The DAIRY

WHAT RICHER MILK MEANS TO RAISER

Profit and Loss Affected by the Quality.

By DR. W. L. GAINES, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

Producing richer milk is a problem now confronting many dairymen, as a result of higher standards on the milk markets and the need for more efficient production.

The quick way of meeting the problem is to sell some of the cows giving low-testing milk and replace them with cows giving a high-testing product. The slow way is to select bulls of higher-testing families and gradually breed up cows producing richer milk. Adding one or two high-testing cows cannot be expected to have much effect on herd test. Even if half the herd were replaced, the most that could be expected would be a half-way position between the cows retained and those added. As a general proposition, higher-testing cows will fall below the mid-point of the two groups. As an example, if the herd contain 100 cows giving milk testing 3.2 per cent butterfat, it would take, on the average, 110 cows giving 3.8 milk to bring the herd test to the half-way point of 3.5.

Improving the herd test through breeding is possible within certain limits. It requires continued selection over a long time. An illustration of what can be done by this means is found in the records of the Danish cattle-breeding societies. Going back to the early days of testing, the native cows in these societies in 1900 gave milk testing 3.4 per cent butterfat. By continuous selection of the highest-testing and good-producing cows as breeding stock, the test has gradually been increased until it averages 3.9 per cent butterfat at the present time. The milk is used very largely for butter-making, and for that purpose it was an advantage to improve the fat test. It takes 6 per cent more feed to produce a pound of fat in 3.4 per cent milk than it does in 3.9 per cent milk.

Dirt and Bacteria Big Enemies of Dairymen

Losses due to poor quality in milk and cream can be traced directly to utensils that contain dirt and bacteria. To check these losses, utensils must be kept not only clean but sterile, says a writer in the Farm Journal.

Rinsing with cold water before the milk dries is the first step in cleansing. Follow this with a good scrubbing; use a brush, hot or warm water, and a good alkaline washing powder. Rinse with cold water.

So much for getting the utensils clean. The next step is sterilizing—killing bacteria, if you please. Scrubbing doesn't get rid of those. Live steam is ideal for sterilizing; but many dairy farmers don't have steam—not even an abundance of hot water.

The use of a chlorine solution insures a good job of sterilizing. It is a simple procedure—merely put the chlorine in water and wash the utensil. The chlorine wash won't take the place of scrubbing, though; it is a bacteria killer, not a dirt chaser. You must use both.

Warm Drinking Water

Here is a real argument for water in front of the cows so they will never be compelled to drink too heavily of cold water at any one time. A French investigator, E. Garillet, reports that the water supplied in winter, when very cold, caused some cases of abortion and stoppage of rumination. When the water was heated, no such troubles were encountered. The easiest way around such troubles would be water bowls or troughs in front of the cows but, lacking these, a tank heater should be considered to take the chill off the drinking water. Consider that a cow takes into her body about 400 pounds of water for each 100 pounds of milk produced and it is easy to understand that cold water in big doses could not be otherwise than harmful.

Improving the Herd

Every dairymen should have a definite program for breeding improvement. The old maxim that the bull is half the herd still holds true and the securing of a pure-bred bull with a good pedigree is the first step in such a program. In selecting the dairy bull, especially for a grade herd, it may not be necessary that an exceptionally high price be paid, but it is even more important that the record of production shown by his pedigree be high. The bull should conform to the dairy type, with plenty of constitutional vigor and capacity.—American Agriculturist.

Oust the Inferior Cow

Inferior cows pay very low prices for the feed they eat. Figures from the Minnesota state-wide cow-testing associations show that it costs 22 cents more to produce a pound of butterfat from a cow that produces 100 pounds in a year than it does from a cow that makes 400 pounds. The cow that makes 400 pounds in a year pays her owner 43 cents a bushel for oats, whereas the cow that only makes 100 pounds pays but 17 cents per bushel for oats, says Successful Farming.

Flag Smut Found in Winter Wheat

Its Presence Is Reported in Three States by Federal Experts.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.

Flag smut, a serious wheat disease in Australia, and one now found in Illinois, Missouri, and Kansas in this country, is spreading persistently, although it has not reached dangerous proportions.

Department authorities fear flag smut may get into semiarid winter-wheat regions in the West, under growth conditions more like those in Australia, where the disease is a serious problem, and for that reason they are doing everything possible to check it in its present stage.

In Illinois the plant disease men found flag smut in one county, Macon, where it had not been found before. Counties in which it had been found before and was present this year were: Logan, Hancock, Green, Madison, and St. Clair.

In Missouri they found the flag smut in St. Louis county. It was found in Leavenworth county, Kansas, where it had previously been reported, and the scouts also discovered it in four fields south of Wailula in Wyandotte county.

Harvest Queen wheat continues more susceptible than other varieties to flag smut. Michigan Wonder is somewhat more resistant than Harvest Queen, while many of the standard varieties have proven very resistant in experimental tests at Leavenworth, Kan. The government men visited Kay and Noble counties in Oklahoma, as that is a Harvest Queen area, and they feared a new infection there. No flag smut has been reported from Oklahoma.

Flag smut is a disease in the stem and leaves of the wheat which robs the plant of its food and prevents it from heading. Treating the seed prevents the smut except where the disease is in the soil, when the use of seed of resistant varieties is the best preventive. The department, in cooperation with the Kansas State agricultural college, is testing about 250 varieties and selections at Leavenworth, Kan., in the winter-wheat belt to develop wheat resistant to flag smut.

Great Vitality of Seeds Proved by Experiments

Here's weed news for the farmer, but it's bad.

Seeds of wild morning glory, buried for 30 years, sprouted almost at once after being unearthed and planted, the United States Department of Agriculture reports.

The seeds were buried as part of an experiment to discover how long seeds may lie in the soil and still grow, and to discover how long seeds must be buried to be killed.

The morning glory will be given further opportunity to prove its "staying power," as some seeds buried 30 years ago are still in the ground and will not be removed for ten more years.

Fertilizer Boosts Profit

George B. Harreld, Grant county, Indiana, has found that there is more profit in tomatoes and roasting ears than in field crops. Last year he raised 155 tons of tomatoes on 10 acres. The crop brought $2,170. He also raised 30 acres of sweet corn. Though it was a dry year the corn averaged three tons an acre.

"I must give a lot of the credit for my good tomato yield to fertilizer," said Mr. Harreld. "I used 200 pounds an acre of 2-8-6. I wouldn't try now to raise tomatoes without fertilizer."—Copper's Farmer.

Hardwoods Improve Pines

Quality of lumber in second-growth southern pine stands is improved by the presence of a substantial mixture of second-growth of hardwoods of the same age, recent United States forest service studies show. The shorter, broad-leaved trees help materially in shading out and causing natural pruning of the lower branches of the pines, promoting earlier formation of clear lumber in the growing pine trunks. Best results were found where the stand included approximately 20 per cent of well-distributed hardwoods.

Rations for Brood Sow

In feeding brood sows just before they farrow, one of the principal points is to keep the hovers open. Very little grain should be fed. A slop made of milk or water and mill-run is the best feed. Rolled oats may be used in place of the mill-run. Keep the sow a little hungry. If the hovers are not in proper condition either before or after farrowing, feed about one teacupful of crystal oil or one tablespoonful of Glauber salts in the slop once daily for several days.—Idaho Farmer.

Shade for Hogs

Hogs need shade during the hot summer days. With the advent of the swine sanitation system many hogs are raised in fields away from any natural cover. These hogs should be provided with a temporary shade, which is easily made by setting a few posts and building a frame which can be covered with short pieces of wire netting, and this then covered with a foot of straw. When the hogs are moved in the fall the entire shade can be dismantled.—Prairie Farmer.

How Sheep Breeder Can Reduce Outlay

Ohio Specialist Urges Use of Home-Grown Feeds.

By L. A. KAUFFMAN, Department of Animal Husbandry, Ohio State University.—WNU Service.

Savings in the cost of producing sheep may often be made by feeding home-grown protein. Feed represents the largest single item of expense in sheep production. Under average Ohio conditions, 60 to 70 per cent of the total cost of raising the flock may be charged to feed and pasture.

High quality legume hays supply both protein and minerals. They are unexcelled for meat and wool production, keep the digestive tract in good condition, and permit the use of larger amounts of other farm-grown roughages such as corn fodder and silage.

With a high quality legume hay wider use of home-grown grains can be made. Less protein supplements are necessary. If it is impossible to grow alfalfa, clover, or sweet clover, I would suggest that soybeans be raised for hay. They are a splendid emergency legume hay crop and are especially high in protein if cut when the beans are just forming on the pod.

Fly Repellants That Are Recommended by Experts

The Nebraska College of Agriculture suggests three formulae for making fly repellants. A mixture of one gallon of used crank case oil and one pint of oil of tar or coal tar stock dip will be effective in repelling flies from live stock and will serve to repel the flies from ten cows for 90 days.

One application daily of the following formula is said to be effective: One gallon fish oil, one-half gallon oil of tar, and one ounce crude carbolic acid.

Another formula consists of 3 bars laundry soap, 4 1/2 quarts coal tar dip, 4 1/2 quarts fish oil, 3 quarts kerosene, 2 quarts whale oil, and 1 1/2 quarts oil of tar.

If these preparations are applied very lightly they will not injure the animals or discolor the hair.—Missouri Farmer.

Browse Plants Numerous

The browse plants, of tremendous value to stock raisers who find grazing scarce, are of wide variety. The Department of Agriculture has made a study of at least 500 different types ranging from weeds to small trees. The term browse is applied to tender shoots, sprouts or twigs upon which animals, both domestic and wild, can feed. It is estimated that there are 300,000,000 acres of pure browse land in the West and experiments have indicated that a use equally as important as animal feeding may develop from a study of the plants. Some of the plants have been found to be a possible source of latex for manufacture of rubber.

Feed Bred Ewes

"Bred ewes should be so fed that they make a constant gain from the time of breeding until lambing time," states D. J. Griswold, professor of animal husbandry at North Dakota Agricultural college. How much this gain should be will depend upon the condition of the ewes at breeding time.

"If the ewes are thin when bred, the gain should be greater than if they are already in strong condition," he says. "Ewes that are in good condition in the fall should gain at least as much as the weight of the lamb and the increase in the weight of the wool. This will usually mean a gain of ten to twelve pounds or more per head in about five months."

Agricultural Hints

How can war on the flies be successfully waged? Clean up, spray, and kill the flies.

The estimated income from Ohio farm products for the last year was 17 per cent under the 1910 to 1914 level.

Early market hogs can be produced most economically in areas where there is an abundance of alfalfa or other succulent pasture.

Flag smut, a serious wheat disease in Australia, was reported by the Department of Agriculture to be spreading persistently in Illinois, Missouri and Kansas.

When spraying fruit trees with arsenate of lead, put a thick coat of vaseline on face and exposed skin. This keeps the spray from burning and it will also wash off much easier.

The price of a pound of grain is about the same as the price of a pound of milk. If an additional pound or two of grain makes a cow give an additional two or four pounds of milk, it pays to feed the grain.

"Spray early," say the agricultural experts at Cornell university, "and do not let pests get started."

Beans germinate best in a warm, mellow soil and when planted just deep enough to get the seed into moist soil. Plant in hills or in a row one or two inches deep.

A mineral mixture containing steamed bone meal, air-slaked lime or ground limestone and 20 per cent salt should be kept before pigs all the time.

LACK OF CASH NO CAUSE TO DESERT WIFE, SAYS COURT

Mate Who Expected $8,000 and Did Not Get It Is Denied Annulment.

New York.—The failure of a wife to give her husband money in accordance with a definite promise she made before marriage is insufficient grounds upon which to base an annulment, the Appellate division decided in a three-to-one decision in denying the appeal of Harry E. Shonfeld, thirty years old, whose suit was not defended by his wife, Mrs. Bessie Shonfeld, of Fallsburg, N. Y.

Shonfeld appealed from a decision of Referee John M. Tierney. Shonfeld testified that he had known his wife for seven years before their marriage on July 15, 1930. When she asked him before marriage what his intentions were, he said that he told her that he was in no position to enter on the "sea of matrimony, because I was not able to make a living."

Promised Him $8,000.

Shonfeld said that his wife promised to give him $6,000 to set himself up in the jewelry business with one Harry Ostrow in the Hotel McAlpin and to give him $2,000 to furnish their home. He said she refused to give him the money until they were married. After the ceremony at the Municipal building she told him, he said, that she didn't have the money, but had expected to get it from an aunt, which she failed to do.

Associate Justice Francis Martin wrote the prevailing opinion, in which he quoted from Bishop on Marriage, Divorce and Separation, as follows:

"In the contract of marriage, which forms the gateway for the marriage status, the parties take each other for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, to cherish each other in sickness and in health; consequently a mistake, whether resulting from accident or in respect to the character, fortune, health or the like does not render void what is done."

It's His Own Fault.

Justice Martin added: "Attempts to use the courts in an effort to avoid the obligations incident to marriage are becoming very frequent. This case is of that character. The fact that the plaintiff was not as good a business man as he thought he was should not be sufficient to permit him to obtain the aid of the court to repudiate the contract, especially when his one concern was his self-enrichment."

Presiding Justice Edward R. Finch and Justice Edgar S. K. Merrel agreed with him; but Justices Alfred H. Townley and James O'Malle, dissented. Justice Townley quoted a decision of the Court of Appeals (Di Lorenzo vs. Di Lorenzo, 174 N. Y., 467) to the effect that "Our law considers marriages in no other light than a civil contract." The opinion declared it to be a general rule "that every misrepresentation of a material fact justifies the court in vacating the agreement."

Express Messenger Asks Reward From Government

San Antonio, Texas.—David A. Trousdale, who saved $60,000 worth of registered mail by killing two men who attempted to rob his mail coach 20 years ago, still is trying to collect a $1,000 reward from the Post Office department.

Trousdale formerly was a Wells-Fargo express messenger. One night two men stopped the G. H. & S. A. Sunset train No. 9 in the unsettled country near Dryden. The bandits forced the engineer to uncouple the baggage and mail coaches and proceed ahead.

Trousdale armed himself by pretending to show the bandits valuable packets, and killed both men before the robbery was completed. Wells-Fargo & Co. paid him a $1,000 reward and the railroad company gave him $500.

In 1928 the Post Office department refused his claim, declaring the reward was for "arrest and conviction" of mail robbers. Recent orders of the postmaster general have clarified postal regulations and Trousdale has renewed his application.

First Air Trip at 102

Is Nearly a Disaster

Mansfield, England.—Having waited 102 years before going up in an airplane, a Mrs. Stansall had a narrow escape from disaster on her first flight here recently.

Shortly after her one hundred and second birthday, Mrs. Stansall wrote to Sir Alvan Cobham, who was holding an aviation exhibition in Mansfield, asking him to take her aloft. What was more, she asked to loop the loop.

A flight was arranged for a party of 17, including the mayor and majority of the city, but on landing the plane lost two wheels and, with a wing dragging the ground, narrowly escaped disaster.

Alighting from the plane, the old lady primly rearranged her hat and declared that the flight had been "grand."

SCIENCE WILL SEEK COCOS ISLAND GOLD

New Metal Detector to Be Tried by Expedition.

Washington.—The elusive caches of pirate gold on Cocos island that have defied maps and diggings of fortune hunters for more than a century, now must dodge the delicate instruments of science.

"Cocos island, which is 16 square miles of lofty, forest-covered mountains and furrowed valleys, owes its fame to the activities of pirates along the coasts of Central and South America from the seventeenth to the early part of the last century."

"After Capt. Edward Davis looted Leon, Nicaragua, in 1688, he sailed for Cocos, buried his treasure and rested until his next plundering expedition. In the early eighties, Benito, a former Portuguese naval officer who was a scourge to shipping in the Caribbean, felt that his old bullwhip was becoming too well polished for his profession, rounded the Horn, preyed upon towns and shipping along the Pacific coast and sought refuge on Cocos. He also buried treasure on the island before he and his crew were captured."

"Loots of other pirates have been reported buried on Cocos, but the famous loot of Lima, perhaps, is the chief magnet of modern expeditions to the island. Gold and silver and precious stones worth millions that were accumulated by the Spaniards from the natives and from richly adorned Inca temples, were hoarded in Lima when a revolution broke."

"The Lima mint was filled with gold and silver and the Lima cathedral was a vault of wealth. The cathedral chalice were solid gold, studded with priceless gems. Golden altars, equipment, glistened in the dim light of the edifice. Diamond-studded vestments beamed with a new radiance with every movement of the priests who wore them. There were chambers of gold adorned with rows of diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires."

"Fearing seizure of these treasures by the revolutionists, Lima city fathers sought a ship as a hiding place."

U. S. BIRTH RATE REACHES LOWEST POINT IN YEARS

But Fewer Babies Die During First Year.

Washington.—The birth rate in the United States dropped during 1931 to the lowest point it has reached since the establishment of birth registration in this country nearly 17 years ago, according to statistics made public by the bureau of the census.

At the same time, the bureau reported, the infant mortality rate showed a continued decline in the year, dropping to its lowest level since such statistics have been systematically compiled. During the year the infant death rate was 61.7 for every 1,000 live births, as compared with a rate of 64.7 in 1930.

The birth rate for the country in 1931 was 17.3 for every 1,000 of population, according to the bureau's report. In 1930 the rate was 18.3. The 1931 birth rate in Illinois was 15.4, compared with 16.7 in 1930.

The total number of children born in this country during last year was 2,084,443, as compared with 2,191,012 in the preceding year.

Of the more than 2,000,000 born in 1931, 126,645 died in their first years of life, while in 1930 the number reached 141,670.

The registration area on which the bureau's report was based includes all except two states and comprises 94.7 per cent of the total population of the country.

In the rural part of this registration area the birth rate and infant mortality rates were higher than in the urban section, the report showed, while the still birth rate was lower. The rural section had a population of 59,338,000, while the urban section had a population of 57,560,000.

In the city area the birth rate was 17.5 per 1,000 of population; the infant mortality rate was 60.3 per 1,000 births, and the still birth rate was 4 for every 100 live births.

In the rural area the birth rate was 18.2; the infant mortality rate 62.6; and the still birth rate 3.7.

Household Questions

Indian meal rubbed over a greasy sink will make the task of cleaning it much easier.

When serving grapefruit and oranges in salads use scissors and cut off all the white portion.

If the soup is too salty, grate a raw potato in it and continue cooking for a few minutes. The potato will absorb the salt.

When children's stockings become worn at the knee cut them off about the length of socks and crochet a shell stitch at the top for a finish.

To renovate a soiled couch hammock, try painting it any desired color. The canvas will take the paint very well. Two coats are generally needed.

Bread dough may be kept a number of days if a small amount of bicarbonate of soda is added to it. The soda keeps bread from souring. The dough must, of course, be kept in an icebox.

POTPOURRI

Camphor is obtained by distilling wood chips and bark of a tree of the laurel species grown most extensively in Japan and surrounding islands. After it has been freed of volatile oil and refined, it is very valuable as a medicine. It is also used in the manufacture of celluloid and some explosives.

BEING LAUGHED AT

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK, Late Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

It is GAGSMITH, or at least I think it is, who speaks of the frightened boy going home through black woods at night—"wondering about to keep his courage up."

Bluster is generally an outgrowth of fear. It is a camouflage to conceal a man's real feelings. Cynicism and insouciance are more often than otherwise the disguise of self-consciousness and sensitiveness.

I think, very likely the main reason for this is that we want to simulate virtues or characteristics which we do not have, and are afraid of being laughed at if our friends discover our lack. And if there is one thing more than another which youth cannot meet or endure it is laughter.

"The fellows would laugh at me," clinches any argument in favor of granting a youthful request.

When Joyce was editor of our college paper he ridiculed everything that was being done for the control of student conduct and advocated all sorts of revolts and irregularities. I had thought I knew him pretty well during his first years in college, and he had struck me as a shy sensitive boy with high ideals and a distinct sense of honor. He dropped in to the office one day, and we got on to his principles as presented in the daily.

"I can't believe that you actually think the things you are writing," I said to him. "If you do you are an entirely different fellow from what you were last year and before. What's the cause of it all?"

He hesitated a moment. "I'm awfully sensitive," he explained, "and the thing that I cannot bear is the thought that if I stand for things that are conventional and right, people may laugh at me and call me a snooty coddle. I can't stand ridicule."

"What are you going to do when you get out of college?" I inquired. "I'm going to be a lawyer."

I laughed. "Well, you'd better get used to being laughed at early in life," I said, "or some day they'll laugh you out of court."

The Mary Dear was riding at anchor in the harbor of Callao. Under cover of darkness the treasures were transferred to the Mary Dear's hold and a guard stationed aboard. Probably unknown to the Spaniards, the Mary Dear was commanded by one of Benito's pirates. The faint of gold and the shimmer of jewels crazed the captain. The guards were massacred and thrown overboard, and the Mary Dear made for the open sea. The crew of the ship was arrested later but not until the cargo of riches had been buried, presumably on Cocos.

Sought by Many. In the last century more than a score of expeditions have visited Cocos. One was headed by the famous British racer, Sir Malcolm Campbell. Another was led by the widow of a friend of the Mary Dear's captain, while a third was led by two women philanthropists. A British naval officer anchored at Cocos and ordered his crew to find the treasure, but all he gained was a severe reprimand from the British admiralty when he reached England.

"Coconuts (from which the island gets its name) and bananas grow wild. Wild pigs scamper through the forests, myriads of birds swarm its trees, fish abound in surrounding waters, coffee, sugar and vegetables can be grown in its fertile spots, fresh water is plentiful and its naturally tropical atmosphere is tempered by sea breezes and frequent rains. Yet Cocos has never been successfully colonized. However, the arid Galapagos islands, its neighbors 350 miles to the southwest, are permanently inhabited."

"For a short time Costa Rica maintained a penal colony on Cocos island and besides pirates, it was visited from time to time by whalers. One treasure hunter remained on Cocos for several years in an unsuccessful attempt to colonize it."

Marriages in Nevada as Well as Divorces Boom

Reno, Nev.—One reason why Nevada's marriage business is booming as a rival to divorces, insofar as money-making is concerned, is that a license issued in any of the 17 counties may be used in any part of the state. Rebidding After a Forcing Take-Out

WHEN you have opened with a suit bid of one or two and your partner, taking out with a new suit, has jumped the bid one more than necessary, the flag is up for a game (perhaps a slam) and must be kept flying. As explained in a preceding article this jump take-out is a new suit is a forcing bid, undoubtedly the most important forcing bid of the forcing system. It calls on you to rebid whether or not you have shown the full value of your hand in your original declaration. You are not free to pass.

If you have no additional value, no assistance for partner and no second suit which is biddable, you have simply to over-call with just the sufficient number of no trumps to cover his bid. Assistance for him, especially if his take-out is in a major, may be shown even though it lies only in distributional values of 4 trumps or 3 trumps to a queen or better. But full support is required to raise a partner's forcing take-out.

Naturally, a second biddable suit must be revealed when your partner commands you to rebid. Failing a second suit, or support for your partner's bid, if your own suit holds sufficient additional strength or length it may be rebid.

Sometimes, in responding to your partner's forcing take-out you bid yourself with an honor-trick more than originally shown, but with no other values for a rebid. In this case your response should be three no trumps. When, with the three honor-tricks indicated by your partner's jump take-out you can hold sufficient honor strength to put your partner's slip in or near the slam zone, you must show the power of your hand with a jump bid if forced to take-out at no trumps. But take-out should be bid by gradually because it is a forcing bid holds the slogan of all forcing bids always good. Once a forcing bid, holds a forcing bid until game is reached.

A partner's jumped take-out must never be confused with his jump rebid. While a jump take-out forces you to rebid no matter how reluctant you may be to do so, a jump rebid leaves you the option of rebidding, or of passing if the full value of your hand has already been shown.

Various responses when you have bid one heart which partner has taken out with two spades:

- S-J 43 H-A K 65 D-K 654 C-3 2 Bid Two No Trumps
- S-J 432 H-A K 65 D-K 65 C-3 3 Bid Three Spades
- S-J H-A K Q 65 D-K 653 C-3 3 2 Bid Three Hearts
- S-J 5 H-A K Q 65 D-6 C-A K Q 65 Bid Three Clubs
- (Slam call: can be shown later, did not reach game)
- S-J 5 H-A K 65 3 2 D-K 5 4 C-A Q Bid Three Hearts
- (Slam call: can be shown later, did not reach game)
- S-J 6 H-A K 65 D-K 5 4 2 C-A Q 6 Bid Four No Trumps
- (To show slam call: three no trumps might close bidding)

When you have opened with a suit bid of one or two and your partner, taking out with a new suit, has jumped the bid one more than necessary, the flag is up for a game (perhaps a slam) and must be kept flying. As explained in a preceding article this jump take-out is a new suit is a forcing bid, undoubtedly the most important forcing bid of the forcing system. It calls on you to rebid whether or not you have shown the full value of your hand in your original declaration. You are not free to pass.

After a forcing rebid, the partner is compelled to speak and his responses follow the same line as the responses previously given for forcing take-outs.

When in doubt as to whether or not your partner is making a forcing take-out or a forcing rebid, remember this rule of the forcing system. "Any jump bid in a new suit by either partner provided, one of these previously opened the bidding, is forcing."

Madison, Wis.—Wisconsin is apparently out to roll up a record vote this fall and it has already rolled up a record number of candidates for the primary election. There are 65 candidates for the 10 congressional seats.

The republican primary will be a clear cut fight between conservatives led by Walter J. Kohler, former governor, and Philip F. LaFollette, present governor.

Candidates are reporting large crowds, indicating more than usual interest in politics this year. There are about as many democrats as republicans in the field this year with the hope that there will be enough anti-republican sentiment to elect them.

The recall vote against Senator Otto Mueller, Wausau, will be taken at the same time the Primary vote is cast, it was announced here. The recall action is the first to be undertaken in the state.

Several Wisconsin cities will not be able to meet their bonds when they fall due unless additional relief is granted, it was learned here. The expectation is that federal relief money will be made available to the state to obviate the necessity of calling a special session of the legislature. Many cities have spent all the money they can on relief and are hard pressed to find money to support their unemployed now.

Wisconsin had only seven cases of infantile paralysis in July of this year compared to 36 in July a year ago and the state is expected to escape last year's epidemic. In August of last year there were 172 cases reported.

Two imposters who posed as public health officials defrauded an elderly couple in Lincoln county out of $500 for an alleged eye treatment and the state board of health has issued a warning that any health officer making a call would have suitable credentials. The board pointed out that doctors are not allowed to solicit business.

Counties wanting to establish forest reserves and get the aid of the forest crop law must be able to show that they will really create a productive forest. Under the program outlined by the conservation commission and endorsed by the state committee on land use and forestry much of the cut-over lands in the possession of counties will be barred from entry under the law.

Reorganization of Wisconsin's court system will be attempted by the state bar association at the next session of the legislature. The association recommends that the membership of the supreme court be increased and organized into divisions so as to divide the work. The association also recommends that trial courts of record, except the circuit court, be abolished wherever possible.

Urging that the plea of Milwaukee in the supreme court to have the legislative reassessment set aside be turned down, Joseph Messerschmidt, assistant attorney general, told the supreme court that no plan proposed yet is an improvement on the legislative act. Milwaukee wants more senators and more assemblymen which would mean that northern Wisconsin would have less representation. The court has already held that the reassessment is valid but Milwaukee is asking for a rehearing on the case. Mr. Messerschmidt contends that Milwaukee has been able to offer no fairer plan than the one now in existence.
