The Spaniards seem to have an idea that the red cross is a fair target.

Camara's engineers having ruined the boilers of the ships of his fleet, perhaps American shells may not be needed to blow the fleet out of existence.

The Spaniards wisely concluded to keep the bottom close to the top when they prepared to go down with their ships rather than surrender the fleet to the Americans.

Hobson will soon have an opportunity to see whether the Spaniards, with everything their own way, succeeded in making a better cork of the Reina Mercedes than he did of the Merrimac.

The stories of Hobson's feat and the destruction of the fleets at Manila and Santiago will bear repetition. The details of the battles are spicy chapters in the annals of the American navy.

According to accounts, the colored troops at Santiago fought bravely during the terrible assault upon the Spanish wire fences and earthworks. The "color line" in Cuba just now is the line of battle.

The Spanish mutineers on the Harvard were quickly forced to the conclusion that the Americans are masters of their own ships. They should have known that from the manner in which the American "jackies" tried to annex Cervera's fleet.

The report that Yousouf, the "Terrible 'Turk," fought off drowning people with a stiletto, at the sinking of the Bourgogne, shows that physical strength and moral courage are vastly different attri-butes. The "Terrible Turk" vanquished everybody he met in the wrestling arena, but, if report be true, he went down like a coward when there was opportunity for a display of heroism.

The theory that the anchor of the Cromartyshire caught in the hole made by the bow of the ship, and tore along through the side of the Bourgogne, opening several of her compartments, will account for the sudden sinking of the steamer, if there were no longitudinal bulkheads. A ship with longitudinal as well as transverse bulkheads could withstand a tearing wound by an anchor on a colliding vessel.

Capt. Philip of the Texas, who after the Almirante Oquendo and the Cristobal Colon had been disposed of, called all hands to the quarter-deck of his vessel and bade them to lift their hats from their heads and offer silent thanks to the Almighty, will be likened by Southeners to Stonewall Jackson and by Northerners to Gen. O. O. Howard. The English will compare him to "Chinese" Gordon. A

The death of Rear-Admiral Ammen, the designer of the ram Katahdin, who was an authority on the subject of rams and ramming, will call attention to the fact that the Katahdin has thus far had no opportunity to demonstrate her value, and also to the fact that the experience of our naval vessels thus far shows that the ram has little opportunity to display her qualities in these days of longrange fighting. The ram may be efficient for harbor defense, against a single anbut in an angagement like that between the fleets at Santiago she would become a target for too many guns to be able to close in upon an enemy.

seen weaving blankets and working filigree ernaments; the Sioux, Pawnees and Cheyennes tanning hides and making moccasins, while the Chippewas will build birchbark canoes. At certain periods religious ceremonies and social festivities and dances will be introduced to illustrate the peculiar rites and customs of the aboriginal Indian. The progress of the American Indian in the line of civilization will be illustrated by the pupils of the best Indian schools and the handiwork of the semi-civilized and civilized red man and red woman. One of the Omaha papers reports that the invitations that have been extended by the Indian bureau to the Canadian and Mexican governments to co-operate in this congress will undoubtedly be accepted, so that the gathering will actually represent the Indians of entire North America. The Indian in anything approaching his wild state will soon be a thing of history only and the value of a congress of this sort, especially if a careful study and pictorial record of the types are made, is of inestimable value.

The lower, ing of this emblem of the defunct sovereignty of Spain in this part of the world was witnessed by a few Spanish and American troops on shore and by the Brooklyn, New York, Vixen and Vesuvius, lying within a few hundred yards of the harbor entrance.

Almost immediately after the flag was hauled down steam launches commanded by Lieuts. Hobson and Palmer entered the harbor, penetrating as far as the fap ing stations of the submarine mines. These mines were judged to be not se formidable as expected, and later in the ofternoon they were all exploded under the supervision of the Vixen.

It was seen that two mines had been exploded at the time of the entrance of the Merrimac into the channel of Santi-ago harbor, but it is not thought that either of them had anything to do with the sinking of the craft.

Executive Mansion, Washington, D. C., July 18, 1898.—The Secretary of War: The capitulation of the Spanish forces in Santiago de Cuba and in the eastern part of the province of Santiago and the occupation of the territory by the forces of the United States, render it necessary to instruct the military commander of the United States as to the conduct which he is to observe during the military companies of the military occupation.
The first effect of the military occupation of the former political relations of the inhabitants and the establishment of a new political relations. It is my desire that the inhabitants of Cuba should be acquainted with the purpose of the fullest extent its obligations in this regard. It will therefore be the duty of the commander of the army of occupation to announce and proclaim in the most public manner that we come not to make war upon Inhabitants of Cuba nor upon any party or faction among them, but to protect them in their personal and religious rights. Local Municipal Laws Continued. Though the powers of the military oc-cupant are absolute and supreme and im-mediately operate upon the political condi-tion of the inhabitants the municipal laws of the conquered territory, such as affect private rights of person or property and provide for the punishment of crime are con-cidered as continuing in force so fer as they provide rights of person of property and provide for the punishment of crime are con-sidered as continuing in force so far as they until they are suspended or superseded by the occupying beligerent; and in practice they are not usually albrogated, but are al-lowed to remain in force and to be admin-istered by the ordinary tribunals, substan-tially as they were before the occupation. This enlightened practice is, so far as pos-sible, to be adhered to on the present occa-sion. The judges and the other officials con-nected with the administration of justice, may, if they accept the supremacy of the United States, continue to administer the ordinary law of the land, as between man and man, under the supervision of the Amer-ican commander-in-chief. He will then possess the power to regulate or expel the native of-ficials in part or altogether to substitute new courts of his own constitution for those that now exist, or to create such new or supple-mentary tribunals as may be necessary. In the exercise of these high powers, the commander must be guided by his judgment and his experience and a high sense of justice.

All Their Rights. ISSUE PROCLAMATION. First Document of Its Kind Ever Is-sued by a President--Its Text. Washington, D. It provides in general terms for the governering and stretch it over the frame until the set is the racing shell, but if a crack oarsman of one of our crack colleges were tied in a kaiak and told to shift for him-self, even in smooth water, he would have a hard time of it. The "kaiak" has been evolved through hundreds of years of necessity. Without it the Greenland Eskimos, at least, would not be able to provide their daily bread, or, more properly speaking, their daily blubber. It is singular that all the materials used in the construction of the kaiak come from the sea; driftwood for the frame, seal-skin for the covering, thorns for the har-poon and dart, ivory and bone for bow, stern and keel, and for the various imple-ments. The women prepare the skin cor-ering and stretch it over the frame until it is as tight and firm as the bead of a it is as tight and firm as the bead of a It is as tight and hrm as the bead of a drum; on such occasions there is great excitement in the community; a regular "kaiak bee" is held; even refreshments are not lacking, for the owner of the "kaiak" treats to coffee all around when the work is satisfactorily done.

the work is satisfactorily done. The completed boat is a triumph of in-genuity and skill. It is about eighteen feet long, sharply pointed at each end. Its greatest depth is six inches and its width about eighteen. It is entirely cov-ered save. for the little round hole into which the owner slips, pushing his feet underneath the skin deck in front. This hole is fitted to the person for whom the boat is designed, and his thighs completely fill it up. If he does not right himself at once he is inevitably drowned unless a comrade comes to his assistance. The usual meth-od of turning the "kaiak" upright again is by using the paddle as a lever, holding it along the side of the boat, pointing it toward the bow, then sweeping through the water, but those who are thoroughly proficient are able to do it by means of their throwing stick, their arm or even their hand.—I'hiladelphia Inquirer.

Use of Black Birch. Owing to the scarcity of both black walnut and cherry, says the Woodwork-er, black birch is largely taking the place of each. Black birch is much the same color as cherry, and is as easy to work as either cherry or walnut, and is as suitable for nearly all the purposes that those woods are used for. When prop-erly stained, it is nearly impossible to distinguish it from either walnut or cher-ry. It is susceptible to a high and beaury. mines were exploded. Capt. Cook of the Brooklyn is authority for the statement that the former Spanish flagship, the Infanta Maria Teresa, has floated off the reef on which she stranded and that her heavy armament is practical-ly uninjured. The captain also says this cruiser will almost surely be saved and form an addition to the United States, a trophy of the glorious July the third. The Cristobal Colon may also be saved, though a good deal depends upon the weather, which is very uncertain at this time of the year. ing Troops Home.

The San Jose scale, which has appeared in destructive numbers in parts of Maryland, is now nearly under control in that state and orchardists are happy. As soon as the dread insect appeared, Prof. W. G. Johnson, the state entomologist, and his assistant began a vigorous crusade against it, with the encouraging result recorded. It is thought that within the next few days the scale will be wholly exterminated, or, at least, reduced so that it can easily be kept under full control. The importance of fighting this pernicious pest in every possible way cannot be overestimated. The trouble that American shippers have had with Germany should be a lasting lesson to American growers. The fact that the scale could not be found in German orchards after the most diligent search, as was reported last week, does not remove the possibility of its getting there.

In view of the worrying the army officials at Washington have been doing over the problem of how to care for and guard the many thousand prisoners that will be taken in the Cuban campaign, the suggestion contained in a reminiscence of a New York German who fought in the Revolution of 1848 is not wholly valueless. "We were short of men," says the old warrior, "and had a large number of prisoners to look after. That did not worry us, as long as we were not moving, but one day we had to make a forced march. The country through which we were to pass was hostile, and extreme watchfulness was necessary. We had few enough men as it was, and we knew that those prisoners were ready to make a dead run at the first opening. Finally, a young officer made a brilliant suggestion, and it was promptly carried out. We ripped the suspender buttons from the prisoners' trousers, took away their helts and knew we had them. Their hands were busy after that and fast running was out of the question. We made the march safely, and I do not believe that even Yankee ingenuity could have invented a simpler solution.

RISE IN BOOK PAPER. It will Probably Follow Action

Taken by Mills of Fox River Valley.

Appleton, Wis., July 18 .- [Special.]-It is reported here today that the Western Book Papermakers' association, which comprises chiefly the Wisconsin, Michigan and Ohio manufacturers of this grade of paper, have determined to stop the manufacture of this paper for the summer months at least. It is also stated that the mills began under the new order of things this morning and the machines formerly worked on book are either idle or are making writing papers, in which grade there has been no change of conditions. As usual the manufacturbut it is understood that the decision to close down was made at a meeting of the association in Chicago last week. The association was recently organized and outside of a previous general increase in the price of the high-grade paper, this is the first official action of the organiza-tion. The Kimberly & Clark mills are largely affected, especially the mills in this city. The decision to suspend the manufacture of this grade of paper is probably part of an attempt to bring the price up ta a fair profit-making one for the millowners as well as one giving the mills a chance to do less work in the hot season, when power is so hard to get as it is now on the lower Fox. The mills are being obliged to call in the auxiliary are being obliged to call in the auxiliary steam plants to run their mills, entailing considerable expense and the demand for book paper is not so great that it re-quires a heavy run on the part of the mill men to keep the supply up. Other paper matters in the valley are in a prosperous condition. The big con-tract for the gearing machinery for the immense new print paper plant of the Northwestern Paper company at Cloquet, Minn., was let to the Rice machinery of Chicago. The figure is not given out, but it is understood to be in the neigh-borhood of $15,000. This figure does not indicate the big proportions of the con-tract, for it includes all of the little sun-drics of a modern mill and no costly madries of a modern mill and no costly machinery. The new mill at Marinette takes its first cooking today. The mill was con-structed by architect Pride of this city to replace one burned some months ago. The new sulphite at Menasha, says Mr. Pride, is also doing exceptionally fine work on hemlock instead of the spruce generally used by the mills work on hemlock instead of the spruce generally used by the mills. I'aper mill men claim that the shut-down is for a much shorter time than was generally believed, saying that it was only to last six days. Stevens Point, Wis., July 18.-Yester-day morning at 3:45 o'clock fire broke out and destroyed the Wisconsin River Pulp and Paper company's mill. It evidently originated from a hot-box. The thors, pulleys and belting were saturated with oil and the blaze, fanned by a great steam ventilating bellows, soon shot up through the belt holes in the floor to the machine room, and drove out the employes. Through some mistake the fire pumps were not put in operation until too late to save the mill. The mill was located two miles south of town and outside of the fire department limits. The mill was originally built in 1891, but was destroyed by fire and rebuilt and enlarged in 1895. The loss will be between $150,000 and $200,000, fully covered by insurance. George A. Whiting, president of the company, spent part of the day in the city in consultation with Robert Law, the papermill builder, and made the prelimi-

GUARD AGAINST FROST.

California Orchard to be Covered by a

Canvas Roof. The Everest orange orchard on Mag-nolia avenue, five miles from Riverside, Cut, is soon to be completely roofed in, This orchard, which is owned by Rochester, N. Y., men, is one of the most val-nable in this section, as the trees are all of the choicest varieties. To guard against frost the manager has decided to cover all the trees, and fifteen acros are already under roof. This shelter is very ingenions. It consists of a framework of light timbers, over which on winter nights light canvas will be spread. The total cost of this covering is about $400 an acre, very little when the value of the crop is considered. With small fires the temperature under the shell ter can be raised five degrees in a short time.

TO APPOINT H. M. LEWIS.

The New Bankruptcy Referee Law Effective August 1.

Effective August 1. Madison, Wis., .July18.-H. M. Lewis of Madison, who for many years was United States district attorney for the Western district of Wisconsin, will be chosen by Judge Romanzo Bunn as a ref-eree under the new federal bankrupt law, which goes into effect August 1. The office is a highly important one and is judicial in its nature. The law provides that courts of bankruptcy (federal judges) shall, within the territoral lim-its of which they have jurisdiction, ap-point referees each for a term of two years, and may in their discretion, repoint referees each for a term of two years, and may in their discretion, re-move them because their services are not needed or for other cause; and designate, and from time to time change, the lim-its of the district of referees, so that each county, where the services of a referees are needed, may constitute at least one district. For the present, however, it is thought that Mr. Lewis will be able to attend to all the business of the entire Western district.

A Soldier's Last Rites.

A Soldier's Last Rites. Oshkosh, Wis., July 18.—[Special.]— The funeral of William Pingel, who died in Fort Thomas last week, was held yes-terday. Pingel was color sergeant of Co. F from this city. His death makes the fifth on the list of dead soldiers who claimed Oshkosh as their home. Before he enlisted he held the position of stamp clerk in the Oshkosh mestoffice. He was clerk in the Oshkosh postofice. He was an old member of the National guard and he held his place with his company when it volunteered in the service of the United States. He was buried with Ma-sonic rites from Masonie temple.

canal somewhere. It does any person good to clean out this canal occasionally in a rational way, provided it is not done

Speculators are said to be busy buying up all the willow wood available for the use of the powder manufacturers. Trees not over four feet in diameter are the best and bring the most money. They are most thickly found along streams in Pennsylvania and adjoining states. The reason that willow is sought after is that it makes the best charcoal for mixing in the ingredients necessary in the makin of powder. Willow wood charcoal is als of powder. Willow wood charcoal is also more easily pulverized than that from any other wood. The wood is purchased by shrewd buyers, who claim that it is to be used for making kindling sticks, but a cord is worth ten times as much as cither pine or hickory. In times of peace its value amounts to but little.

Surprise Farm Notes.

The great stimulating purpose with every man, whether he is a farmer, merchant, or mechanic should be to rise above the average of his class. The farmer in particular should be filled with the ambition to show the world that he is something more than a farmer. He should strive to keep better cows, sheep and hogs than his neighbors. Show a better system of farm management, better crops, etc. Such a man will make larger profits and win larger respect from all classes. Too many have an ambition to own a large number of acres, thinking that will bring them larger respect and profit. This however, is not true. It is a splendid ambition that leads a man to shown by the neat, well kept house and grounds, the spacious well painted barns and out buildings, good fences, well bred farm animals and a thorough system of farm management. A young man of education and ability can find on the modern farm opportunity for all the brain power, all the skill and energy he can master. The rewards in money, health, comfort and true independence of character as well as the respect of his ellows are greater here than in town. Wise is the young man who says early in life "I propose to make of myself a Milwaukee, Wis, first class farmer. I will take all the advantages that wide reading and study can bring me. I will show my ability and my skill in the appearance and outcome of my farm. I will establish a neat tasty farm home that will show the passersby that a man of taste and intelligence Prosperity.

A man's conditon depends almost entirely upon himself. Luck is but a small factor to men in attaining wealth. Indus try, perseverance and good judgement make the foundation upon which a man builds well. The first start in life of many of our great men has been upon a farm. Opportunities are as good at present as they have been in the past. Fine hardwood farming lands in Northern Wisconsin adjacent to the Western Central Lines are still to be had at very reasonable figures and on easy terms. Build a home of your own and be happy.
