BEAUTIFUL HOUSES.

The Tendency of the Age Is Toward

Mural Decorations. Probably at no time in the world's hisfory has as much attention been paid to the interior decoration of homes as at present. No home, no matter how humble, is without its handiwork that helps to beautify the apartments and make the surroundings more cheerful. The taste of the American people has kept pace with the age, and almost every day brings forth something new in the way of a picture, a draping, a piece of furniture or other form of mural decoration. One of the latest of these has been given to the world by the celebrated artist, Muville, in a series of four handsome porcelain game plaques. Not for years has anything as handsome in this line been seen. The subjects represented by these plaques are American wild ducks, American pheasant, American quail and English snipe. They are handsome paintings and are especially designed for hanging on dining room walls, though their richness and beauty entitles them to a place in the parlor of any home. These original plaques have been purchased at a cost of $50,000 by J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co., manufacturers of the celebrated Elastic Starch, and in order to enable their numerous customers to become possessors of these handsome works of art they have had them reproduced by a special process, in all the rich colors and beauty of the original. They are finished on heavy cardboard, pressed and embossed in the shape of a plaque and trimmed with a heavy band of gold. They measure forty inches in circumference and contain no reading matter or advertisement what-

Every grocery store in the country has Elastic Starch for sale. It is the oldest and best laundry starch on the market and is the most perfect cold process starch ever invented. It is the only starch made by men who thoroughly understand the laundry business, and the only starch that will not injure the finest fabric. It has been the standard for a quarter of a century and as an evidence of how good it is twenty-two million packages were sold last year. ### AIDED BY MRS. PINKHAM.

Mrs. W. E. PAXTON, Youngtown, North Dakota, writes about her struggle to regain health after the birth of her little girl:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:-It is with pleasure that I add my testimony to your list, hoping that it may induce others to avail themselves of your valnable medicine.

"After the birth of my little girl, three years ago, my health was very poor. I had leucorrhœa badly, and a terrible bearing-down pain which gradually grew worse, until I could do no work. Also had headache nearly all the time, and dizzy feelings. Menstruations were very profuse, appearing every two weeks. 'I took medicine from a good doctor, but it seemed to do no good. I was becoming alarmed over my condition, when I read your advertisement in a paper. I sent at once for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking two-thirds of the bottle I felt so much better that I send for two more. After using three bottles I felt as strong and well as any

"I think it is the best medicine for female weakness ever advertised, and recommend it to every lady I meet suffering from this trouble.'

Maternity is a wonderful experience and many women approach it wholly unprepared. Childbirth under right conditions need not terrify women.

The advice of Mrs. Pinkham is freely offered to all expectant mothers, and her advice is beyond question the most valuable to be obtained. If Mrs. Paxton had written to Mrs. Pinkham before confinement she would have been saved much suffering. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

In addition to Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., and the barracks at Plattsburg, N. Y., which the surgeon-general has in view for convalescents, he has now determined to use Madison Barracks, N. Madrid Orders the Governor Porto Rico to Make Only a Show of Resistance.

New York, Aug. 6 .- A dispatch to the Herald from Madrid says: The govern-ment has given orders that the minister of war shall not force resistance in Porto Rico to the utmost. This is at the instigation of Premier Sagasta, who deplores any unnecessary loss of life, knowing that Porto Rico will inevitably fall into the hands of the Americans.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.-Col. This will enable him, it is claimed, to prove many things which otherwise would be glossed over and give him a chance to show up the mistakes made by the secretary of

TO RETIRE CAPT. CLARK.

Health of the Gallant Captain of the Oregon Has Failed.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 6.—Capt. Charles E. Clark, commanding the battleship Oregon, has been condemned by a board of medical survey and will be sent board of medical survey and will be sent home from Guantanamo, Cuba, on the next vessel that starts north. This announcement was cabled to the navy department by Admiral Sampson, and although not wholly unexpected, it was a great shock to the naval administration. For some days it had been known that the strain of overwork incidental to the memorable voyage of his peerless ship around Cape Horn and the arduous tour of watch duty off Santiago, cuiminating around Cape Horn and the arduous tour of watch duty off Santiago, cuiminating in the magnificent dash past the other battleships when Admiral Cervera attempted to escape, had seriously affected Capt. Clark's physical strength and that he was on the verge of breaking down. Only a few weeks ago his responsibilities were augmented by the selection of the Oregon as Commodore Watson's fagship and orders were issued appointing Capt. Clark chief of staff. The additional duties imposed by this assignment were of an exhausting, worrying character, and they told quickly upon him.

Spain Submits the United States Terms of Peace.

HITCH ON ONE POINT.

Thinks it Must Submit to the Cortes the Question of the Cession of Territory.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—At 2:40 o'clock a dispatch was received at the French embassy and in view of the imminence of the Spanish reply to the American peace terms, it is believed to be Spain's answer.

The dispatch received at the French embassy, it is learned, was the Spanish answer to America's terms of peace. It was in cipher and it quite long. The emwas in cipher and is quite long. The embassy staff began its translation at once, but it will take some time to complete the work.

At 3.00 c'clock the Spanish reply was

At 3:20 o'clock the Spanish reply was still arriving at the French embassy, the fourth section having just been received. Madrid, Aug. 8—9 a. m.—The Liberal this morning says: The government accepts the United States' conditions, ad reterendum, believing that it is not authorized to cede territory without the vote of the Cortes. If McKinley objects the Cortes will be convoked this month. A fresh note from President McKinley, replying to Spain's reply, is expected during the course of this week. Continuing. ing the course of this week. Continuing, the Liberal expresses the opinion that "Certain passages of Spain's reply may lead to an exchange of cable messages of a critical nature, possibly creating fresh difficulties."

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—Spain's answer to the demands of the United States is now on the way to Washington, but it is coming with a slowness almost painful in view of the earnest desire to know whether the acceptance is complete or qualified.

The reply had not reached here during the early hours of the day. The French ambassador and staff awaited it until a late hear last pight and then concluded

These moves, including work on the cipher code, calls by Castillo on the foreign office and time required in cabling, will take, it is calculated, some eight or ten bours. Under the circumstances the impression prevailed in all official quarters up to midrailed in all official quarters up to mid-day, that the response would not be placed in the hands of the President until quite late today at best, and more likely not before tomorrow.

The impression is growing in official quarters that the Spanish answer, while in the nature of a concession of the American demand, is not a brief and simple acceptance without reservation or condition. There is no direct official advice on this point, but all the press advices from Madrid indicate that the response is a document of considerable length, prepared with laborious care, and that it has several features which may not appear in the the United

Whether an acceptance of this chara ter will be regarded by the authorities here as sufficiently responsive to the American demands is a matter exciting much conjecture today. In some quarters it is being urged that so long as Spain accepts the essential principle required by the United States the disposition here will be to deal with the defeated enemy in a generous spirit on minor details.

It is probable that this will be the view presented by the French ambassador in case the Spanish reply is not a simple, categorical acceptance of the American terms. On the other hand it is believed that a response which opens up diplomatic controversy and gives the conditions a much broader scope than was originally framed at Washington, may not meet with approval here. For instance, the Madrid advices seem to imply that the answer is based on an immediate cessation of hostilities, but the view among officials here is that hostilities will not cease on the submission of a conditional response, but that they will progress steadily until the American conditions progress entirely beyond the stage of possible diplomatic complication over details. response which opens up diplo-

There is a strong disposition in some influential quarters to have hostilities continue until the actual evacuation of Havana and Porto Rico begins by the embarkation of Spanish troops. It is probable that the Spanish reply will be in the hards of the generatory in time for the hands of the government in time for consideration at the regular cabinet meeting tomorrow when the sufficiency or insufficiency of the response can be deter-

The ocean rolls its tremendous breakers over the edge of a huge basin blasted out of the solid rock, and is led by tunnels and drains into the bathing pools, where it is kept constantly fresh and warm. The water is returned to the ocean several hundred feet from the intake, and by this circulation the pools are maintained in a perfectly clean condition. The principal tank of the baths is 275 feet long and 150 feet wide. The capture of Guayama Friday was marked by stiff fighting, in which Col. Bennitt's boys of the Third Illinois and the Fourth Ohio regiment under Col. Coit won honors by their steadiness and obedience to orders. The latter regiment had two dynamite guns which proved of great value and worried the Spaniards very perceptibly when they got to work. The enemy began the attack three miles from Arroyo, firing from ambush. Our boys were as cool as veterans, and after two hours of sharp work sent the Spaniards flying to the hills. The American troops were armed with Krag-Jorgensen rifles and fired smokeless powder, while the were armed with Krag-Jorgensen rifles and fired smokeless powder, while the Spaniards had inferior weapons instead of the regulation Mausers. There were about 400 Spanish soldiers engaged in the attack, and they did the best they could, being aided by the strong position which they held. None of the Illinois men was hurt, but four men of the Fourth Ohio received wounds. One Spaniard was killed and a number were wounded.

THE MOSS ROSE'S REVIVAL.

An Old-Fashioned Flower Whick is

Once More Popular. The dainty, unpretentious moss rose, which used to be cultivated carefully in every old-fashioned garden, and which was a favorite among its family years was a favorite among its family years ago, before American beauties and the many modern varieties of roses had been developed by the florists, is enjoying a restoration to favor this season. Bunches of moss rosebuds are to be seen in the windows of the principal florist shops, and more of the flowers are being sold now than have been on the market for many years. The blossoms are larger and finer than they have ever been. This rose in order to appear at its best must rose in order to appear at its best must not be beyond the stage of the half-opened bud, but occasionally two or three of the flowers in a bunch will be nearly full bloom, and the contrast they afford to the others only heightens the beauty of both. Bunches of two dozen moss rosebuds sell for about 75 cents at most places.

The moss rose blooms only once in the year and always at this season. It has a history which runs back 300 years, for it is known to have been introduced into England from Holland in 1596. It is a "most" or accidental bull revisition. "sport" or accidental bud variation of the Provence or cabbage rose, different from the latter only in the mossy substance which covers its ealyx and the upper part of its stem. The garden where it originated and the name of its discoverer are lost, the only thing certain being that to the Dutch—for many centuries enthusiastic flower lovers—belongs the credit of starting the species credit of starting the species.

"Let another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth; a stranger, and not thine own lips," is a proverb current among the people who form the subject of this paper; and being one of them, I feel that it would be better, before citing figures and facts, to let Gentile Americans who have made a study of the New York Ghetto answer the question. Here is what Jacob A. Riis, an accepted authority on "how the other half lives," says of Jewish immigrants:

"They [the Jews] do not rot in their slum, but, rising, pull it up after them.

* * * As to their poverty, they brought us boundless energy and industry to overcome it. * * * They brought temperate habits and a redeeming love of home. Their strange customs proved the strongest ally of the Gentile health officer in his warfare upon the slum. The death rate of poverty-stricken Jew-town, despite its crowding, is lower always than that of the homes of the rich. * * * I am a Christian, and hold that in his belief the Jew is sadly in error. So that he may respect mine I insist on fair play for him all round. I am sure that our city has today no better and no more loyal citizen than the Jew-be he poor or rich—and none she has less to be ashamed of."

Hat Bands and Veils.

We have all heard of Dick's hat band, but that is not the sort peculiar to the new summer headgear of Newport swells. The hat bands they sport are revelations of intricate colorings, and, moreover, are said to have some special significance to their wearer, a language of their own; perhaps a Martian telegraphy, which groundlings may never read. As though to rival this hat band interest, the women have taken on another, in the fashion of fastening their veils. The floating ends are as much an index of an up-to-date young woman's up-to-dateness as the obever of femininity requires. Instead confining the veil under the brim of her hat, she now wishes it to assume the negligence of the early Victorian veil, and it bobs and floats in the breeze according to the step or motion of the wear-er. This, like many other "touches," marks the style of the moment.—Boston

THE BADGERS AT PONCE.

Incidents of the Occupation of a Porto Rico City.

WISCONSIN ON GUARD.

Saved Many Spanish Soldiers from the Fury of the Excited Populace.

Ponce, Porto Rico, July 30.-[Special.] -The invading army is now making itself very much at home on Porto Rican soil. While future, and even present, military operations are very uncertain, the soldiers are familiarizing themselves with the country on the principle that while you are in Rome you do as the Romans do.

The Second and Third Wisconsin regiments are now encamped close together a couple of miles north of Ponce, and relieve each other on outpost duty. The Sixteenth Pennsylvania is to the eastward of their position. Gen. Ernst has established headquarters near the Wisconsin regiments; Gen. Wilson is in the city of regiments; Gen. Wilson is in the city of Ponce, and Gen. Miles will establish himself in the field as soon as the plan of operations is laid out.

The base of operations is in as pretty a spot as can be imagined, though the rainstorms transform the fields into mire. When the troops disembarked from the transports the 'Third Wisconsin was in the van. They were preceded into the harbor by the Massachusetts, the Cincinnati and the Yankee with the auxiliary cruisers. The warships took up position, but as already told, there was no opposition to the landing.

"Glad Hand" from Natives.

"Glad Hand" from Natives.

"Glad Hand" from Natives.

The natives received the troops with enthusiasm. The "glad hand" was constantly outstretched from the time the soldiers were helped off the lighters until the guard lines were established. As soon as the troops had formed, Cos. I and H of the Third were sent into the country to seize the city of Ponce, two miles inland and within easy range of the guns of the battleships. The companies took the barracks vacated by the Spanish soldiers a few hours before, which they still hold, and the public square, while Co. E seized the rullway station. Soon the brigade came out and took a position in advance. Outpost and picket work was at once established. The remainder of the troops camped in their shelter teats out in the open field. Soon the rain came down and soaked them and made them uncomfortable as they never were before.

The troops had taken two days' rations with them in their haversacks. That is they were ordered to do so and it was supposed that they had. But the men who landed from the vessels had thoroughly expected to fight their way into the country and had made their loads as light as possible, not taking the necessities of life with them. The blanket bags were left aboard ship, where they still are, three days afterwards. No arrangements being made to feed the troops, the available supply was soon exhausted. The men were hungry, but were ordered not to buy of the natives, while they were afraid the retreating Spanish had poisoned the water so that reliance was placed upon the canteens for water.

The stringency has now been relieved by the men being allowed to drink the water and nurchase of the natives.

The siringency has now been relieved by the men being allowed to drink the water and purchase of the natives—ex-cept certain kinds of fruit—though anything savoring of pilfering is strictly pro-hibited.

Reminds One of Quo Vadis.

The scenes being enacted before the eyes of the American soldiers will probably bover be repeated to them. The reader of "Quo Vadis" will see for himself a re-enactment of those scenes in part. The populace is add with excitement. The natives, for years trodden under foot by the Spanish, see their way to get even. The excitable natives are aroused and they are doing everything to show their loyalty to the United States. Pictures of Premier Sagasta and others are paraded upside down and spat upon; Spanish coats-of-arms and ornaments are trodden under foot and crowds besiege the quarters of the invading army. Reminds One of Ouo Vadis.

The people have undertaken the arrest of the Spaniards. The troops which were here were composed partly of regulars and partly of volunteers, about 1000 in all. The volunteers are now secretly returning to the city and as fast as they can be ferreted out are arrested. In some instances armed intervention by the partly has been necessary to prevent a some instances armed intervention by the guards has been necessary to prevent a massacre of a squad of prisoners by the mob, composed of men and women anxious to show their friendship. Today they cought a "grandee" and were taking him to the prison. A native rushed at the Spaniard with a matchete and but for interference by the Wisconsin boys he would have been murdered. Doubtless the populace would be fickle enough to show the same loy over a return of the show the same joy over a return of the Spanish. The soldiers feel this and don't trust thomselves where they might get a trust themselves where they might get a knife in the back.

At first the natives gladly gave their fruits to the invaders, but the prompt payment of money has caused them to get wise and they now want the coin. A $5 United States gold piece will get $10 in Porto Rico or Spanish silver. United States bills bring less, about $8 for $5.

Advantage is being taken of the natives in their ignorance of money. The soldiers are floating hundreds of Confederate bills on the tradesmen and getting their depreciated silver currency in exchange.

The natives are a bright-looking lot who "vivo Americanos" on all occasions. They are also doing their best to teach Spanish to about 3500 men, and incidentally pick up a little English. Their first lessens are usually in profamity caused by the wrath of the troops when they first find that the fellows won't understand.

Cos. I and H. of the Third Wisconsin have one of the most responsible positions, though not daugerous at this time.

Tried to Burn the Barracks.

Before evacuating, the Spanish attempts ed to burn the barracks, a fine new structure, better than most of the militia armories of the United States, and set off the magazine. Why they failed is a mystery explainable only by the haste of their departure. They also tried to burn the town, but were frustrated by the native figures.

The men, however, had fine equipments, said to be the result of pillage of the stores, they buying by force. The average Spanish infantryman was better fitted out with clothing than is the average officer of the United States army. tachment arrived and the work was rudely interrupted with bayonets.

Most of the men got fine souvenirs out of the soldiers' chests, several hundred in number, but have no means of carrying the articles home to Menomonic or West Superior. They have fine silk handkerchiefs, silk socks, shirts, etc., knives, revolvers, purses, money, books, to say nothing of brass buttons galore and other knicknacks. knicknacks.

Among the rifles captured are a few of the new Mauser style, but the arms of the Spanish garrison here were mostly Remirigton rifles. They, however, had the brass bullets, a quantity of which were found, thus disproving the denial of Spain that they were not using this poisonous missile.

Surprise Farm Notes. Habits.

Man is a bundle of habits. If a man does a thing a few times, regularly, it becomes a habit, and after a man has practiced a habit for a while he does it unconsciously or without thinking, and then it becomes what we call second nature. Now this is about the course all our habits have run.

It seems to be a natural law that when we undertake to do anything, that we have never done before, it is generally very hard and awkward at first, but the longer we stick to it, the easier it is to do it and at last, what was at first a hardship, becomes a real pleasure. Think over any of your habits; take the habit of reading how hard it was to learn to read how easy it is now. Most of what we do now is the result of habits that we got into long ago.

When persons get to be thirty years old or older, many of us get set in our ways and very hard to form new habits. We think our way just right and there can be no other way. Now this is a very bad habit to get into. I hope that you have not formed this habit, if not I think you can avoid the habit by cultivating the habit of forming good habits. You may think this a queer expression. The habit of forming good habits, but if you will stop to think a minute about it you will see that after a person has formed a few good habits and sees the benefits arising from them, he will naturally try to form more good habits and thus this habit will run the same course of other habits. And the ports are "cooked." time comes soon when it will be second nature, to form good habits.

I don't think that a person that has this habit will ever be set, because he is always on the look out for new habits, that are good, and he is always looking on both sides of a habit or question and is ready to put a new habit in the place of an old one as soon as he is convinced that his old habit is a bad one, his motto is "A wise man changes his mind often, a fool never".

The same law applies to bad habits also, one bad habit leads to another, until th mind weakens and becomes a slave to bad habits. Recollect that all good habits are in obedience to natural laws and are rewarded with happiness and all bad habits are violations of natural law and punished with pain. Also remember that a natural law can not be dodged. There is another habit that will be a great help to a person that wishes to form good habits and that is to practice the advice you are so free to give your friends, yourself. Swallow your own medicine. If you watch yourself you will be astonished at the amount of advice you give your friends every day and how little you practice it yourself. How can you expect your friends to follow your advice if you don't do it yourself. Practice what you talk. Get into the habit of forming good habits. A man is a bundle of habits.

TRAINING A WARHOR E.

How He Is Taught to Stand the Blaze and Thunder of Battle.

A warhorse is broken to be steady under fire by tying ropes to bis legs. While the animal is down on the ground the officer takes a pistol and fires it close to his ear. Then in rapid order he fires the weapon over his back under his neck, between his legs, and where that an opening presents itself during the horse's futile struggles. Not until he sinks back exhausted, all a emble and showing the whites of his eyes, does the pistol practice cease.

After two or three lessons of this kind it is considered safe to mount a bridle furnished with a curb to this time the horse has never felt a curb. The light snaffle is still ained, and the curb bridle is only given a gentle pressure at first, just enough to let him know that it is there. Gradually the strength of the pull is increased, and with this safeguard the horse is taught to stand fire from his rider's pistol or carbine.

In carbine practice the horse must be thoroughly broken, as both hands are required in using this weapon, whereas with the pistol the rider may retain the bridle with one hand.

Then comes saber practice, and that is another trial to the horse. Again is he thrown to the ground, and he probably can't understand why he should have to suffer this indignity all over again, for he has learned that lesson very well. But when the bright blade of the saber, with quick thrusts flashing before his eyes and cutting the air in close proximity to his ears, appears to him he is again terror stricken.

But the lesson he bas learned from the smell of gunpowder stands him in good stead, and he soon gets over his fear. And even with a man on his back and another mounted upon a seasoned horse coming at him with saber raised in the air or slashing left and right he knows that it is all a part of his education and something to be expected. So he stands his ground or cavorts about the other horse while the two troopers indulge in their saber practice.-New

The Chipper Youth Knew What Usually Happened In Such Cases.

The fresh young man with no respec in his soul for gray hairs and dyed whiskers swung himself on the car in the middle of a block, and leaning against the brake handle proceeded to roll a cigarette with great deftness. ## A STRANGE SENTENCE.

Punishment For a Murder That Was More Cruel Than Death.

In 1801 a man died in the Catskills who had been condemned by one of the strangest sentences on record. Ralph Sutherland was born in 1701 and lived in a stone house near Leeds. He was a man of violent temper and morose disposition, shunned by his neighbors and generally disliked. Not being able to get an American servant, he imported a Scotchwoman, and, according to the usage of the times, virtually held her in bondage until her passage money had been refunded. Unable to endure any longer the raging temper of her master, the girl ran away. Immediately upon discovering her absence the man set off in an angry chase upon his horse and soon overtook her. The poor woman never reached the house alive, and Sutherland was indicted and arrested on the charge of murder.

At the trial he tried to prove that his horse had taken fright, run away, pitched him out of the saddle and dashed the girl to death upon the rocks, but the jury did not accept the defense, and Sutherland was sentenced to die upon the scaffold.

Then came the plea of the insufficiency of circumstantial evidence and the efforts of influential relations. These so worked upon the court that the judge delayed the sentence of death until the prisoner should be 99 years old.

It was ordered that the culprit should be released on his own recognizance, and that, pending the final execution of his sentence, he should keep a hangman's noose about his neck and show himself before the judges of Catskill once a year to prove that he wore his badge of infamy and kept his crime in mind. It was a more cruel decision than the sentence of immediate death would have been, but it was no doubt in harmony with the spirit of the times.

Thus Ralph Sutherland lived. He always lived alone. He seldom spoke. His rough, imperious manner had gone. Years followed years. At each session of the court the broken man came before the bar of justice and silently showed the noose that circled his neck.

At last his ninety-ninth year came, the time when the court had ordered that the utmost penalty of the law should be executed. For the last time the man tottered before the judge's bench, but new judges had arisen in crimes had been forgotten or forgiven, and there was none who would accuse him or execute sentence. Indeed the awful restriction that had bound his life so intimately to the expiation of his crime was now legally removed.

But the spirit of self punishment continued, and when Sutherland, after he had passed his hundredth year, was discovered dead, alone in his house, his three-quarters of a century before. Youth's-Companion.
