HOW THE GOVERNMENT HELPS

One hundred and sixteen million dollars for public works, forty-five for the relief of farmers who were affected by the 1930 drought—that is the sum which Congress has put into the President's hands since December 1, as a further effort toward getting money into circulation and getting men back to work.

That ought to help a lot. Many important Federal highway projects have been held up because the states concerned were not in a position to appropriate their share. Under the new appropriation Federal money will be lent to the states, in addition to what the Federal Government pays as its share. It is definite now that the largest road-building program of any year will be carried through in 1931.

The trouble with public works as a means of relieving unemployment emergencies is that they can not be begun instantly. Until money has been appropriated by Congress, State Legislatures or municipal governments, the preliminary plans cannot be drawn. Everybody knows that the building of even a simple house takes a great deal of preliminary time in selecting the lot and drawing the plans before the hauling of materials to the job can commence. How much more time it takes to start work on such a project as the Hoover dam few of us realize. Engineers have been at work for a year on the plans, and are only just now ready to get bids for materials and work. It will be several months before actual work, in the sense of employing any considerable body of workers, can be begun.

The Hoover dam is going through, however, and so are the new Federal highways at a great program of new Federal buildings. The preliminaries have been largely attended to in 1930; 1931 will see the money beginning to flow into the pockets of hundreds of thousands of workers.

ON ENTERING THE NEW YEAR

Every American should be ambitious to make 1931 a prosperous and progressive year.

Never have our resources, from the standpoint of capital, men or machines, been so great. Never have we possessed such an abundance of potentialities for future achievement.

The nation is beginning to emerge from the "depression wave" which engulfed us more than a year ago. There is nothing fundamentally wrong with America, and our ills are of the most transitory sort. One of the most hopeful signs for future national stability and progress is the vast amount of effort now being given by leaders in all fields of endeavor to find workable solutions of our social and economic problems. Instead of being either overly optimistic or stupidly pessimistic they are approaching them scientifically.

It is trite to say that future prosperity will be largely the result of industrial development. The electric industry, railroad, automobile, telephone, mining, oil, progress in any one of them is connected with progress for all other business.

From the purely material standpoint, there is no reason why the new year should not be the beginning of a new and greater epoch. The machine age has become firmly established. Industrial and agricultural mechanization is now an accepted fact. Domestic life, aided by labor saving devices and modern conveniences has reached new standards of comfort. Commodities and services that were once only possessed by the wealthy are now in reach of all. The American workman, commanding record horsepower leads the world in wages and production.

All that preceding generations discovered, evolved and perfected is ours to use. No other nation ever had so firm a foundation on which to build.

But we must not lose sight of the fact that the modern world is a cooperative world in which no nation can stand alone and remote from the rest. A broad and tolerant international spirit is supplanting the insular nationalism of an earlier day. Friendly diplomatic and commercial relations between nations are the surest guarantees of world peace and progress. The volume of our foreign trade may, in coming years, mean the difference between prosperity and depression in the United States. Local prosperity depends on buying and selling between individuals and industries—world prosperity depends on buying and selling between nations.

Political bickerings, sectional jealousies, local prejudices, industrial depressions, all must be conquered and forgotten in the work of accomplishing the greatest possible good

State News

By Fred L. Holmes

Madison, Wis., Jan. 7—With inaugural ceremonies Monday definitely setting the division between the administrations of Gov. Walter J. Kohler and Gov. Philip F. LaFollette, many plans for new legislation are being revealed.

The legislative interim committee on education has recommended the formation of a state board of education to set policies for all Badger schools from common schools to the university. It would displace boards of regents and other boards now in charge of various schools. The committee points out that at present there are 30 boards in charge of state school activities each trying to get all it can for the particular school activity it represents. With one central board balancing the needs of all the schools the state would save many thousands of dollars, it is claimed.

The central state board of education would be made up of 15 regents and it would employ a state director of education and an assistant director. The members would serve without pay beyond a per diem and travel expenses. The plan contemplates an amendment of the constitution to wipe out the office of state superintendent of schools. It would take at least six years to do this and the committee plans that if the state board were adopted John Callahan, state superintendent, could be given the directorship until his job could be abolished.

The state board plan is promised plenty of opposition in the legislature.

Progressive legislators meeting here have been working on bills to curb oleomargarine sales, to increase the gasoline tax to four cents with provisions for enlarged state aids to localities and to increase income taxes for persons with earnings of $5,000 or more a year. Legislation was also considered to change the present law limiting the moisture contents of cheese. Assemblyman Don Smith, Lake Mills, who attended the conference here, is working on a bill to withdraw the department of markets from the present combined department of agriculture and markets.

The League of Wisconsin Municipalities is not enthusiastic over the campaign to speed up the state concrete highway program. In a report sent to Gov. LaFollette and legislators the league reports that even though the state has been spending $70,000,000 a year on roads it would take 15 more years to concrete the state trunk highway system if no replacements were necessary, and it insists there will be replacements. The league declares that the most pressing need is to relieve property owners of the present burden of highway taxes. It advocates repeal of the personal property tax on automobiles substituting another cent of gasoline tax to supply revenue for the local units of government. It also advocates another cent of gas taxes for the relief of local highway tax burdens. It is asking the naming of a state committee to study such questions as to whether the state can afford to continue a general concrete highway program and then permit heavy freight trucks to break them up. It points out that the more trucks are encouraged on the highways to compete with railroads the higher railroad rates will go. It suggests a study be made to determine whether it isn't real economy to build cheaper roads and curb the heavy freight trucks.

If sentiment of legislators interviewed here recently is any indication, the coming legislature will pass a bill to permit the formation of power districts. Municipalities can now operate their own electric plants but they cannot combine into a larger district where they will benefit by mass production economies.

The legislature also seems set to repeal the law passed at the last session of the legislature prohibiting ice fishing from Jan. 1 to spring. Madison has petitioned the legislature to repeal the ice fishing ban as a relief to unemployed. The conservation commission will not oppose removing the ice fishing restrictions.

Upwards of a half million dollars in additional taxes may be collected from Wisconsin Telephone companies if a bill being drafted by Assemblyman Edward F. Hilker, Racine, is enacted into law. Mr. Hilker said that he had spent the past several days in Madison making a check of the situation and one of the first bills he will offer will be a measure which will tax telephone companies upon the same basis as other utilities are now taxed.

A 12 per cent drop in the price of chickens has been met by an 18 per cent drop in the number of people sent to penal institutions in Wisconsin for chicken stealing. The growing farm loss through chicken for the greatest possible number of people.

thieves led to the enactment of a special law against chicken stealing two years ago. While the law may be a factor in cutting down chicken stealing activities, the lower price for fowl has made a less profitable venture of night prowling on farm yards.

Although regular republicans will have a slight margin in the state senate there are strong indications that progressives will organize the upper house when it meets on Jan. 14. Two of the regular republican senators have prospect that more of them will vote with the administration on this point.

DIRGE FOR THE YEAR

By Percy Bysshe Shelley

Orphan hours, the year is dead,
Come and sigh, come and weep!
Merry hours, smile instead,
For the year is but asleep.
See, it smiles as it is sleeping,
Mocking your untimely weeping.
As an earthquake rocks a corpse
In its coffin in the clay,
So white Winter, that rough nurse,
Rocks the dead-cold year to-day;
Solemn hours! wail aloud
For your mother in her shroud.

As the wild air stirs and sways
The tree-sung cradle of a child,
So the breath of these days
Rocks the year—be calm and mild,
Trembling hours; she will arise
With new love within her eyes.

January gray is here,
Like a sexton by her grave;
February bears the bier;
March with grief doth howl and rave,
And April weeps—but, O, ye hours,
Follow with May's fairest flowers.

EXCESSIVE AMOUNTS OF ROUGHAGE NOT NECESSARY

By PROF. W. B. KRUECK

In some sections where good roughage is extremely high in price dairymen may welcome the idea that the amount of dry roughage for dairy cows can be reduced to some extent without materially affecting the condition of the cows. Where silage, is available and the feeder has been in the habit of feeding ten or twelve lbs. of dry roughage along with silage, no ill effects should be obtained and milk production should be maintained even though the dry roughage be reduced to five or six pounds, provided a reasonable amount of silage is fed.

It seems that a certain amount of dry roughage is quite essential where silage is being used. However, bovine animals were kept on feed without any difficulty where silage was used as the principal roughage, providing a small quantity of dry roughage was fed continuously.

Furthermore, some interesting experimental work that has been conducted in England, seems to have demonstrated that the period of usefulness of a dairy cow is somewhat prolonged by limited feeding of roughage.

The feeder, however, should keep in mind the physical effect of the roughage upon the animal's system. If dry roughages are fed that are inclined to be similar to straw or timothy hay and not laxative in their effect upon the digestive tract of the animal, the grain ration should be adjusted accordingly.

Where silage is being fed, however, normally no adjustment is necessary, due to the fact that the silage is normally sufficiently laxative to keep the animals in good condition.

It is more important, however, that dairymen check up carefully on their herds and see that they come into winter conditions in good flesh. The hot summers and dry pastures have had a tendency to lower the reserve of the average dairy cow in a great many sections.

If these cows go into winter quarters in a lowered condition, it is go-

Fagoting may be done with ribbon, flat braid or bias strips of material, or with ready-made seam binding. If you use the strips of material, cut them on a true bias wide enough so that after they have been turned in about an eighth of an inch at the edge the strip is of the required width. Having got the ribbon braid or strips of the desired width trace off on heavy paper the butterfly design shown in the sketch. Baste the strips in place, turning sharply at the corners. Next overhanding done with thread to match the strips.

Simple fagot stitch is used here. To do this, thread a needle with buttonhole twist or twisted embroidery cotton, begin at the left side of two rows of strips and work from left to right, then from right to left, recrossing at even intervals along the edge of the bands of ribbon. The twist in the thread is obtained by passing the thread of each stitch under that of the preceding stitch. If you have never done fagoting before, you had best experiment a little on scraps of material to perfect yourself in the technique of the stitch, which is not at all difficult.

The total production of Wisconsin oat crop last year, was estimated at 108,680,000 bushels as compared with 85,215,000 bushels last year, or an increase of 17 per cent.

Try a want ad—it pays!

The average yield of corn for grain in Wisconsin was estimated at 39 bushels as compared with 40 bushels a year ago, the hot weather while reducing stock growth having been favorable to grain production.

MAIN STREET LOOKS AT BROADWAY BY ERNEST CAMP JR

NEW YORK.—Einstein is coming to New York.

He is the guy who took the universe apart and figured out what made it tick. Then he tried to explain it to the rest of the world. Now it is a bigger mystery than cafeteria hash.

Thus we have two mysteries—the universe and Einstein's vocabulary. He takes the tissue-paper lawn mower when it comes to originality. He uses words that have never been used before.

The best gag of the Unemployment Era is about the sheriff who mounted on his window a sign, "Murderer Wanted."

ANONYMOUS

A columnist's life is just one silly thing after another. For example, an unsigned letter in this morning's mail, sent by one of my comical friends. It consisted of a single sheet of stationery upon which was pasted a photo, clipped from a newspaper, of a dopey-looking moron in horn-rimmed spectacles.

The deep, villainous idea seems to be that the aforementioned gent resembles me, or vice versa. Over the photo was the caption, "Confesses Slaying." Typewritten underneath was this comment:

"What the Hell will you be doing next?"

QUICK, THE FLIT

I shall be obliged to close this week's little coughing spell almost any minute now. Bingo, aged four, from Apartment No. 1, has just romped in, clumping an immense sail boat, all drippy wet, on the sofa.

He has found a jar of glace candy, and each check is ballooned with a raspberry jaw-breaker, very much like the It-Ain't-Toothache-It's-Climate ads.

Now he is taking them from his mouth, all sticky, and gleefully trying to drop them down my collar.

Signing off, folks. I've got to defend myself.

RECORD YOURSELF

A mid-town movie palace features in its lobby a tiny booth where one may, for 25 cents, make a phonograph record of his own voice. Of course I fell for it. Talking through a microphone the first time makes you feel as important as a bootlegger on convention day.

Another idiosyncrasy (don't trouble yourself, I've just looked it up) is that I like to write with a phonograph bawling at my back.

(Voice: Maybe changing the record would help.)

Farm and Home Lines

Walter Ebling, agricultural statistician for Wisconsin, tells us that when the production of all crops for Wisconsin is compared we find that the yield for 1930 was one-half of one per cent above the ten-year average.

This, in itself, may not look like a big year but when we consider that the United States crop yields were about nine percent below the ten-year average, it becomes clear that Wisconsin fared quite well in 1930.

Out of the thirty-five crops which statisticians credit to Wisconsin twenty-four showed declines in value in 1930, as compared with 1929, seven showed increases, and four showed no change.

A Dollar Dinner For Four

If you lived down by the sea and pulled your fish out of the water, if you had a little garden in your back-yard and pulled lettuce and green things from the soil—living would be simple, wouldn't it?

If you live in the city—well, it needn't be so complex. Just 'phone the grocer for salmon, fresh-caught from the sea, in cans, and string beans fresh-gathered from the garden, and fresher in cans than in the market. Pay him one dollar for a dinner like this, to serve four persons. That's simple enough, isn't it?

- Creamed Salmon and Celery 22¢
 - Sautéed Hominy 10¢
 - Stringless Beans 16¢
 - Lettuce Salad 10¢
 - Bread and Butter 8¢
 - Cottage Cheese Custard 30¢
 - Coffee 4¢
- Creamed Salmon and Celery: Make a white sauce of two tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons
- Sautéed Hominy: Drain one-half of a No. 2½ can of hominy and sauté gently in two tablespoons of butter in a skillet until a golden brown. Season to taste with salt and pepper and pile the hominy around the salmon.
- Cottage Cheese Custard: Beat two eggs slightly, add one cup of diluted evaporated milk, four tablespoons of sugar and one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Add one cup of cottage cheese, working until smooth. Pour into custard cups, set in a pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven, 325 degrees, until a knife comes out clean, or for about thirty to forty-five minutes. Serve cold.

Tomato Juice

WHEN you say good-bye to fresh fruits—the peaches and cherries, pears and plums—and all of the others that have been supplying you their health-giving vitamins throughout the winter months—do you provide an adequate substitute for these benefactors, so essential during the winter months when your sunshine and vitamin supply is decreased and therefore your vitality lowered?

Tomatoes are an excellent answer. For the big red ripe juicy tomatoes were picked from the vines and put into cans for us in such a way that scientists have assured us that practically none of their valuable vitamin content has been lost. And they taste better than the fresh tomatoes you ate during the summer, unless you had your own tomato garden and picked them direct from the vine. For canned tomatoes are sun-ripened fruit that is rushed from vine to cannery before their succulent juices are lost.

For Guest of Honor Dinner

Tomato cocktails are among the smartest drinks to serve at a luncheon or late supper. Tomato juice, slightly salted and served with chopped ice as an appetizer for the family dinner adds zest to the entire meal. Just run canned tomatoes through the colander if you have a moment's time, and reserve the pulp for meat or spaghetti sauces, or, if you prefer, buy the juice ready-canned—it is the same delicious juice and you save a moment in time. It is very good served with one or two cheese wafers—the toasted cheesy kind.*

Did you ever stop to think

EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Okla.

Has it ever occurred to you that an advertisement in a newspaper is inserted for the benefit of the advertiser and not as a favor to the newspaper?

"Not so very many years ago most small newspapers, weekly and daily, begged for advertising and received advertising from bankers and merchants who gave it and at the same time impressed the editor that it was a favor to him.

"Nowadays the newspaper which would accept an advertisement on these terms is not worth the name of a newspaper.

"The merchant or the manufacturer or the man who inserts a Want Ad is not doing it from any philanthropic motive. He expects results. If the advertisement brings in the business or sells a cow or an automobile, it pays for itself many times over.

"Has it ever occurred to you as a newspaper publisher that to ask for an advertisement as a favor is to admit that the advertisement in your paper is not worth a thing from a business standpoint?

"Has it ever occurred to you as an advertiser that when you get mad and stop your advertisement in any newspaper you are not hurting the paper, but that you are taking money out of your own cash drawer and hurting your own business. If this is not true you are foolish to run an advertisement of any kind at any price.

"The newspaper can afford very handsly not to run your advertisement, but you cannot afford not to advertise.

"It is an old story in which the subscriber writes, 'Stop Your Paper,' and is then very much surprised to discover that while you do not send the paper to his address, the paper has not stopped but is somehow getting along without his subscription."

Ben, Elmer, and Harold Lundt and Victor Meech drove to Madison Monday where they attended the inauguration of Gov. LaFollette and other state officers. Following the inaugural ceremonies they attended the reception by Governor and Mrs. LaFollette, Senator John Blaine and Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Henry Huber.

DAIRY INSTITUTE TO BE HELD AT WHITEWATER

A cooperative marketing institute on dairy products is scheduled for Whitewater, January 22-23, according to Mr. John Cooper, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

A large part of the farm income in the territory surrounding Whitewater comes from the sale of dairy products, and this institute will deal with the possibilities of increasing farm income through cooperative marketing.

With each new drop in the price of milk and dairy products, business men as well as farmers become interested, Mr. Luther, Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes, states, because as farmers have their buying power decreased, business likewise suffers. Therefore, anything that will help solve the present economic depression is something in which everyone interested in Whitewater and the surrounding territory will be vitally concerned.

An invitation is extended to all dairymen in the district, and especially those patronizing a condenser, to be held each day, beginning early, to be present at all the sessions. Two sessions will be held each day, beginning at 10 A. M. and 1 P. M. and closing at 3:30 to permit farmers to return home in time for the evening work.

There is no substitute for newspaper advertising.
