WAS WM. HART "THE LAST OF THE STAGE COACH BANDITS"

William S. Hart, who is today the most noteworthy male figure on the screen, and the idol of all true Americans soon will make his appearance at the Eagle Opera House in his masterpiece.

In this play you will see the beloved Wm. S. Hart accused of being "The Last of the Stage Coach Bandits" and you also see how quick justice is dealt out in the land where the ever-present spirit is to do your shooting first and argue afterwards.

This play will offer "the two-gun man of the silent drama" in an entirely new characterization, a deviation from all past portrayals. He will be seen as a typical Bret Harte gambler in a story of California in the early fifties. Instead of the usual Tart habiliments, he dresses the part in high beaver hat, old-fashioned stock and frilled shirtbosom, flowered waistcoat and broadcloth coat, and the polished boots of the period. But to those who can only picture Hart in his past delineations, it can be safely said that he presents as striking an appearance in this costume as he has in other Western outfits.

The story is of "Level Leigh," a gambler of the old school. While devoting himself to his profession he is visited by the little sister that he has never seen, and whose health demands that she be removed at once to a higher altitude. Selling his interest in the game to his partner, "On the Level" moves his sister to a point high in the Sierras—Hellandgone. And then the real drama takes place. His meeting with Coralie, the Spanish dance-hall beauty, whose jealousy proves his financial undoing; the hold-up of the weekly stage; the arrest of Leigh by the Vigilantes; his breaking jail and capturing the real murderer of the Wells Fargo messenger, provide situations that will thrill the most blasé spectator. And with William S. Hart in the role of "On the Level" it is unnecessary to say that every bit of value possible is taken from the part.

Three popular women stars are seen in Hart's support. They are Alma Rubens, Sylvia Brearer and Mildred Harris Chaplin.

This picture was advertised in March but not played. Eagle Opera House Sunday, June 22nd. 10 and 25 cents.

MARRIAGE

Belling—Williams

On Wednesday evening at the Lutheran parsonage at North Prairie, Miss Mary Belling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Belling, was united in marriage to Richard Williams of Genesee, Rev. Winters, pastor, officiating. Miss Grace Belling, a sister, served as bridesmaid and David Williams, a brother, as best man. The young couple partook of a wedding supper at the home of the bride's parents and after a brief honeymoon will reside at Eagle in the H. J. Faestel residence. Our best wishes go forth to this popular young couple in their new life.

RECITAL

Methodist Church, June 20, 1924

Don't forget the recital given by Miss Mary McGill, Saturday night at 8 o'clock. Miss McGill will read the play, "Adam and Eva," a delicious comedy of home life. Come and see how one family "brought up father." Incidentally fathers might learn a few things, too.

Other features of the evening's entertainment will be vocal selections by Miss Ruth Stevens, whose lovely voice has charmed Eagle audiences before; also by Harold Pardee, who needs no introduction to his Eagle friends.

LOUIS B. MAYER PRESENTS HEARTS AFLAME

The blazing big timber drama. A wildfire success at the Rialto, New York.

Adapted from Harold Titus' novel, "Timber." Directed by Reginald Barker.

Eagle Opera House Wednesday, June 26th. 10 and 33 cents.

DANCE TONIGHT

The dance at the Opera Hall tonight (Friday) is for the benefit of the baseball team. The boys won the game from Dousman Sunday by a score of seven to eight. Next Sunday the boys will be at Dousman to play the return game.

CAIRN BROTHERS' SHOW

The Cairn Brothers show left for Delavan Monday morning, having had a crowded house here every night for a week. The brothers give a good show and the people showed appreciation by their large attendance.

FEDERAL AID WILL TOTAL $1,87,600

MADISON, Wis.—Federal aid in building Wisconsin highways will amount to $1,877,600 under the agricultural appropriation bill passed by congress, according to state highway commission officials here. The fund will be available for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

More than $3,500,000 will then be available for road building by state agencies, as the Wisconsin legislature has appropriated an amount equal to the federal quota to Wisconsin, it was stated. Of this sum, the state commission has already allotted $3,189,631 in its present program of construction.

DELINQUENT TAX SALE BRINGS $39,000 TOTAL

The annual delinquent tax sale was held at the court house last week, under the direction of County Treasurer Daniel Pierner, at which time 1,145 parcels were disposed of at approximately $39,000. The sale total is approximately $4,000 higher than last year. Among the buyers of numerous parcels were D. K. Zimmermann, Robert C. Beggs, Perry L. Friz, Frank McKenzie, Dr. Linford Lardner, Oconomowoc.

Although the real estate delinquent taxes of 1924 were somewhat less than for 1923, the delinquent total including special assessments, was considerably larger, an increase in the aggregate, over 1923, by several thousand dollars.

32D DIVISION REUNION TO BE IN MILWAUKEE

RED ARROW MEN TO GATHER SEPT. 13, 14, 15. GENERAL PERSHING TO BE GUEST

The fifth annual Reunion of the 32nd (Red Arrow) Division will be held in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, September 13, 14 and 15. Many men who were members of that "fighting Division" will make their plans now so that they will be able to meet the "old gang" in Milwaukee this fall.

Work has been received at Reunion Headquarters in Milwaukee from Major General Wm. G. Haan who commanded this Division in action that General John J. Pershing, Commander-in-Chief of the Army has accepted the invitation of the committee to be the principal speaker at the Memorial Services on Sunday, Sept. 14. Gen. Haan made a special trip to Washington to get General Pershing's acceptance personally. At each reunion a time is set aside for a Memorial Service to commemorate the memory of those boys who made the supreme sacrifice for their country. This meeting will be open to the general public.

Biggest in History

Milwaukee Red Arrow men are working strenuously in their plans to make this year's Reunion the biggest in the history of the Division. Maj. Gen. Haan (retired) is now a permanent resident of Milwaukee and is participating actively in the arrangements. Plans are being made to entertain the Red Arrow boys and their families every minute they are in Milwaukee. Every man is urged to dig up at once his "OD" shirt and the old overseas "chapeau" for this will be the uniform for the monster military parade on Sunday afternoon,

Sept. 14, headed by Generals Pershing and Haan.

The fact that the 32nd Division Reunion is being held three days prior to the national convention of the American Legion in St. Paul, Minn., will enable many boys from distant points to make both conventions in one grand trip at reduced railroad fare.

Reunion headquarters have been opened in the Trust Company building, Milwaukee, and they will be glad to furnish any of the boys with any information.

The Daily Freeman will keep every Red Arrow man posted on the Reunion from now until September.

Ten thousand men will be in Milwaukee, Sept. 13, 14 and 15.

DEATHS

Thomas Lean, pioneer farmer in the town of Sullivan, over ninety years of age, died Saturday. The funeral took place Tuesday. Uncle Thomas, as he was familiarly called by all who knew him, had a wide acquaintance in and around Eagle where he did trading in grain and lumber in pioneer days. He was an upright citizen and was active up to the time of his death.

Anton Olmstead, civil war soldier, aged 84 years, died at the home of his son here, June 4th, after a long illness. Mr. Olmstead served with a Michigan regiment during the civil war and came here with his son a few years ago. His remains were taken to Granville, Michigan, for burial. We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

A Cynical Critic

Actor (describing his latest success)—"And the audience, my boy, were glued to their seats." Cynical Critic—"That certainly was a good way of keeping them there!"

Cribbage

According to John Aubrey, in his "Brief Lives," the game of cribbage was invented by Sir John Suckling, who lived from 1602 to 1642. Eagle Quill ads. are business get. ters.

WILL MAKE BUTLER CHIEF OF THE WORK

IT IS PRESIDENT'S WISH THAT NONE DENY BUTLER THE OPPORTUNITY

By ROBERT J. BENDER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Murmuring of a revolt running through the rank and file of the Republican national committee, evaporated into thin air when the committee met to organize for the presidential campaign. The Coolidge slate of officers, headed by W. M. Butler, as chairman, was put through with but one exception, William G. Hodges, Denver, was elected treasurer to succeed Frederick Upham, resigned. Arthur Mellon, Pittsburgh, a relative of Secretary Mellon, had been picked to fill this post. Butler's selection was unanimous. Those who were venting their anger, Thursday, at what they termed "mismanagement of the G. O. P. nomination," have cooled off now. Roy Webb, Chicago, was elected secretary; Ralph A. Williams, Oregon, and Charles Hilles, of New York, were named as vice-chairmen to succeed themselves. Mrs. A. Hert of Louisville, Ky., widow of the national committeeman, succeeds Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, as woman vice-chairman of the committee.

CLEVELAND, O. — Torn by long hours of sleepless study over one of the most amazing political situations that ever has featured a Republican national convention, members of the national committee met Friday to organize for the forthcoming campaign.

All of the worry and some of the bitterness that repeatedly flared up through the struggle of the party leaders earlier in seeking to nominate a strong running mate for President Calvin Coolidge, burstled militantly Friday as the new committee and committeewomen assembled to make William M. Butler their chairman for the campaign.

Of course, there was nothing to do but elect Butler to lead the national committee. It is the president's wish—and there are none to deny him. But it is perhaps unfortunate that the Coolidge-Dawes ticket goes to the post for the great quadrennial presidential sweepstakes with its jockey sharply at odds with the trainers and many of those conducting the race.

Many Rough Spots

There were many rough spots in the handling of the vice presidential nomination fight in the convention Thursday and perhaps still more in the private room conferences which preceded the balloting. Many of the old-time Republican leaders pointed to these as indicative of Butler's lack of experience in national political matters. Then, too, there was much resentment that Butler—an "outsider"—should come into the party councils and attempt to establish a dictatorship over a domain long-ruled by old school politicians.

Butler wanted Senator Borah for Coolidge's running mate. He "thought" Borah would accept. It was said Borah had never said he would not to President Coolidge, who probably never asked him to. Political leaders in the great states of Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio said "all right, we'll put over Borah."

Then Borah threw the job back into their faces and Butler heard more than one strong administration pillar say: "I, for one, will wash my hands of the whole business."

But men like Senators Reed and Pepper of Pennsylvania; Wadsworth of New York and Willis of Ohio, decided to try, with the aid of some of the old-timers, to put over for the vice presidency one of their senatorial or congressional number. They agreed upon Senator Curtis—and didn't tell Butler about it.

But the shrewd Yankee manager of Mr. Coolidge soon heard what was going on and served notice that he would oppose the selection of Curtis even to the point of carrying his fight to the platform if necessary. He countered the Curtis proposal with one for Theodore Burton, of Ohio. Balloting began with the situation there.

Butler's opposition, of course, killed Curtis' chances, and Burton was regarded as too old and not the type of man to appeal for votes in sections where votes were needed. So, with their candidate squelched by Butler, the "senatorial clique" turned to former Governor Frank O. Lowden to turn aside Burton.

Lowden's friends in the convention tried in vain to prevent his nomination and after failing, tried further, to discourage voting for him. But it was evident on the first ballot that Lowden commanded much popular favor. He led the field on the first ballot while Burton could muster only enough votes to run fourth—behind Kenyon and Dawes.

Threatened to Do Better

Burton threatened to do better, however, according to Butler, so on the second ballot Lowden was eased over into a nomination. Now this may have been done just to show Mr. Butler what can and can't be done at a convention. It was noticed that after the nomination was formally announced none of the big delegations walked toward the doors thinking the session was about over and most of the old-timers were in their seats.

Since Lowden already had declined the nomination two or three times and since the old-timers knew how Lowden felt about the political chicanery which jerked the presidential nomination from under his seat in 1920 they weren't surprised at his refusal once more.

So Burton couldn't get it, Lowden wouldn't have it—and things were all at sixes and sevens.

The convention recessed so that the leaders could think things over again. Butler suggested Judge Kenyon of Iowa again, but Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio joined in an emphatic chorus of "absolutely no."

With two throwdowns on his record, Butler turned to Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover. It was pointed out to Butler that Hoover's position was much the same as that of Borah and Lowden—it would embarrass him to accept after strenuously saying he wanted none of the job.

A committee talked with Hoover on the telephone. They returned with the bad news that Hoover would be "embarrassed" by a nomination.

Butler was adamant. It was difficult for him to understand how many men could refuse the office if nominated, because it never had been done before. And while Lowden did it, there were extenuating circumstances.

So the balloting proceeded with the word passed from Butler's quarters that Hoover would go over "sure."

But by this time the delegates were in ripe mood for a revolt against any more of Butler's candidates, and they rode through on Dawes, the pick of the big business delegations, who turned enough votes to him early in the balloting to get the semblance of a stampede started in the minds of the weary delegates.

The feeling of concern among some of the state chairmen at Butler's leadership during the coming campaign, may be best shown by the remark last night of one of them after the convention ended: "Butler picked four horses. Borah wouldn't run. Burton couldn't run. Kenyon was scratched. Hoover was left at the post."

MANY ATTEND GYM RECEPTION, DANCE

Many Waukesha people gathered in the new Carroll College gymnasium Thursday evening to participate in the reception in the club rooms, and the jubilee dance. It was the initial affair held in the new building, which will in the future be the meeting place for many a college activity, including athletic gatherings and social functions. Music was furnished by the American Legion orchestra. A large number also witnessed the dancing on the circular balcony, which is capable of accommodating several hundred.

On Thursday afternoon, the new building was formally dedicated and class-day exercises, including "farewells to Carroll", presentations of the class gift, planting the ivy and burning the pipe of peace in the aborigines' section of the campus.

HOSPITAL FOR STATE MASONS IS DEDICATED

MANY FROM ALL PARTS OF STATE GATHER AT DOUSMAN FOR DEDICATORY CEREMONIES

The third of the cornerstone laying and dedicatory events at the Masonic Home, just north of the village of Dousman, occurred on Thursday afternoon, when the hospital building, erected by the Order of the Eastern Star was formally presented to the grand lodge of Masons and dedicated by them to its philanthropic purpose. About 1,500 persons attended the ceremonies at the west entrance of the hospital building, which presents an attractive picture with its handsome Georgian architecture, set against the woody background on the Home estate.

Charles Lamb Presides

Grand Master Charles F. Lamb, of Madison, presided for the grand lodge of Masons, and the ceremonial opened with the prayer by Mrs. Flora Brown, of Milwaukee, grand chaplain of the Eastern Star. The story of the growth of the hospital fund and its fruition in the present building was told by Mrs. Nellie M. Towner, past grand matron, who has been the active head of the Home association for several years past. The first five dollar contribution toward the structure was made a dozen years or more ago, by Mrs. Martha Yerkes, a past grand matron and a former resident of Waukesha county, and the fund had grown to more than $80,000 in the past two years.

Following the reading of the deed of gift, by Grand Secretary Helen M. Laffin, the formal presentation to the Masonic body was made by Grand Matron Ethel M. Chellis, who emphasized the appropriateness of the gift, since it is peculiarly the talent of women to minister to the bodily and mental comfort of mankind and to aid in the alleviation of pain. The Eastern Star, she said, desires to be always the complement and helpmate of Masonry in its service to the world.

In accepting the gift on behalf of the Masonic Home board, Past Grand Master Alexander Matheson, of Janesville, expressed the hope that the two splendid structures now on the property will in the course of time be augmented by another, for the use of orphan children from Masonic homes.

The dedication ritual was conducted by the officers of the grand lodge, C. F. Lamb, grand master, presiding. The visitors then viewed the Home building and the hospital, which is nearly ready for the furnishings and is most complete in its appointments for care of patients.

Furnishings for the hospital are the gift of various chapters and individuals in the state, Waukesha chapter of the Eastern Star, being among those which have donated funds for the complete equipment of a room.

Among Waukesha people who attended the dedication event were Mayor and Mrs. Henry E. Blair, the former of whom served in a grand lodge station for the dedication; Mr. and Mrs. George T. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Hicken, Thomas Ryall, J. M. Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. McCann, Mrs. Lettie Robinson, Mrs. H. J. Laatsch, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Fisher, Mrs. E. T. Eaton, Miss Ina Reid, G. H. Vincent, E. W. Fenlon, Wayland Laatsch.

PEWAUKEE-SUSSEX COWS' RECORD GOOD

The Pewaukee-Sussex Cow Testing Association has completed its May report with the wonderful showing of 91 cows out of 419 that produced over 40 pounds of fat for the month. The average herd for the entire association produced 804 pounds of milk, test 4 per cent with an average of butter-fat production of 32.5 pounds fat. The high average is 1283 pounds of milk containing 45.1 pounds of fat. This herd consists of 18 grade and pure bred Holsteins and belongs to W. C. Zillmer of Sussex. Second high herd belongs to C. R. Lingelbach, his herd of 14 cows giving an average of 1195 pounds of milk and 44.2 pounds of fat.

The highest record cow for the month gave 2598 pounds of milk, testing 3.6 per cent making 93.5 pounds of fat. She is a six year old pure bred Holstein belonging to A. F. Bennett of Pewaukee. She freshened April 2, 1924. This cow is also a Guernsey owned by W. M. Hardiman with a record of 1426 pounds of milk containing 77 pounds fat. Third high cow is the property of W. C. Zillmer and her record is 1000 pounds of milk containing 69.7 pounds of fat. The 4th and 5th high cows belong to Geo. McKerron & Sons Company on two pure bred Guernseys, each with a record of 69.1 pounds of fat, but No. 5 has the advantage in milk of 1280 pounds against 1172 pounds.

The production is somewhat higher during May than in April, and will probably be higher in June than May, but usually this is what happens. Wait until July when the pastures as a rule begin to dry up, then the production usually falls.

HOW CONVENTION LOOKED THROUGH LOCAL LENSES

MRS. H. M. YOUNG DESCRIBES REPUBLICAN MEETING HELD LAST WEEK, IN CLEVELAND

By Mrs. Theodora W. Youmans

When you see a great sight—the fleets of the United States in battle array, the earthquake in Japan, Vesuvius erupting, a national political convention in action—your friends naturally want to know what you think about it. The brightest and wittiest pens in the world have described this particular sight in full detail. Each of your friends has read yards and yards of this description. Still they ask about your personal reaction. How did it look through Waukesha lenses? It is to answer this question that this bit of personal impression is written.

Quiet—and yet

The Cleveland convention was, on the whole, a quiet convention. You would not have called it quiet if you had been present when the name of Coolidge was first prestanted in the keynote speech of Senator Theodore Burton, at the first session, or when Lowden was nominated, or at various and diverse other times. But these happenings were in less number than at some former conventions, for the good reason that there was only one candidate for president.

Made More Noise

At Chicago, four years ago, the followers of Lowden and Wood and Johnson, especially Johnson, all felt obliged to tell the world that their candidate was the greatest and the most popular, by the noise they made, and the contest in racket was long and was frequently repeated. A political convention when it lets itself loose is like nothing else that has come into my experience. Men and women clap and shout and yell. They jump to their feet and wave their arms and hop up and down. They grab the state standards and parade around making all the noise of which they are physically capable. The big brass band blares but you hear it only dimly at intervals. The huge organ plays but its notes are scarcely discernible.

There are seventeen thousand people in the Cleveland auditorium and until you have heard that number of people noise-making to their fullest extent you have something to learn about aricular exhibitions.

A Splendid Hall

The hall where the convention was held is a superb illustration of a great auditorium of the people. Here is no makeshift built for the occasion, its bare rafters covered with bunting to hide them. Here is a splendid building of steel and cement, dignified and elegant, in design, fitted with all latest devices for comfort and safety and costing between six and seven million dollars.

No Decorations

There is practically no decoration in the great building. I could have stood more flags and bunting after the good old fashion of the Chicago Coliseum. One large flag is back of the stage and is lowered in dramatic fashion at moments of crisis. Also there are oil paintings of Lincoln and McKinley and Harding, framed in the flag at the rear of the stage.

The national committee and other dignitaries are on the stage, which seats a thousand persons. A platform and run-way are built out from the stage into the auditorium and on the floor on either side are the newspaper people, well on toward a thousand in number I should think. The delegates are naturally in front, a thousand of them, and next the alternates, a thousand more. The rest of the floor and the galleries are filled with the spectators, in the latter sessions every seat occupied and the steps also crowded.

The new science of acoustics is here demonstrated in its finest aspects. There is a little group of amplifiers above the speakers run-way. They look like gilded horns and they are all tied together with the openings outward. The speaker stands in the right spot and you can hear almost everything he or she says.

States All Represented

All the states and dependencies of the Union are represented in the delegations in varying numbers according to their size. New York has the largest delegation, ninety-two, Hawaii, Porto Rico, Alaska, the District of Columbia each has two. Wisconsin has twenty-nine, twice as many as the number of its congressman and senators and three additional added by some ruling of the national committee. When the time comes for nominations a clerk with a voice like the booming of Big Ben calls the roll beginning with Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, and each state has the right to present any candidate it may have for the office under consideration, president or vice-president. If it has no candidate of its own it may yield its place in line to any other state. Thus the first state, Alabama, yielded to Massachusetts, Coolidge home state, in the nomination for president, and Massachusetts called upon President Marion Leroy Burton of the University of Michigan to make the nomination. When the vote is taken the same procedure prevails. The big-voiced clerk calls the roll and the chairman of each delegation gives the vote of his delegation.

Burton Main Speaker

The great speech of the convention was made by President Burton, nominating Calvin Coolidge. Mr. Burton is red-haired, mentally as well as physically. He is tall, brawny, and wears the line of white inside his waistcoat which indicate that he thinks about his clothes. He lived near Coolidge, in Northampton, and he spoke of him as a man speaks about his friend. He made no effort to present the political aspect of his candidate, endeavoring only to make us see Coolidge the man. He admitted that Coolidge was not loquacious, and the audience roared. He said that Coolidge was the kind of man who used his brain because his tongue gives him time to. He spoke of the President's sense of duty, a fundamental in his character, and related that when Coolidge was a boy his father and mother heard him filling the kitchen woodbox in the middle of the night, because he had neglected to do it the previous day. He spoke of Coolidge as through and through an American and declared that the dominant impulse of the president's character is spiritual. He quoted much from the president's speeches without a scrap of a note of any kind. Here are a few of Burton's epigrammatic sentences:

"He knows that every person has a soul and that the greatest thing about America is her spirit."

"When he performs a public duty it is a ceremony."

"He aims actually to do what he knows he ought to do."

"He helps one to understand that righteousness has an actual place in the world."

"He seems the epitome of sheer self control."

"From his youth up he learned that self-restraint is a necessity for useful living as well as for civilization."

"He early learned that obedience is essential in a well ordered group."

"He is severe with every form of selfishness and evil. They exist to be conquered."

"To him, character in the first necessity."

"He is the personification of work."

Other Speeches "Come Down"

Seconding speeches were rather a "come down" after Burton's brilliant periods. The first was by a woman, Mrs. Florence Porter, of California, an old-time suffrage worker and 73 years of age, a California friend tells me. Mrs. Porter is a large woman with white hair and she looked very nice in an orchid gown. She made a good if not extraordinary speech and won applause. Several men were called on for seconding speeches. But the audience, having listened to speeches much of the time for two days, did not regard these efforts as of primary importance. The convention wanted to vote and it delicately conveyed its desires to the various speakers who took the platform by the wildest applause, as one would say, "prey don't hurry, here's your hat." The speaker, being absorbed in his effort, does not realize what is going on. He keeps on speaking. He will go home and tell his fellow townsmen that he received almost as much applause as Coolidge.

Another woman is called upon, from Kansas this time. She looks like Kansas, in a red gown, determined and independent. Her voice is big and resonant. The audience has reached the silly stage and her opening words "Ladies and gentlemen" brings applause which fairly lifts that great roof of cement and steel for no reason at all.

Situation Was Queer

The vice-presidential situation as it developed seemed to the unpolitical mind a queer one. The papers had all printed positive statements from Mr. Lowden that he was not a candidate and would not accept nomination for that office. Nevertheless he was nominated early in the game, on the vice-presidential afternoon. The nomination was made, not from his own state, Illinois, but by a man from one of the western states.

It was received with acclaim, great applause, all kinds of demonstrations of favor. No doubt Mr. Lowden could have gotten the nomination by acclamation had he so wished. But he did not so wish. An Illinois delegate took the platform to tell the convention that the distinguished son of Illinois would not accept the nomination and that his decision was final and irrevocable. "Final and irrevocable." What did that matter?

Kept on Voting

Delegates began to vote for him and kept on voting for him. He led in the poll, following the first ballot, having more than 200 votes. On the second ballot that "final and irrevocable" decision grew even less important. More delegates voted for him. I judged that he had between 350 and 400 votes, but no statement of the poll was made because delegates from one state and other began to transfer their votes to the man of the "final and irrevocable" decision against accepting the nomination. After a while motion was made that the nomination of Lowden be made unanimous and it was carried in the usual way, everyone except the delegates from Wisconsin voting aye in a tremendous roar.

It was now 7 o'clock in the evening. Except for a recess for lunch we had been in our places since 10 o'clock in the morning. It was pretty warm; we were tired.

We could not believe in the simlicity of our hearts that the convention would immediately undo what it had just accomplished. The delegates and the dignitaries appeared to be just hanging round. Nothing was said of another session. We felt that our task was done, left the hall, drove the hundred blocks to the apartment where we were staying and got ready to start for home. As everybody knows the convention recessed until 9 o'clock, reassembled and nominated General Charles G. Dawes for vice president. I greatly regret that I was not able to "assist," in the French interpretation of that word, at this nomination. I believe that Dawes was far and away the best man in the list for the position, with a record of brilliant service to his country, a proven ability of high order and a pungent personality that is bound to make a strong appeal to the country.

There for Fun Also

We said to each other that the convention was not managed very well and so it was not if keeping order and prompt transaction of business was the aim. But that was not by any means the whole aim. Delegates go to a political convention not only for a serious purpose but to have a good time. They are there not only for business but for fun. And I suspect that a chairman who cut off their antics and kept their noses to the grindstone, so to speak, would be extremely unpopular. Chairman Mondell, who, by the way has not changed a hair in the ten or twelve years since I last saw him, drove his wild team with a light hand. If they were not ready to pull the load and wanted to kick up and whinny a little longer, he let them have their way. At the opening of one session he pounded his gavel at half a dozen different times during a half hour without receiving much attention. Then the delegates chose to take notice and work was resumed.

Furthermore the hostess city had its own claims for consideration when it came to hastening the transaction of business and the shortening of the convention. Cleveland took no chances on having the convention too short and harmonious to be profitable. Everyone signed a contract with his hotelkeeper—signed a contract mind you—not merely a reservation—for six days without any regard to the actual length of the convention.

As to The Platform

One of the things that rather shocked me when I first attended a national political convention was the fact that the platform is invariably accepted as it is presented by the resolutions committee except for the recognized bad boy group from Wisconsin. "Steam roller," whispered I to myself in days gone by. Other folks make the same remark now, but I have come to the understanding that while theoretically desirable, it would be perfectly impracticable to toss a declaration of principles into a body of a thousand delegates and tell them to formulate it. How could such a body arrive at any decision on the world court, or farm relief or any other topic of the three or four dozen covered in the platform?

If that were attempted it would not result in a platform at all; it would only result in a great funeral of some of the nation's most distinguished citizens. They would talk each other to death.

One From Each State

The resolutions committee is made up of one member from each state. Thus every member of every delegation has a representative from his own immediate group on that committee and may give to that representative such argument and ideals as he is inclined. The hearings of the committee are public. Anyone may go to hear or to take part. The Wisconsin delegation made Hon. H. A. Cooper its representative on the resolutions committee. When Mr. Cooper refused to accept the platform endorsed by forty-seven members and presented a platform of his own, his motion received no second in the committee. A motion which does not receive a second, by the rules of parliamentary law falls to the ground. But the rules were waived in his behalf and he was given the privilege of a minority report.

Women Receive Recognition

Women got what they had been promised by the national committee, equal representation in that body, one man and one woman from every state. The delegate body showed a number of members of the distaff side. In the alternate body there appeared as many women as men and I should guess that on the whole there were as many women inside the auditorium as men. Three or four women had some part in the proceedings. Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, vice chairman of the national committee for several years, has resigned and will run for congress in President Garfield's old district in Ohio. Cleveland newspapers announced a debate between Mrs. Upton and an opposing candidate on the taking subject, "How Dry I Am." Mrs. Alvin Hert of Kentucky takes Mrs. Upton's place. She and several other women are on the executive committee for the coming campaign as announced by Chairman Butler.

An Attractive Hostess

Cleveland proved an attractive hostess to all women visitors. Drives and luncheons and musicales and a boatride and various other entertainments were offered. We went on one drive and saw some of the magnificent parks with quantities of flowers in blossom. Many homes are very handsome and stately, the

FRANK O. LOWDEN ILLINOIS RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF ORGANIZATION

Fred Pabst, Milwaukee, was re-elected chairman of the Extension committee, of the Holstein-Friesian association of America at the 39th annual convention of that organization's delegates at Richmond, Virginia, last week. Frank O. Lowden, Illinois, was re-elected president. Dr. L. M. Thompson, Pennsylvania, was elected vice-president and the following directors, whose terms expired, were elected to succeed themselves: E. A. Stuart, Washington; H. V. Nowes and R. E. Chapin, New York; and W. H. Mott, Kansas. Next year's convention will be held at Grand Rapids, Michigan.

A three-times a day milking test for the 305 and 365-day divisions of the advanced registry was adopted. To be eligible for this class, to be known as Class B, cows on long-time semi-official test are not to be milked more than four times daily the first 45 days and not to exceed three milkings a day the balance of the period.

The sentiment of the convention was in favor of adopting a plan for increasing consumption of Holstein milk and encouraging local breeders to market a higher class product.

To insure the attendance of the delegates at annual conventions, especially those from distant points a provision was made for reimbursement of railroad fare and traveling expenses to all delegates.

MANY COWS PRODUCE 40 POUNDS OF FAT

There were 452 cows tested in the Muskego-Vernon Cow Testing association during the month of May and 86 of these produced over 40 pounds of fat. The highest herd average goes to Van Valin Bros. with an average of 1015 pounds of milk containing 40.2 pounds of fat for 24 cows. Second high average goes to A. J. Paul herd on 1007 pounds of milk and 40 pounds of fat for 18 head. Both herds are so-called Holsteins.

The highest record cow is a four year old registered Holstein on a twice a day milking, produced 1689 pounds of milk testing 5 per cent, making 84.5 pounds of fat. This cow belongs to S. S. Foster. Second high cow is a pure bred Holstein seven years of age, milked 3 times a day, and produced 2654 pounds of milk containing 82.3 pounds of fat. This is the high milk record for the county during the month. She belongs to Hugh Christison of Mukwonago. The third high cow is a grade Guernsey belonging to C. W. Tews & Son. She has a record of 78.1 pounds from 1410 pounds of milk. The 4th high cow is a pure bred Jersey with a record of 74.4 pounds of fat from 1144 pounds of milk. This 7 year old cow belongs to Ed. Knurr. The 5th high cow is a pure bred Holstein belonging to A. J. Paul of Hales Corners. She has a record of 1671 pounds of milk containing 71.9 pounds of fat.

grounds running down to the banks of Lake Erie on one side and facing the street on the other. We realized as never before that Cleveland is an old and rich and great city—in fact the fifth city in the United States, being exceeded in size only by New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Detroit. And Cleveland boasts 135 birthdays.

Wisconsin, as Usual

The Wisconsin delegation played exactly the same part it has played in at least two previous conventions. It got a great deal of publicity, the papers giving us scare head-lines each morning as to what the delegation would or would not do. There was the usual hostility to Wisconsin but it was good-natured hostility. The crowd booed and hissed when Wisconsin did what everybody knew it was going to do but there was little rancor in the demonstration. The bad boy who was expected to play up does play up and while he must be reprimanded nobody takes him very seriously.

Mr. Cooper presenting the la Follette platform made a good appearance, dignified and level-headed. The platform which he presented seemed to me to strike at the very foundation of America and Americanism.

The Republican national convention is in session at Cleveland and by the time the Quill reaches its readers the convention will have placed in nomination a candidate for president named for vice president? The demagogue President Coolidge will be renominated, but who will be nominated for vice president. The democratic convention will be held in New York City, June 24th. Guess who will be nominated.

Several of our county officers have announced their intention to seek reelection this year. Don't be too sure this year, we have a full set of county officers elected on the democratic ticket.

CORABELL CARLISLE WINS TRIP TO CAMP

COW TESTING ALFALFA WILL SHOW RESULTS

AGRICULTURAL EXPERT SAYS IT WILL MAKE PRESENT DAY METHODS PASSE

BY A. J. CRAMER
Wisconsin College of Agriculture
(Written for the United Press)

MADISON—Cow testing associations and alfalfa hay promise an efficiency in dairying which will make present day methods look hopelessly passe.

Imagine Wisconsin in 1930 with 500 active cow testers at work in 500 cow testing associations. These testers will be putting yearly records of economical production on 230,000 cows owned by 13,000 dairy farmers. This will put 12 per cent of our cows on test. Denmark has 25 per cent of her cows in testing association work.

At the present time, 165 cow testing associations are operating in Wisconsin, putting the test on 75,000 cows owned by 4,450 dairy farmers. This represents 3.8 per cent.

The average Wisconsin cow will be producing 6,000 pounds of milk and 225 pounds of butter fat in 1930 instead of 5,000 pounds of milk containing less than 190 pounds of fat. The average C. T. A. cow will yield 300 pounds of fat six years from now instead of 270 in annual tests. Out of state buyers will find it easier to locate a carload of good association cows in a township and will not be chasing all over the country to select a few cows from good herds.

Over 13,000 registered sires will be in use in C. T. A. herds. At least twenty per cent of the dairymen will have pure bred herds while today only 7 per cent of all herds tested are registered. More sires with known production in their dams will be heading herds because it will be easier to select them from good herds where practical farm records are kept. More of the farmers will see the necessity of knowing which cows are losing them money.

Battle Creek the night of the second lass, Waukesha, 2nd Vice President.

My dear Miss Carlisle: The jury appointed to select the ten best essays submitted from Wisconsin has selected yours as among that number. Let me congratulate you on your success and on your interest and initiative in entering the competition.

The Wisconsin C. M. T. C. Association whose guest you will be on your prize trip to Camp Custer this summer will notify you soon as to the details of your visit there.

The Women's Overseas Service League hopes that you and your chaperon will enjoy to the fullest extent this opportunity to see the splendid camp operated by our government. Special provision will be made for your entertainment there. Sincerely yours, (Signed) JESSICA ANDERSON, 693 Summit Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.
