GOVERNMENT GOLD FOR BANKS. Treasury Department to Make Deposits in Small Institutions.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 5.—Secretary Shaw has decided to relieve the treasury of some of the surplus that has accumulated since he stopped the purchase of bonds and on Monday he authorized the selection of about thirty banks as depositories for government funds. They are mostly banks of comparatively small capital. It is understood that none of the . banks which are now known as depositories will have their present limit of deposits increased. It is said that Secretary Shaw has selected the new depositories with a view to rewarding the national banks that have maintained their circulation at the highest points. The deposits of money will be the last the government will make for a long time to come. It would not be surprising should the department to hold water and scalding pain in passing be obliged to call in some of the de-

One of the greatest labor strikes in the history of the United States is now threatened. If it takes place something like 130,000 or 140,000 men will leave the anthracite coal mines in Pennsylvania. This great calamity is threatened because the mine owners probabilities are that during the prest refuse to recognize the labor unions of their employes. They still insist that they will deal only with individuals.

A cough is not a disease but a symptom. Consumption and bronchitis, which are the most dangerous and fatal diseases, have for their first indication a persistent cough, and if properly treated as soon as this cough appears are easily cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the diseases which cause coughing. If it is not beneficial it will not cost you a cent. For sale by R. D. Townley.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

LIVER MEDICINE

A sallow complexion, dizziness, biliousness and a coated tongue are common indications of liver and kidney diseases. Stomach and bowel troubles, severe as they are, give immediate warning by pain, but liver and kidney troubles, though less painful at the start, are much harder to cure. Thedford's Black-Draught never fails to bene-fit diseased liver and weakened kidneys. It stirs up the torpid liver to throw off the germs of fever and ague. It is a certain preventive of cholera and Bright's disease of the kidneys. With kidneys re-inforced by Thedford's Blæck-

Draught thousands of persons have dwelt immune in the midst of yellow fever. Many families live in perfect health and have no other doctor than Thedford's Black-

Draught. It is always on hand for use in an emergency and saves many expensive calls of a doctor.

Most heads of families realize how frequently there is a call in the household for some preparation that will relieve and cure aches, bruises, cuts, wounds, burns, scalds, chaps, chafes, scratches, galls, local inflammation, swellings, sprains, colds, sore throat, sore feet, lumbago, neuralgia, strains, rheumatism, pains and the many ills that are hardly serious enough to go to the expense of calling a doctor for.

For this purpose there is no remedy so generally applicable or so uniformly efficacious and satisfactory as Greene's Infallible Liniment. This remedy is honestly prepared and made to cure so that it will sell on its merits. Once use it and you will ever after keep it in the house and become its life-long advocate and friend. Many worthy people would as soon think of being out of meator flour as not to have Greene's Infallible Liniment in the house. Prudent mothers are especially partial to it and consider it unrivalled for the hurts of childhood. Mr. J. B. Jackson, Drovers' Journal, Chicago, says:—"As a family remedy it is invaluable."

Mr. H. J. Kline, Chicago, Ill., writes:—"I have used your liniment for horses and for my own aches and pains and the results were such that it is now a standard remedy in my family. It is an article of merit, refer any doubter to me."

Mr. G. F. Moore, Traveling Auditor of the Chicago & Alton R. R., writes:—"I wish to congratulate you on having produced a liniment which in all cases comes up to the merits claimed for it. In my family it has been used with perfectly satisfactory results."

In thousands of homes throughout the land Greene's Infallible Liniment is a "stand-by" that is confidently and satisfactorily used by old and young. There is only one thing more convincing than the testimony of others; that is actual personal experience, then of yourself you know. This great antiseptic healing remedy that will subdue acute pain in a very few minutes and quickly overcome inflammation and swelling is sold for 25 and 50 cents a bottle. A large size at one dollar is put up for stable use as it is also excellent for horses.

All the best druggists keep Greene's Infallible Iniment. Accept no substitute. There is no other liniment that will take its place and do its work, no other that is like it or "just as good." The makers, J. W. Greene & Co., Chicago, will send a large free sample upon request and 10c. to cover cost of mailing.

BIOGRAPHY

WAUKESHA, WISCONSIN.

District.

In the conduct and management of the Waukesha National Bank, of Waukesha, Wisconsin, Andrew J. Frame has demonstrated two things to the entire satisfaction of the community with which he is identified, and also to the satisfaction of the recognized financiers of the country with whom he has been brought into contact. He has demonstrated in the first place that he knows how to build up a successful banking house, and in the second place that he has a broad comprehensive knowledge of what may be termed a modern science of finance. To conduct a successful banking business, or a safe and profitable banking business, even, is comparatively easy. To build up a safe and profitable banking business on a broad and liberal basis is, however, quite another thing. To calculate interests and discounts, and to loan money on absolutely safe securities is one thing, to stand at the head of a monetary institution which turns the wheels of industry, which expands the trade of a community and promotes enterprise while calculating discounts and making safe loans, is quite another thing. While the bankers themselves migh object to the classification, the difference between these two forms of banking appears to the intelligent layman, to be practically the difference between "note shaving" and real financiering. To engage successfully in the one kind of banking, man needs to have little more than cash capital and a grasping disposition. To engage successfully in the other kind of banking he must have cash capital, good judgment, a thorough knowledge of trade conditions, public spirit, rare tact, unswerving integrity and a genius for the solution of financial problems which present themselves for consideration in continually changing forms.

Had Mr. Frame received his financial training in one of the great monetary institutions of the country under the tutelage of financiers of recognized ability, he would have been entitled to no little credit for what he has accomplished; but it is infinitely more to his credit to have reached a place among the leading financiers of Wisconsin through a process of self training, which makes the story of his life one of peculiar interest to young men who have to make their own way in the world. He was born in Waukesha on the 19th of February, 1844. His father was Maxwell Frame, who came from Ayrshire, Scotland, to America in 1836, and after stopping for a time in Fowlerville, New York, came to Wisconsin and settled in Waukesha—then Prairie ville—in 1840. The elder Frame was a blacksmith by trade, and in addition to being an exceptionally fine mechanic, had a large share of the thrift and sagacity characteristic of his countrymen. He ac quired a home and other real estate in the village of Prairieville, and having something more than two thousand dollars beside, he was accounted one of the wealthy pioneers of the village at the time of his death, at thirty years of age, in 1844. His wife, who before her marriage was Miss Jane Aitken, also of Scotch nativity, and two sons, Henry M. and A. J. Frame, survived him. A. J. Frame was only ten months of age, and his brother only twenty months older when their father died, and the subject of this sketch was born within a few rods of the place where he has been engaged in the banking business since The present site of the bank is that upon which the blacksmith shop of the elder Frame stood in 1844. The old homestead near by still remains in the possession of the family, and was undisturbed until 1892, when it gave place to a handsome stone business block erected by Henry M. Frame. The death of Maxwell Frame in 1844 brought about the change in the prosperous condition of his family. His worthy wife was left, it is true, with a home and some other property, but the strong arm and vigorous manhood, which had furnished the means of livlihood and added to the resources of the little family, were gone, and frugality, economy and industry became the watchwords of the household.

In his early boyhood, therefore, Andrew J. Frame had the thorough economic and industrial training which his mother's determination to live within her small income made necessary. He wore plain, cheap clothes, and wherever he could earn a penny honestly, he sought to earn that penny. Many or Internal, Blind or Bleeding, Itching or of the older citizens of Waukesha recall with pleas-Burning, Fissures and Fistulas. The relief them, or furnished them with certain household supplies, and the banker himself recalls with no less It cures Inflamed or Caked Breasts and pleasure those early experiences. He received a good businss education in the public schools of Waukesha, being especially proficient in mathematics, and being no less noted for his activity and interest > to his studies. When he left school at seventeen honors, his uncle—John Patterson—who looked upon him as an exceptionally promising lad, offered to defray the expenses of a collegiate course, and allow ing in his own home, however, the sweetest joys of him to repay the amount expended at a later date, life. but having a natural aversion to being in debt, he de-

During the latter part of 1861 and the early part of 1862, his time was wholly given up to the care of his mother, then an invalid; but in the spring of the latter year, he entered the Waukesha County tion consisted mainly in sweeping out the rooms in which the business was carried on, dusting the books and counters, and running errands. While engaged in this employment, however, he was fitting himself for other work, and before long he became bookkeeper. He was then made teller and in 1865 was promoted to assistant cashier. bank. Some unfortunate speculations in which the managers of the business were engaged a little later, resulted in their being invited to retire, and Mr. Frame was asked to accept the position of cashier. This was in 1866, and he was then but twenty-two years of age. The reply of this invitation evidences the material of which he is made, and furnishes a key to the secret of his subsequent success. The answer was in substance as follows: "Gentlemen, am a young man. You know you have considerable accept the position which you offer me on one condition only, and that is that no dividends be declared until every piece of questionable paper is wiped cents on the dollar. Your newspaper card says, 'Capital paid in fifty thousand dollars, and you know were associated with Mr. Frame at that time to say sweet morsels to the stockholders of institutions of and fifty thousand dollars, a surplus of sixty-five April 18th, 1902.) It is reasonably certain that its business is carried on, than any other bank in the state of Wisconsin, and whereas the stock was worth less than fifty per cent of its face value in 1866, it is now worth fifty per cent premium. Mr. Frame be came a director of the bank in 1869 and president in 1880, and since 1866 he has been its chief execu-tive officer. What he had accomplished in WAUKESHA, WISCONSIN.

Candidate for Congress in the Fifth building up this institution testifies strongly as to his ability as a financier, and illustrates the truth of the old adage that honesty the best policy in banking as in everything else When he became cashier he accepted the position at one half the salary offered him at the same time in another Wisconsin bank, because he felt that the affairs of the bank must be economically managed and he looked to the future for his reward. That this reward has come to him in abundant prosperity, and in the unbounded confidence of an entire com munity of intelligent people, is known to all those who know anything of the town of Waukesha, conspicuous as the largest village in Wisconsin and as having the largest export trade in mineral waters of any town in the United States. That the years which have passed since 1866 have given Mr. Frame a high standing in the financial world outside of the community with which he is identified, is known also to those who give closer attention to matters of finance. In his acts as a banker, in public utterances and in published papers, he has evidenced the fact that he "sees straight and thinks clearly" and among the younger bankers of Wisconsin none has imessed this fact more forcibly upon the financiers of Chicago, Milwaukee and other cities east as well as west. A paper on the subject "Money and Wealth," read by him before the Wisconsin Bankers' Association at Milwaukee in 1894, attracted widespread attention, was published in leading banking journals of the country and won the commendation of no small number of noted financiers. Speaking on this occasion of the Greshan Law theory, "that bad money drives out good money," he drew the following "pat" illustration: "I will call gold 'cream, silver 'skiru-milk' and paper money 'water.' Each nation has a large reservoir filled with these liquids and all the reservoirs are connected by canals, so that all will naturally seek a common level. Now suppose the United States pours a sufficient quantity of 'water' into its reservoir to overflow it, what runs off into the reservoirs of other countries? 'Cream' of course. What runs off if we pour into the reservoir 'skim-milk' in free coinage doses? 'Cream' of course. Do the statesmen of the best land on earth desire to leave us on a diet of 'skim-milk' and 'water' and give other nations the 'cream?'"

Another paper on the subject of "Banking and Currency Reform," read before the Milwaukee, Wis., Bankers' Club, at a meeting held early in 1895, at tracted still wider attention and gained for him the reputation of being the "clearest writer on financial topics in the state of Wisconsin." The head of a model banking institution, so far as its conduct and management is concerned, Mr. Frame has sought to make it instrumental in the general upbuilding and prosperity of Waukesha, while guarding carefully the interests of the bank and its stockholders. Public spirited and enterprising in everything, he has been the friend of every movement to add to the attractiveness, or contribute toward development of the re sources of the village. In the heated controversy ever the matter of piping water from the famous Waukesha springs to Chicago, he was an uncompromising opponent of a scheme which would have robbed the village of much prestige as a place of resort, and of the extensive revenue derived therefrom. He was one of the most tireless, persistent and forceful leaders of the movement which resulted in the everthrow of that project backed by vast capital and shrewd manipulators, and to him pelongs a large share of the credit for what was saved to the people of Waukesha in this instance.

Absorbed in his business to a large extent, Mr. Frame has had but little time to give to politics, and has sought no politicial office. He has, however, always been a Republican, believing in moderate protection for American, and free trade for British in dustries, and in money good the world over because of the knowledge that "its redeemer liveth."

He has participated actively in managing the affairs of the village, having served as a member of the Board of Trustees and helped to model public opinion in favor of a sewer system, street grades and other improvements. In educational matters he has been perhaps more active than in anything aside from purely business pursuits. Since 1872 he has been a member of the village school board with the exception of one year, and in the Columbian History of Education in Wisconsin, it is stated that "this is the longest service on the school board which appears to the credit of any person, and it is not too much to say that every advance made in the village schools since 1872 has either originated with Mr. Frame or had his hearty and earnest support. He has also served for years as a member of the board of trustees of Carroll College, and much of the time as treasurer of the board.

In addition to his banking interests, he has been identified with the electric light and waterworks companies of Waukesha as director and treasurer. is president of the Spring City Hotel Company, and a member of the executive committee of "The Wisyears of age, carying with him the highest school consin Bankers' Association." A charming woman, with many graces of person and character, she has made the beautiful home of her Bank as an office boy. This was one of the State banks of Wisconsin, which had been organized in 1855, and Mr. Frame's first employment in the institu-hold. All having a taste for music, this hospitable home is the scene of frequent delightful entertainments, and sojourners in the "Spring City" not infrequently carry away with them pleasant memories of evenings spent with the banker's family."

Along with executive ability of a high order, indomitable perseverance, sterling integrity, and kindly courtesy under all circumstances, are characteristics to which attention has not been called already in this sketch of his career. He has been intensely loyal to the interest of the village in which he was born and grew up, and this loyalty, and perhaps a bit of tender sentiment as well, has been at tested by his refusal, in two instances, to accept at a handsome salary, the vice-presidency of banks, each questionable paper and you are going to lose more of which was capitalized at a million dollars, located money on account of last year's experience. Last week Friday the building committee of the county board of supervisors met to receive the bids for the erection of the county insane asylum, and the figures were so high that the committee proceeded to throw them all out instanter. But this was all the information as to figures that could be obtained from contractors or bidders.

New bids will be received on the 12th of May, but there is an impres sion prevailing that with conditions as they now are, it will be impossible to secure contracts within the limits of the bond issue.

Among the local contractors who submitted bids were the Waukesha Stone company, George L. Dwinnell, Reid Brcs., and Michael Gleason. There were numerous bidders from Milwaukee and different parts of the state. Nearly all of the contractors making estimates were present. The new bids will be on the same plans and specifications as the previous
