasts, first, to be tempting and attractive; second, to provide abundant energy; and third, to give that much-needed quality to the morning meal—variety. Here is an appetizing breakfast—it combines fruit from sunny Florida or California with fish from Cape Cod. Iced Grapefruit Halves Codfish Flakes in Cream Sauce Toasted Buns Hot Beverage

Codfish Flakes in Cream Sauce: Flake one 10-ounce can of codfish cakes in large rough pieces, using a fork. Drop into hot deep fat, 300 degrees, and fry until brown. Drain and serve with sauce made by melting two tablespoons of butter, adding two tablespoons of flour, and then gradually adding one and one-half cups of diluted evaporated milk and cooking until thick. Add salt and pepper and one teaspoon of lemon juice. This may be served on toast.

If the hot beverage happens to be coffee, here's a hint. Buy it in cans marked "vacuum packed," and you'll get its full flavor and aroma. For when coffee is exposed to oxygen its flavor and aroma escape rapidly, but an airtight "vacuum packed" container keeps them in.

Times without number we have had our spirits built up by a succession of beautiful numbers from programs chosen with discrimination, only to have them plunged into the depths of gloom and despair at the thought of a man dancing with tears in his eyes. FORMER PALMYRA BOY DEAD

The following notice of the death of E. B. Graves was taken from the Clark County (South Dakota) Courier:

Another of the early pioneers of these great northwest prairies answered the call from that great country on high when E. B. Graves passed away at his home in Thorp township last Friday morning.

Edwin Boyington Graves was born at McGrayville, N. Y., May 17, 1845. When a lad but a few years old, his parents moved to Palmyra, Wis., and there at the tender age of ten he was left an orphan and to the care and kindness of neighbors, of whom he often said, "my own parents could not have been more kind to me than were those with whom I lived."

At the tender age of 16, Mr. Graves enlisted with a bridge gang in the Federal service and served in the capacity for a time and at the close of the war, in company with several others, journeyed overland to Martin county, Minnesota, there near the present city of Welcome, he filed on government land and became a homesteader.

On April 29, 1875, deceased was united in marriage with Eva Belle Brand and to this union nine children were born.

Deceased came with his family to South Dakota and lived east of Clark one year, then he purchased the farm seven miles north of Clark where he has lived during the past 29 years. Deprived of much in social life because of the loss of his hearing, yet many are the pleasant and instructive hours which others have enjoyed in his presence. He was optimistic in times of strife and always hard working and generous to a fault.

His life slipped peacefully away at six o'clock last Friday morning after a brief illness of a week, he having reached the age of 85 years, 7 months and 15 days. Funeral was held from the late home on Sunday afternoon with services conducted by Rev. K. P. Kilbourn and interment made in Rose Hill cemetery.

HATCHABLE EGGS

By PROF. H. D. MUNROE

To produce strong, healthy chicks it is necessary to have the breeders in good condition. A healthy breeding flock is one that has gone through a molt, has bright red combs and is in good condition.

There are three essential requirements to produce good hatchable eggs—green feed, sunlight and milk.

The requirements for a good green feed is that it grows carries a green color. About the only winter green feed for breeders is alfalfa hay. Later in the season, if the birds are out on grass range, they will not need alfalfa.

Sunlight is very essential to produce good hatches. During the winter when the days are short and sunlight is scarce, cod liver oil is the only substitute. Cod liver oil is a very important winter feed for breeders.

Milk, in some form, is necessary to produce good healthy chicks. It is interesting to know that the combination of alfalfa, milk and cod liver oil will produce healthy chicks in winter just as well as the natural sunlight, green grass and milk will produce them in the spring.

'FEDS' PAY PALMYRA A BUSINESS CALL

Even though Palmyra isn't so terribly big, Federal prohibition agents have raised enough fuss around there to last for some time. Last Thursday at about noon officers raided the bar room operated by Lee Gregory in the Grimm building and poured out a keg of beer and numerous bottles of home brew which was alleged to contain more than the legal content of alcohol. According to Lee's bartender, the agents came in, served the warrant and proceeded to search for evidence of prohibition law violation; they found nothing stronger than beer at first until one of the officers looked over the basement under the barroom very closely and finally unearthed an uncorked, pint bottle containing a small amount of liquor.

The Way of Life
By BRUCE BARTON

"See How Wrong You're Been"

IN England I talked with some celebrated economists, who were very gloomy. They said the fundamental trouble with the world goes deeper than war debts or unemployment. It is the shortage of gold.

Gold is the measure of all values. When the gold dollars are few each dollar buys more wheat and copper and cotton and labor. So the price of all these commodities goes down, ruining the producers in the process. If the shortage becomes much more acute, so these wise men argued, it will overturn all wage scales and debt settlements, and result in economic chaos.

As I know nothing about economics (and, between ourselves, I often wonder whether the economists know very much), this scared me.

The next day I was talking with Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who was in London as one of the delegates to the Naval Conference. I told him what I had heard.

Instead of replying directly, he took down from the mantelpiece a copy of the autobiography of Lord Comer, and turned to a passage which read something like this:

"When I was a young man I proposed to keep a diary, but wise old uncle advised against it. Instead of recording what had happened, he said, I could employ my time more profitably, by writing down on a piece of paper what I felt sure was going to happen. Then, he said, 'Put those notes away, and a year or five years later get them out and read them over, and see how wrong you have been. This will teach you to be cautious.'"

What shrewd advice that is! All of us could profit by it. I know that if I had written down my own private forecast at the beginning of each year and filed it away it would have saved me from making a number of costly mistakes.

Also, the record would make rather encouraging reading. It would show that a considerable amount of unanticipated good luck has come into my life.

And that many of the bad things which I predicted for myself and the country have never actually happened.

This was taken along as evidence. The officers also went across the street to John Gatz's soft drink parlor but this place they found had been closed for the day. They somehow managed to enter and here they also claimed to have discovered evidence of dry law violation. Just what fines or sentences, if any, will be or have been imposed we have been unable to learn.

An attendance of approximately 160 people at the January meeting of the Palmyra Township Farm Bureau held at the pleasant Valley church on the evening of January 6th probably established a record for attendance at any meeting of the organization to date.

New Toxin Heralded as Last Word in Warfare

Dr. Leonard Hill, who is director of applied physiology, National Institute of Medical Research, Hampstead, England, said there was a toxin that could be employed to kill millions of men, when he was contrasting the power of the scientific laboratory with that of modern war machinery. "If men are as susceptible as guinea-pigs to the toxin, which shall be nameless—there is every reason to think they are—it would appear that one saltspoonful of this dry toxin would suffice to kill 1,000,000 men. The toxin acts if inhaled, or if it falls on the eye in a powder. If such a toxin were prepared and scattered from an airplane, what would be the use of the panoply of war?"

See Big Changes in Home Heating

New System Destined to Affect House Values.

Now that the American public is becoming air-conditioning conscious, it is easy to envision radical departures from present-day standards in home design and equipment, according to the Holland Institute of Thermology, of Holland, Mich.

Within a decade, today's modern home will be as definitely obsolete as is the home built twenty years ago compared with today's modern home. The most revolutionary feature of the home of the future will center around the heating plant. Modern warm air heating plants for bungalow or partial residence are really indoor weather-making plants. In addition to heating, their functions are to inject an adequate supply of moisture into the home air, wash the air to free it from dust and bacteria and to keep the air in gentle, yet draftless, motion. These functions will enable the home owner to enjoy artificial June weather in his home the year around.

Obsolescence is a more important factor than physical depreciation in the maintenance of realty values nowadays. In building new homes, persons should equip them with a modern air conditioning system rather than just a heating system. Not only will they enjoy a degree of indoor comfort heretofore unknown in the home, but the market value of their home will not be jeopardized by the fact that the heating system is not a heating-air-conditioning system.

The most important factors of air conditioning are humidification of indoor air during the heating season, and the maintenance of a definite draftless air-motion to create uniform temperatures by the elimination of stagnant air pockets and the strata of heated air and of cold air that at present characterize homes heated by systems that depend upon gravity, convection and radiation for heat distribution.

To supply the home air with the required amount of moisture, calls for the evaporation of several gallons of water daily—six to eight gallons in homes of moderate size. Injecting this water-vapor uniformly into the home air makes possible the maintenance of physical comfort at moderate temperatures of 70-72 degrees Fahrenheit. Warm-air heaters of the vapor-air type are equipped with specially designed humidifiers which will automatically evaporate as much as 25 gallons of water daily. They are also equipped with electrically operated and controlled air propeller units which provide the desired air-motion and uniform heat distribution.

Modern warm-air, air-conditioning systems, with thermostatically controlled dampers and automatic fuel feed, constitute the predominating modern feature of modern homes.

MOISTENED AIR KEEPS DOWN DUST

Only Small Part of Household Dirt Originates in House.

Where does all the dust come from? That is an everyday mental query with the average housewife as she goes about her home with vacuum cleaner, dust mops and polishing cloths.

According to the Holland Institute of Thermology, of Holland, Michigan, a very large part of the dust that keeps the housewife busy filters into the house through the cracks around doors and windows and, as is to be expected, a large portion is carried in on shoes and clothing. Only a small percentage of the dust actually originates in the house. According to the character of the neighborhood or district, dust is made up of a wide variety of particles. In industrial centers, it may include steel, glass, iron, silica, clay, and limestone. In this mixture there will also be found street refuse, hay, pollen, coal dust, shreds of textiles and scores of miscellaneous bacteria.

The housewife's housecleaning chore will not be near so onerous, claims the Institute, especially during the heating season, if the home-air contains a proper percentage of moisture or relative humidity. The dust particles absorb moisture and become too heavy to be continually flying through the air, besmirching house furnishings and highly finished surfaces and the housewife finds her clean house activities confined more to the use of her vacuum cleaner.

An adequate supply of moisture is dependably supplied by the automatic humidifying devices in warm-air heating plants of the vapor-air type. The moisture is uniformly supplied during the heating season in sufficient quantity to eliminate the usual winter indoor dryness so detrimental to health and comfort, and a dustless home. Humidifying the home-air prevents the drying out of furniture and furnishings, and thus they no longer are the source of an unusual supply of lint and dust.

SNOW AND COLD GRIPS WISCONSIN

All day Sunday this section of the country was held under the spell of a heavy snow storm which continued well into the night, covering the earth with a white blanket of about eight inches in thickness. No roads were blocked at any time however as very little wind came with the snow and by Monday the county snow plows had patrolled all main highways. Monday night the mercury took a drop and since then has been hovering around zero.
