CAPPER AWARDS BABCOCK FOR UNSELFISH SERVICE

Several months ago, Arthur Capper, Kansas senator, farmer and newspaper editor, established an award of $5,000 to be presented annually to the person rendering distinguished service to agriculture. He appointed a committee of eight of the most representative type of men in the United States to select the one man to whom the award should go. The chairman of this committee was Frank O. Lowden, president of the American Country Life association and a farmer. This committee chose Stephen Moulton Babcock, agricultural scientist of Wisconsin, who invented the centrifugal milk testing machine 40 years ago. They based their choice on the fact that the dairy industry now exceeds any other agricultural industry because of the discovery of the Babcock tester which in turn influenced farmers to change from growing grains to raising cows. This is, in the opinion of the committee, true because whatever tends to increase the dairy industry also has the highest value in the conservation of the soil.

"When Dr. Babcock invented that great milk testing apparatus, there were two courses open to him," points out Lowden. "He could have patented it and provided himself with a private fortune or he could turn it over to the world for the use of every farmer. He unselfishly chose to have humanity benefit from his discovery. Honor came to him from foreign lands as well as from every corner of his own country. We are his debtor many times."

At the presentation of the award by Senator Capper at one of the sessions of the Country Life conference at Madison last week, it was brought out that there are two eras in the dairy industry. The first era was from the beginning of agricultural history and lasted until 1890. The second began with the discovery of the Babcock test for butterfat in milk. From the "rule of thumb" style of dairying before that discovery 40 years ago to the modern trend of the highly scientific methods now used everywhere by farmers—the line of the Babcock influence is distinctly marked, points out Lowden.

"The prize which has been awarded to Dr. Babcock by the committee for Mr. Capper was given by the unanimous choice of the committee. In the coming years, others who have done outstanding service to agriculture will receive a similar recognition and," points out Lowden, "they will appreciate it all the more because the first award was made to Stephen Moulton Babcock."

COMMISSION ANNOUNCES PRAIRIE CHICKEN MOVIE

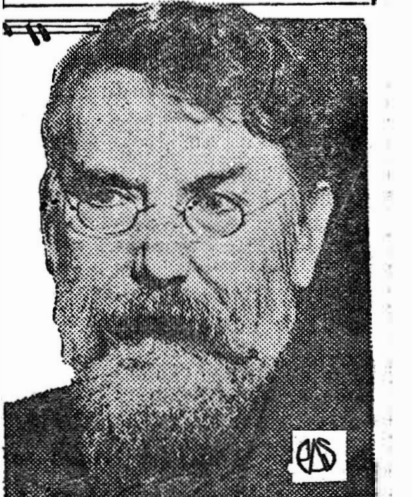

Practically the complete life history of the prairie chicken, one of Wisconsin's finest native game birds, is portrayed in a new two-reel moving picture which will be available for distribution by the conservation commission on October 20. The reels will be distributed through the university bureau of visual instruction and may be had by any group in the state for showing.

The pictures were taken by the conservation commission last summer in the central plains district, principally in Wauasha and Wood counties. Close-up views from two to six feet are shown of wild prairie chickens and there are many hatching scenes and pictures of young chicks.

One of the most interesting shots in the entire picture is of a prairie chicken pecking its way out of the egg which has been placed on the tray of a weighing scale.

This picture, which is entitled "The Wisconsin Prairie Chicken," was taken as part of the prairie chicken investigation. Ultimately there will be a four-reel picture but these first two are complete in themselves.

WE GROW HEALTHIER

Here is good news for a country suffering from stock market crashes and other economic ills. Physically, the past year has been an exceptionally healthy one, the public health service reports. Although the whole world shared in this well-being, the United States was particularly fortunate in its freedom from sickness and death.

One of the most striking evidences of our improved health is the decline of diphtheria. During the first five years of the present century, this disease took an average toll of 29.6 persons per 100,000 population. An average of only 6.5 deaths for the same population was reported in 1929. Yellow fever, which once swept a panic-stricken country with devastating swiftness, did not put in an appearance in America during the year. Cholera was absent in continental United States, although it broke out in Manila and on several islands in the archipelago.

Not one case of human plague was reported in either the United States or its possessions. However, plague-infected squirrels were discovered in California, and the public health service has taken occasion to sound a warning lest proper precautions against infection be disregarded. Both the death rate and the birth rate have declined during the past year, but the latter still has a large margin over the former.

THEY FOLLOW THEIR FATHERS

When Philip La Follette won the Republican nomination for governor of Wisconsin, he added one more name to the list of sons and daughters who are following the trails blazed by their famous fathers. The Wisconsin gubernatorial nominee has a brother, Robert La Follette, Jr., who has held the senior senatorship from his state for the past five years. Their father served as governor and as senator from Wisconsin during his lifetime.

Senator Frederick Hale of Maine, who fills the same place his father, Eugene Hale, filled years ago, is also the grandson of the late Zachariah Chandler of Michigan, a member of the senate for almost a generation. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the "Great Commoner," has served one term in the house of representatives and will undoubtedly be re-elected by her Florida constituents this fall. The late Senator John Bankhead of Alabama, has one son in the house and another running for the senate. Mark Hanna's daughter, Ruth McCormick, after one term in the house, is now aspiring in Illinois to a senatorial toga as worn by her father.

But one of the most remarkable lines of succession is that of the Bayard family of Delaware. Former Senator Thomas Bayard, who is now trying to come back to the senate, once stated in the Congressional Directory that his father, Thomas Francis Bayard; his grandfather, James Asheton Bayard; his great-uncle, Richard Henry Bayard; his great-grandfather, James Asheton Bayard, and his great, great grandfather, Richard Bassett, had each served as United States senator from Delaware. That is almost as extraordinary as the Adams family of Massachusetts whose members have handed down from one generation to the next a record of statesmanship unique in our history.

ANOTHER STRAW

When Germany arranged for her autumn military maneuvers she invited representatives of Britain, Italy and the United States to act as official observers. France, Belgium and Poland were not invited. The French press naturally criticized this omission. One paper declared that by neglecting to invite these nations, "Germany already designates her adversaries of tomorrow."

The French quite overlooked the fact that France had several years ago, by negotiating and signing military treaties of alliance with Belgium and Poland, already designated her allies of tomorrow, so, they have no reason to complain if Germany and other nations act accordingly.

THE DIGNITY OF A GREAT BODY

We notice that ex-President Coolidge in one of his daily newspaper articles declared that the investigating of campaign expenses was not a dignified spectacle. He thought the use of detectives against candidates would not "comport with the dignity of a great deliberative body." The trouble with this view-point is that it ignores answering the question whether a candidate with money who goes out and tries to buy a seat in that great deliberative body adds to its dignity and reputation.

This is the time of the year that hunters begin to outlie fishermen.

State News

By Fred L. Holmes

Madison, Wis., Oct. 15.—Taxes raised by all branches of government within Wisconsin during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, were $184,120,797, an increase of $11,434,482, or 6.6 per cent more than in the year before, the state tax commission announces. All important types of taxes except inheritance taxes showed increases.

General property tax levies increased $4,733,394; railroad and other public utility taxes increased $1,813,145; income taxes increased $3,564,290; motor vehicle license fees and gasoline taxes increased $1,433,871, and other special taxes increased $128,685.

Of the total of all taxes the state received about one-fourth or $47,399,146. This included all state tax revenues for highways, the university, normal schools and other educational functions, for charitable and penal institutions, for state aid and all other state activities. The counties received about one-third or $36,651,065; the towns, villages, and cities received about one-third or $64,543,082, and the local schools received about one-fifth or $35,527,504. The state returned to other subdivisions about two-fifths of all its receipts in the form of state aids.

The tax commission also announced a drop of $79,520,787 in the total property assessment of the state compared with the year before. The total property assessment was $5,896,431,628.

C. M. Yoder, for ten years on the faculty of Whitewater State Teachers' College, was named president of that institution by the board of normal regents, succeeding F. S. Hyer, who was transferred to the presidency of Stevens Point Teachers' College. The presidency of the Oshkosh Teachers' College still remains unfilled.

The Republican state central committee is opening its campaign this week and scheduled the first speeches of the Republican campaign. Robert F. La Follette, the Republican nominee for governor, makes his first speech of the final election campaign at Chilton on Wednesday.

Prof. B. H. Hibbard at a session here declared that property taxes are "archaic" and that more of the tax burden should be placed on incomes. He declared that the farmer is not paying according to his ability to pay but at least double that rate while much of the taxpaying ability of other classes is barely touched. He declared that this is the result of making property taxes the basic tax measure. Any objection to taxes on cosmetics, amusements, radios, etc., are minor compared with the present practice of taxing farmers out of house and home, Professor Hibbard said.

The other view point on taxation was presented by J. J. Phoenix, Delavan manufacturer, who declared that the state has grown slower than the average national growth largely because of the state's fight over the tax question. The industrial progress that has been made in Wisconsin was in spite of the state's policies rather than because of any state encouragement, he said.

Dr. Stephen Moulton Babcock, 87 years old, of the university, who 40 years ago invented his test by which the amount of butterfat in milk could be easily told, was given the Capper award of $5,000. It was pointed out that had Dr. Babcock wanted to patent his Babcock test he would have become a millionaire out of the proceeds but that he preferred to give his test to the world free. The $5,000 check given to him by Senator Arthur C. Capper of Kansas, was the first financial reward he received for his invention.

Whether Wisconsin's next governor is to have the power to veto part of appropriation bills without killing the entire measure will be decided by the voters at the election on November 4. The vote will decide whether the constitution is to be amended to permit partial vetoing of bills. The question is the only referendum to take place this year.

Both labor and the medical profession will oppose the making of court rules and procedure by the supreme court instead of the legislature at a hearing in the supreme court on October 30.

The last legislature passed a law to permit the supreme court to make the changes in the rules of evidence, practice and pleadings; the two organizations will contend that this is unconstitutional. One of the important changes to be advocated is to shorten the time for court appeals from a year to six months. The other would compel physicians to testify against the wishes of their patients. Physicians argue that if they are forced to testify patients will be less frank with them and that the profession will be handicapped in diagnosing and treating patients. Labor will argue that public interest is better protected if the legislature and not

HOUSING PULLETS FOR WINTER PRODUCTION

By J. H. Bodwell

The big problem in housing pullets for winter production is not only to maintain the body weight already attained on the range, but to add more weight.

The good dairyman, long ago, found that the cow that was kept in good condition during her "dry period" would give more milk throughout her milking period than if she was in poor condition before she freshened.

The same principle holds true with pullets that are just beginning to lay. Unless we put them in good condition and keep them in good weight they may go into a moult which may necessitate a six to eight week's resting period before they come back into production.

How are we going to do it? First, we must make the laying house clean and comfortable. That means to have enough roosts, hoppers, and water fountains in the house; have the house well ventilated without any direct draughts, and do not put too many birds in a pen.

Second, free the birds of lice, mites and worms before putting them into the laying house.

Remember, a bird eats only about two pounds of feed per week and if she lays at the rate of 50 per cent, the eggs will about one-half pound per week. If she has to feed thousands of parasites, besides, she is bound to lose weight, which will mean her body weight cannot be maintained.

When the change from range to laying house is made, extra care must be exercised to see that does gain in weight. This can be done by darkening the house for a few days to keep them from being restless; by supplying plenty of green feed; by using more hoppers at first and by giving a wet mash once a day mixed in milk or water to insure more consumption of food. If the birds are rather thin, have this wet mash consist of a fattening mixture rather than the regular growing mash. Also a greater proportion of scratch grains should be used at this time to help put on the good firm flesh.

We should always remember that a hen will not produce eggs without a good supply of feed any more than a windmill will work without a good breeze.

Still Following The Star

By Albert T. Reid

"How long you in jail fo', Mose?" "Two weeks." "What am de ch'ge?" "No ch'ge, everything am free." "Ah mean, what has you did?" "Done shot my wife." "You killed yo' wife and only in jail fo' two weeks?" "Dat's all—den I gets hung."

Manure mixed immediately with the soil by discing or plowing after it is put on the field is more effective than that allowed to be exposed to the air for a time. The newest scientific discoveries in the field of agriculture are included in the various related subjects studied by short course students at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. Rice, macaroni, or noodles may sometimes be used as a substitute for potatoes. They may be cooked in boiling salt water and then served plain, or buttered, or with buttered bread crumbs.

NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that at said general election the following proposed amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin, which has been approved by two succeeding legislatures and duly published for three months, will be submitted to a vote of the electors in manner provided by law, to-wit: (Jt. Res. No. 40, S.) JOINT RESOLUTION No. 43, 1929. To amend section 10 of article V of the constitution, relating to the approval of bills by the governor, and to submit this amendment to a vote of the people at the general election in November, 1930. WHEREAS, At the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1927, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows: "(Article V) Section 10. Every bill which shall have passed the legislature shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor; if he approve, he shall sign it, but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to that house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large upon the journal and proceed to reconsider it. APPROPRIATION BILLS MAY BE APPROVED IN WHOLE OR IN PART BY THE GOVERNOR, AND THE PART APPROVED SHALL BECOME LAW, AND THE PART OBJECTED TO SHALL BE RETURNED IN THE SAME MANNER AS PROVIDED FOR OTHER BILLS. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of the members present shall agree to pass the bill, OR THE PART OF THE BILL OBJECTED TO, IT SHALL BE SENT, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of the members present it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the members voting for or against the bill OR THE PART OF THE BILL OBJECTED TO, shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within six days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law unless the legislature shall, by their adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law." RESOLVED BY THE SENATE, THE ASSEMBLY CONCURRING.

That the foregoing amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature; and be it further RESOLVED, That the foregoing proposed amendment be submitted to vote of the people at the general election in November, 1930, and if the people will approve and ratify said amendment by a majority of the electors voting thereon such amendment so ratified shall become a part of the constitution of this state. NOTE.—If this amendment is ratified the governor will be authorized to approve appropriation bills in part and to veto them in part. I, THEODORE DAMMANN, Secretary of State of the State of Wisconsin, DO HEREBY CERTIFY that the above and foregoing proposed constitutional amendment, known as Joint Resolution No. 43 of 1929, has been compared by me with original enrolled joint resolution on file in this department and that the same is a true copy thereof and of the whole of such joint resolution. Given under my hand and official seal at the County Court House in the City of Waukesha, this fifteenth day of September, A. D. 1930. (Seal) WILLIAM KOEHLER, County Clerk.

A HUNDRED YEARS TO COME

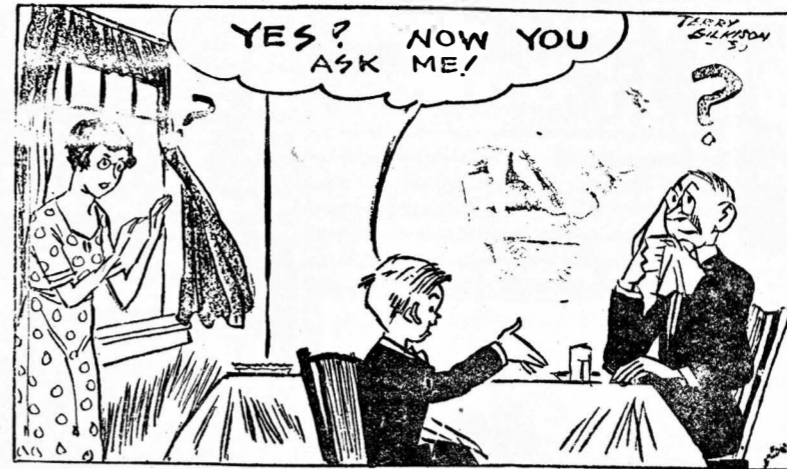

Oh, where will be the birds that sing, A hundred years to come? The flowers that now in beauty spring, A hundred years to come? The rosy lip, the lofty brow, The heart that beats so gaily now,— Oh, where will be love's beaming eye, Joy's pleasant smile, and sorrow's sigh, A hundred years to come? Who'll press for gold this crowded street, A hundred years to come? Who'll tread yon church with willing feet, A hundred years to come? Pale, trembling age, and fiery youth, And childhood with its brow of truth, The rich and poor, on land and sea,— Where will the mighty millions be, A hundred years to come? We all within our graves shall sleep, A hundred years to come; No living soul for us will weep A hundred years to come; But other men our lands shall till, And others then our streets shall fill, While other birds shall sing as gay, As bright the sunshine as to-day, A hundred years to come!

A NEW LINE

"Give me Main 4321. * * * Hello, this the wife?" "Yes." "Listen, Dear. Will it be all right if I bring a couple of fellows home for dinner tonight?" "Why, certainly." "What!" "Certainly it will. I'd be glad to have them." "Oh! Pardon me, lady. Wrong number!" Gunman: "Put your hands up, or I'll shoot." (Drunk raises one hand.) Gunman: "Get 'em both up." "Drunk: "Hic—it's all right—I'm half shot already." the supreme court makes court rules. Thirty states bought dairy cattle from Wisconsin during September. As usual, Illinois was our best customer, taking 35 per cent of our exports. New Jersey was second with 20 per cent, followed by Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland. These shipments of dairy cattle out of Wisconsin to other states in September showed an increase of 2,925 head over the month of August.

Bull Men

I AM getting old enough now so that some of the little acorns which I saw planted are beginning to show up as quite sizeable oaks.

For example, there was an office boy in the place where I worked after leaving college. He was not a bright office boy. We did not think that he would ever amount to very much. He did not think so himself. He had none of the Vision which we read about. He just kept on keeping on.

Well, the other day I picked up a trade paper, and there was a big photograph of our ex-office boy, and the announcement that he had just been elected president of a rather important company.

As years go on, and the business of the country expands, his company will expand with it, for he will be a careful administrator. And some day his associates will give him a dinner and hail him as a great leader, and his picture will be hung in the Board Room.

Perhaps you have read Mr. Woodward's biography of General Grant. If so, you remember that he stood low in his classes at West Point, and was later discharged from the army. When the Civil War broke out he was such a failure that his letter offering his services to his country was not even answered by the War Department.

The army was full of more brilliant men. Halleck, for instance, knew all about tactics. In any crisis he could tell just what Napoleon would have done. McClellan had a touch of genius. What did Grant have?

He had a superstition. When he started out on anything he hated to turn back. It applied even to small things. If, when he left the house in the mornings, he found he had forgotten something he never retraced his steps. Always he went forward. And when he came to command armies he did the same thing. Doggedly, ploddingly, but inexorably he pushed ahead.

When I was in college, the President said, "Henry Ward Beecher, when a student in Amherst College, stood at, or near, the foot of his class. Nearly a hundred years have passed, and Amherst College has produced no second Henry Ward Beecher, though many men have stood at, or near, the foot of their class."

Just being dull, or standing at the foot of the class, is no assurance of success, of course. On the other hand, it is nothing to be discouraged about—a fact of which I see more evidence almost every day.

FIRST BOY TO JOIN FISHER BODY GUILD

James Eagan of Muscoda Leads Boys Entering Scholarship Contest

James Eagan of Muscoda was the first boy in Wisconsin to enroll in the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild, which is sponsoring a nationwide program to develop better craftsmanship among boys.

More than 900 awards, valued at $50,000 and including four university scholarships, will be given to boys who build the best models of a miniature Napoleonic coach. The awards will be made by renowned educators along technical lines who have endorsed the Guild movement.

Any boy in the United States between the ages of 12 and 19 years inclusive is eligible for membership in the Guild. Enrollment blanks may be secured at any General Motors dealer. As soon as these blanks have been received by the Fisher Body Corporation in Detroit, a membership button and complete working plans for modeling a coach will be forwarded to the boy.

Owing to the wide age range, two class divisions have been formed. One is a junior group comprised of boys from 12 to 15 inclusive and the other a senior group composed of boys from 16 to 19 inclusive. Awards will be divided equally between the two divisions, two scholarships going to the juniors and two to the seniors.

In addition to the scholarship awards, trips to Detroit will be presented to the boy in each class in each state whose model is adjudged the best in the state. Further awards in cash will be made to the builders of the second best coach model in each division in each state, and for individual merit on particular parts of the model building, such as woodcraft, metalcraft, trimcraft and paintcraft.

Very Latests

By Mary Marshall

Little jackets of the sort shown in the sketch are always useful and becoming in baby's wardrobe but with the present vogue of bolero effects and the renewed endorsement of boleros by the French dressmakers for autumn it seems to us that baby stands in special need of a little jacket of this sort.

If you want to make a gift to the new baby or the baby who is about to celebrate her six months' birthday you might make a jacket of blue or pink French flannel finished around the edge with scallops worked in the same contrasting color. If you prefer you may turn the edge in at hem and featherstitch it, or you may bind it with ribbon.

Appropriate for the very little boy or the very little girl is a light blue flannel jacket with a hand embroidered scallop of light pink silk, like the one pictured.

"There is a happy land, far, far away." Bring it nearer.

The world subsisted on rumors before there were newspapers.

Words burn wounds if they are the manifestation of dislike within.

GRAIN PRICES DUE TO BEGIN UPWARD TREND

By Kurtis R. Froedtert

A preacher was once asked by another whether he ever lingered around his congregation after services to discover just what they had to say about his sermon. He said he did just once, but never again. Now I am just wondering what some of you readers of your progressive little paper, The Enterprise, think of my articles. Perhaps if I heard some of your comments I probably would never want to write another but don't be afraid to criticize them because I love constructive criticism, so if you have anything to say let's have it. It is always better to do it that way than to carry a chip on your shoulder.

On October 9th the New York Stock Exchange announced the suspension of the brokerage firm of Prince & Whitely, for insolvency. This firm was one of the largest and oldest brokerage houses on Wall Street. It maintained offices not only in New York but practically all over the country, both in grain and the security division, and coming immediately after the failure of J. A. Siste & Co., another large brokerage firm, I regret this failure as one of the most serious in the last decade. First of all, Prince & Whitely were one of the oldest brokerage houses on Wall Street. Of course their collapse does not help the situation, and further let me say that I expect additional failures.

Now, what will be the result? Nothing less than a decided break in all securities, as well as all grains, especially so in some special issues which certain houses carry, which may still fail. Personally I don't like to see this because it upsets general conditions.

Prince & Whitely were also members of the Chicago Board of Trade and, of course, you have heard of Chicago. The site where Chicago now looks out on Lake Michigan at one time was the habitation of a small number of men and, as the story goes, many years ago a steam boat was seen in the distance and the report was that it contained a cargo of women, who were coming to the desolate place for the purpose of being married to the forlorn men. As the steam boat approached the shores of this isolated spot every bachelor hastened to the pier with a telescope in one hand to select his mate and a speaking trumpet in the other to make his proposal and consequently, in honor to the women who made this venturesome voyage, the infant city was named "She Cargo" and has been that way ever since and it is in this place, now known as Chicago, that there is a great big stock market and grain market and it is in this place that they have been hammering the daylight out of both stocks and grains.

If you will recall my past articles you will remember that I have consistently stated that grain prices for some time are going lower and that I made the remark that the worst is yet to come. Well, we are right in the middle of it, and when the month of October is past you will find, already in the first week of November, higher prices in grains than we have today. Take my advice and buy whatever feed you need for your winter supply now, as it will cost you more later on.

On Tuesday, Oct. 14, oats of good feeding quality sold in the Milwaukee market for 34-1-2c per bushel; No. 3 yellow corn sold for 81c per bushel; good feeding barley sold for 50c per bushel, and malting barley sold for 65c per bushel.

Now just put these prices down on a slip of paper and hide it back of your kitchen clock. About next February, when the snow is up to your housetops, resurrect this slip and see what grains are then bringing in the Milwaukee market. Do this just for your own satisfaction. Don't believe me—just try it.

Wheat, corn and oats will have another break of about five to eight cents per bushel and then look out.

Even Farms Have To Be Fed - - -

By C. J. CHAPMAN,
Wisconsin College of Agriculture

We all know that crops the same as live stock need food to produce worth while returns.

Yet some of us try to grow crops on land exhausted of all plant food, such as nitrogen, phosphorus potash and lime. Attempting to make profits on such soil I have found, is much like putting green glasses on a cow, feeding her sawdust, and expecting 10,000 pounds of milk. It can't be done.

Although we return stable manure to the land, there is a constant drain on the mineral resources of the soil. Many soils contain practically no available plant food—poor yields and immature crops result.

By knowing the vital plant foods your soil needs, you know how to grow bigger crops and get plenty of rich home grown feed. It's really very simple to know the needs of your land. Just drop a line to the STATE SOILS LABORATORY, Wisconsin College of Agriculture, Madison, and ask for detailed information on an individual farm soil survey. Write today and know their way of restoring life and richness to your fields.

Another article by Mr. Chapman on improving the soil will appear in an early issue.
