

VETERAN BUREAU GROWING RAPIDLY

Billion a Year Concern, With Costs Mounting.

Washington.—Renewed agitation for the passage of legislation permitting World war veterans to borrow the remaining 50 per cent of the value of their bonus insurance certificates served to focus attention on the tremendous growth in recent years of the funds expended by the war veterans' administration.

Testimony delivered before the house appropriations committee by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, disclosed that the veterans' administration is now a billion dollars a year concern with expenditures still growing. His figures revealed that in 1933 the veterans' administrator expected to expend in excess of a billion dollars on administration of veterans' matters, payments to beneficiaries, on adjusted compensation certificates, hospitalization and other activities.

During the past twelve years the independent establishment handling veterans' matters has expanded by leaps and bounds until today it is estimated it will take 40,000 civilian employees to care for the interests of the hundreds of thousands of veterans now receiving aid from the government in one form or another. During the next fiscal year this department will utilize facilities at more than 300 hospitals and furnish beds for in excess of 63,000 patients.

Build New Hospitals. With the approximately billion dollar appropriation, which it now seems assured of receiving, new hospitals will be built, new beds provided, approximately a million veterans given treatment of some kind, or funds for some particular reason, loans made to other veterans on bonus certificates, compensation paid to disabled veterans and salaries paid to the army of employees.

In event legislation is passed permitting the veterans to cash the full value of their compensation certificates another two billion dollars would be added to the sum which the veterans' administration would handle in the next few years.

The big items in the veterans' administration bill as requested for 1933 by General Hines follow:

Administration, medical, hospital and domiciliary services, $116,000,000.

Army and navy pensions, $225,000,000.

Adjusted service certificate fund, $150,000,000.

Military and naval service, $110,000,000.

In his budget message President Hoover asked $1,000,000,000 for veterans' administration affairs, approximately one-fourth of the entire federal budget.

Of this sum $150,000,000 was for use in making loans to veterans on their bonus certificates. The house appropriations committee cut this figure to $94,237,795. Virtually no cut was made at all inasmuch as the $50,000,000 reduction was effected by cutting down the figure for bonus payments with the definite understanding General Hines can go to congress to get this sum, if it is needed, in a deficiency bill next December.

As of December 31, 1931, 42,225 veterans whose hospitalization was authorized by the veterans' administration were receiving treatment. Three hundred and twenty-two hospitals were utilized: 64 by the administration itself, 216 belonging to state and civil institutions, 17 to the public health service, 16 to the United States navy, 7 to the United States army, and 2 to the Department of the Interior.

On December 21, 1931, the veterans' administration was afforded domiciliary care for 17,210 additional veterans. During the 1931 year the department treated 850,460 out patients and gave 2,148,432 physical examinations.

As of December 31, 1931, 318,114 veterans were receiving compensation for disability incurred in, resulting from, or aggravated by military service during the World war. Compensation was also being paid to the dependents of 97,543 veterans whose death occurred in, or resulted from service in the World war. The amount of compensation payments, depending upon the degree of disability, ranges from $8 per month for a temporary partial condition to $200 per month for what is known as a double permanent and total disability.

General Hines said the number of active awards for disability compensation has increased by 135,024 since June 20, 1923.

A big increase in the number of those receiving benefits for disability resulting from other than military and naval service was recorded last year.

CATS AND CANARIES

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men,
University of Illinois.

It takes a good deal to give a young person a thrill today. They are so fed up daily upon amusement that it is only the unusual and the extreme thing which can give them a sensation of delight or interest.

Once a rag doll or a branch of a tree cut into the semblance of a horse would throw a child into an ecstasy of imagination and delight. Not so today. It requires a doll that can walk and speak French, or an electric train that lays down its own track as it rushes about the nursery to get even an ordinary rise out of a young child. The high school boy might once have been in the seventh heaven if he could own a bicycle, but he yawns today unless he can have a snappy high-powered motor car which will speed along at 75 miles an hour. It puzzles parents now to devise some new amusements for their children or to find something new and startling to give them.

Far be it from me to long for the "good old days." There were many things in our youth which were crude and inadequate, but our amusements were simple and rare enough to be appreciated when they came. There were the Fourth of July celebration in the summer, and the annual visit of the circus in the fall, and these two events were looked forward to with the keenest interest, and prepared for as well. The old buggy was washed up, and the harness greased, and the horses groomed to a high polish. We saved what little money we could get our hands on, made a date with the prettiest girl available and set out to have a glorious time. The anticipation and the two events in retrospect served us for six months at least.

In winter there were occasional parties, or dances at a neighbor's house. I noticed in the account of a recent social affair held in a nearby city that the favors presented to each guest at the dinner which followed the dance were Persian cats and canaries.

Our young people must be thrilled and amused at any cost!

America's Youngest Grandmother

Through a contest conducted by a food store exposition held in Washington, the youngest grandmother in the United States has been found. She is Mrs. Louise Skelton of Potomac, Va., thirty-four years old; and she is shown in this photograph with her daughter, Mrs. Colene Acheson, seventeen, and her grandson, who is one year old.

Who Was Who?

By Louise M. Comstock

WE? Is there anyone who was alive and able to read the newspapers on May 30, 1927, to whom that word is not magic, recalling the glamor and excitement with which the world received the news that Charles Lindbergh, in the monoplane the Spirit of St. Louis, had made the world's first nonstop flight across the Atlantic?

All during the hectic days that followed that historic flight, when Lindbergh was being paraded and feted and called upon to make speeches, he frequently used the plural pronoun "we" in speaking of his trip. Ambassador Herrick explained to the newspapermen that the flyer used "we" to refer to himself and his trusty plane, and the idea captivated popular fancy. The very fact that Lindbergh had made the trip alone somehow assigned to his plane a share in his triumph and an association with him that was almost human. Lindbergh became the "Lone Eagle," and Lindbergh flying the Spirit of St. Louis became just "we." Consequently it might, perhaps, be just a bit difficult to convince Lindbergh's millions of admirers that, as a matter of fact, he didn't use "we" in that sense at all. His own explanation is that he used it to indicate himself and the backers of his flight, Major Robertson of the Robertson Aircraft Co., Harry Knight and the other business men of St. Louis who financed and supported the history-making flight.

WILDCAT BOUNTY ENRICHES TRAPPERS

Steel Traps Click Dollar Tunes Throughout Maine.

Augusta, Maine.—Steel traps have clicked a cash register song throughout the state of Maine during the past year, reducing the number of wildcats by nearly 1,000 and enriching the trappers to the extent of nearly $15,000.

The forest felines, wildest of the wild creatures sought by sportsmen, as elusive as shadows when stalked by the man with a gun, have suffered heavy casualties in traps because of a weakness which they share with humans—the desire for something for nothing.

When roaming the woods in search of his natural food, live game, the wildcat enjoys comparative safety, for his habitat breeds no animals capable of engaging him in combat and he is gifted with uncanny ability to sense the presence of and evade his most deadly enemy—man.

But the tawny untamable, like his two-legged foe, usually finds the lure of "something for nothing" most difficult to resist. Thus the success of trappers on capturing the game that seems to meow in derision at rifles and shotguns. Thus the cash register song, echoing alone the traplines, a dirge for the cats, but a joyful chorus for those to whom it means "shoes for the baby."

Each time the jaws of a cat trap snap together the state parts with $20 in bounty money. The cat, snarling in rage and pain, has his fury aggravated by the discovery that the bait—food which he had attempted to seize without earning it through the usual stalk and kill, "something for nothing"—is just beyond the reach of his paws.

Street Ensemble

POTPOURRI

Use of Concrete

While concrete hardens in a few hours, it does not reach its full strength until about two years after it is laid. After that time for most purposes it is more lasting than natural stone. For structural work, reinforced concrete is made of one part cement, two parts sand, four parts gravel or crushed stone, and necessary water.

Shoe Repair Champ

The shoe repair shop of Anthony Rizzo in Palmsville, Ohio, was filled with flowers the other day after the reception of a telegram from New York announcing that Anthony, or Tony, as his friends know him, had been chosen national champion shoe repairman at the fifth annual shoe repairmen's and dealers' exposition. Each contestant submitted three pairs of shoes, one shoe of each pair in the original state of wear and the other repaired in the contestant's best manner. Tony comes from a cobbler's family. His grandfather had a little shop in Palermo, Italy, many years ago. Tony's father learned the trade and came to America and settled in Mount Morris, N. Y., where Tony began his apprenticeship at six.

THE WILD MEN OF BORNEO

THERE were two of them, it seems, "Waino and Plutano, the only original wild men of Borneo," according to Professor Huthchins, "lecturer" at old Austin and Stone's in Boston. The open-mouthed crowd, led on by his story of how old Captain Hammond landed at Borneo and after a terrific battle captured the two specimens of natives within, paid out the 12½ cents admission fee and passed eagerly inside. What they saw were two dwarfs, not much more than three feet high apiece, whose long fair hair and beards, and features were obviously Teutonic, who howled and grunted in true wild man style and performed amazing feats of strength.

Just who Waino and Plutano were we will never know. They were born about 1825, it is said, of some German farming family living near Weston, Mass., which did not care to claim as its own two circus freaks. Deaf mutes and of sluggish mentality, they led a secluded youth. Their public life began under the management of H. A. O. Warner, veteran showman of Waltham, who accompanied them on the road and gave them a home during off seasons. Dressed in tights and trained to roar and shake their straggling beards at curious little boys, the odd pair were enormously successful as wild men. It is said they were at one time receiving $600 a week for showing. Waino died in 1902. Plutano, though crippled by injuries received when he tried to lift a fat man from the audience, lost his balance and fell, with the 300 pounds on top of him, lived until 1912.

The Radio in Alaska
Alaskans have one advantage in radio reception. By the time most folks in the eastern states are too drowsy to listen longer to the microphone artists, in Alaska it is yet early evening. When it is ten o'clock in Alaska practically all the well-known regular programs have ceased and the announcers have said adieu. Then Alaskans change their dials about and receive strange music and stranger announcements from Japan and China.

State News

By Fred L. Holmes

Madison, Wis., April 6.—During the next six weeks Wisconsin public schools will receive their allotment from the state. Upwards of six million dollars are to be sent to the schools of the state upon the basis of the number of teachers employed and the number of scholars attending. While this money has usually been sent out on March 15, some counties will not receive their funds until early in May. To withdraw six million dollars immediately from the banks of the state is not desirable at the present time and it is planned to take the money out slowly for the different districts. Each week a certain number of counties receive aid. The state aid goes to 5,400 of the 8,000 elementary schools of the state. Each community is affected by this reapportionment. Approximately $200,000 comes out of this fund to pay transportation costs of school children.

Money is divided upon a basis provided by law. Each district receives $250 for each elementary teacher, the sum to be matched by the county. The state's share usually came to $3,900,000. The remainder was divided on an equalization basis, the limit $600 to a teacher. The state usually distributed $2,000,000 in this way and any balance was returned to the general fund.

Information as to what salary cuts are due for state employes this year remains rather vague although Gov. Philip F. LaFollette declared that his experience has served to emphasize his views on education expressed at the start of the last legislative session. He indicated that he is still opposed to any general program of a flat wage cut for everybody in the capitol, educational institutions or elsewhere in the state service.

Former Governor Fred R. Zimmerman remains inactive in politics but two of his lieutenants have become outspoken foes of Gov. Philip F. LaFollette's regime. L. B. Nagler, who became Gov. Zimmerman's secretary and later was made state conservation director, is outspoken in his criticism of the governor this year. Mr. Nagler was in the state service for many years prior to Zimmerman's election as governor.

C. B. Ballard, who was superintendent of public property under Gov. Zimmerman, is now running a store in a Madison suburb. So far Mr. Ballard's attacks have been directed more toward the public service commission and other state activities than to the governor himself. Both men had their connections with state service severed with the close of the Zimmerman administration.

Relief problems continue to grow more acute in the various localities of the state and the coming of the summer outdoor season may not have much effect in lightening the local burdens, according to Miss Florence Peterson, in charge of the unemployment research department of the industrial commission.

Miss Peterson declared that relief needs have continued to increase and increased employment during the summer may be offset to some extent by others becoming governmental charges through the depletion of savings and credit.

Harold M. Groves, state assemblyman from Madison, has been appointed a member of the state tax commission to succeed E. L. Kelley of Manitowoc, resigned. Mr. Kelley becomes the tax expert of a citizen organization. Groves is the author of income tax bills at the regular and special sessions of the Wisconsin legislature.

In spite of protests, Wisconsin communities are indulging in wholesale slashes of teachers' salaries. John Callahan, state superintendent of schools, estimated that teacher salaries are being cut in about fifty per cent of the schools of the state. As a general rule these salary reductions are coming at the smaller rather than in the larger schools. The cuts generally are either five or ten per cent with the reductions part of a general local scheme to cut government costs.

Pressed on by the necessity of finding work for many individuals in its penal institutions and hospitals, the state is developing new forms of manufactured products that are later taken up by private manufacturers when they prove successful. The twine plant at Waupun prison is booming now turning out supplies for farm use. The plant is operating with a day and night shift. Waupun has developed a fibre brush in gay colors that has proven popular and is being imitated by other manufacturers. Recently this line was extended to include small brushes with busts of George and Martha Washington serving as handles.

A wave of bookreading has struck the people of Wisconsin. Records compiled by county libraries show that farmers read more than 100,000 books this year as compared with the years previous. In fifteen counties of the state the library circulation during the year was 1,309,702, according to C. B. Lester, Secretary of the Free Library Commission. Librarians account for this unusual wave of reading to the lack of employment.
