Proper village pride and public spirit ought to make it possible for all to unite at the village caucus. All those who have the interest of the village at heart will subscribe to the sentiment above expressed. Lay aside all politics, personal animosity and ill feeling, if any you have, and select capable men who will best serve the interest of the village and tax payers generally.

This is no time to get "even" at the expense of the community, but as it is just and right to flag the red flag at any one who may possibly have erred in opposing the corporation movement. The interest of the village, the maintenance of law and order and the good of society and business interest of all demand harmony and unity.

Members of the Bar Hold a Memorial Meeting For the Late Judge Warham Parks.

RESOLUTIONS PLACED ON RECORD

Resolutions of Respect are Offered and Addresses Made by a Number of Prominent Attorneys.

[Waukesha Press]

The Waukesha County bar held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the court house for the purpose of passing resolutions of respect for the late Judge Parks of Oconomowoc. The Judge's chair and desk and the sounding board back of the chair were draped with black and white crape tied with black and white satin ribbons, a large bunch of white carnations was hung above the vacant Judge's chair and a bouquet was placed on the desk in front of it.

At 2 o'clock the members of the bar filed into the court room each wearing a black badge with crape rosette and white carnations. Judge Dick took his place on the bench and opened court.

C. E. Armin, chairman of the committee appointed to draft resolutions presented the following:

Life's complement, Death, having once more invaded the ranks of our profession and set its seal upon our distinguished brother Judge Warham Parks, in whom we have always recognized those sterling qualities which made of him, as a mere boy, a distinguished soldier of whose record in the defense of the Union any man might be proud that made him the careful, painstaking lawyer and able and formidable advocate, which we all know him to be; and which later produced the honest, conscientious Judge who never soiled the judicial bench, and whose rulings were guided by those higher motives which actuate honest men.

RESOLVED, That the members of the Bar Association of Waukesha County join with our Brothers of the other Counties in the Circuit, and with his bereaved family and friends in deploring that fatality which has taken from us our brother, from his family a loving, generous husband and father, and from the community a wise, fearless counselor, and splendid citizen.

RESOLVED FURTHER, That a copy of these Resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Association, and the minutes of this Court, and an engrossed copy sent to the family of our deceased brother.

C. E. Armin,
D. J. Hemlock,
V. H. Tichenor,

Mr. Armin moved the adoption of the resolutions and spoke briefly in eulogy of Judge Parks. He was followed by E. W. Chas. E. Ryan, and Judge Edwards. All spoke highly of their dead companion. Judge Dick ordered the resolutions spread upon the records and T. E. Ryan was appointed a committee of one to present the resolutions to the Supreme Court.

EAST TROY HIGH SCHOOL.

Our High School, which opened last week Monday, makes a showing that proves conclusively that it is on the gain and in an excellent condition at present. There are at present 72 students enrolled as compared with 64 at the spring term. Out of these 72 there are 40 non-resident pupils, who are paying tuition at the rate of $2.00 per month. It was thought that the slight raise made in tuition would mean a falling off in attendance, but such is not the case and besides many additional scholars for the High School will come later. The present attendance in the High School is nine more than the seating capacity of the audience room.

The grades also show a large attendance. In the grammar department there are at present 28 pupils. Out of these a class of ten (the third grade) has been taken from the primary department, on account of its being overcrowded.

In the intermediate department 36 scholars are enrolled, while in the primary there is still an attendance of 40 after one class is taken out as before stated. Each teacher has three grades to teach, which gives them an abundance of work and they could no doubt do better if they had but two.

The attendance in the grammar department will be greatly increased as soon as farm work is along a little further so that the boys can attend school. All summed up the showing is a good one and the different instructors are doing their utmost to train the minds of the pupils under their charge and are deserving of credit.—East Troy News.

Endured Death's Agonies.

MRS. MINERVA KINGSLEY WAY.

The sad news of the sudden death of Minerva Kingsley which occurred at her home two miles west of the village of Eagle on Monday afternoon came with all the force of a surprise and was a severe shock to the family and her many friends in and around Eagle. Death came from heart trouble and while she was working alone in the house. She was born in Pennsylvania, April 24th, 1838, and was a daughter of Larson E. and Anna Kingsley. Her childhood and youth up to her seventeenth year were spent in her native place when she came to Wisconsin, locating in the Town of Eagle, Wis. Was married to Hiram Way at Troy Center, Wis., on the 15th day of November, 1857, since that time their home has been in Eagle where they engaged in agricultural pursuits and accumulated sufficient means to enable them to spend their declining years in ease and comfort. For forty-two years she was a faithful companion and mother and her untimely and unexpected demise will cast a cloud of sorrow over her surviving husband and daughter Mrs. Arthur Roekteacher who, among the many who grieve for her loss to day, will miss her greatly. Her remains were interred in the Oak Ridge Cemetery on Thursday afternoon in the presence of a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends. We all extend our sympathy to the bereaved family.

[Waukesha Press]

Very little butter is said to be sold in Chicago. The farmer is being practically cheated out of that market. Oleomargarine is sold in large quantities for creamery butter by the retail grocers of Chicago. A man who has clerked in many of the largest retail stores of Chicago tells in a recent letter published in the Chicago Daily Tribune of his own experience.

During the past twenty-two years I think I have worked in nearly every first-class grocery in Chicago, and I can truthfully say that eight out of every ten have been and are still selling butter for pure butter.

To better illustrate it I will cite you an instance: I recently was employed in one of the largest groceries and markets on one of the most prominent streets of the city, and the class of trade we catered to was Chicago's finest. In fact, for the distance of one mile the volume of business done by the grocer and meat trade exceeds that of any other part of Chicago.

Well, in the store in which I was employed we would take in cash from $250 to $800 on Saturdays alone, and during the time I was employed there we never sold one pound of butter, for we never had it in the house to sell. We clerks would talk among ourselves about it and would often compare notes with other clerks, and to satisfy myself I made quite a canvass of all the stores in the mile and found only one that did not impose on its trade. Last winter I was employed in a very fashionable market and grocery and entered to a very swell trade. They had a great butter trade and sold to some of Chicago's leading families, such as merchants, bankers, board of trade men. They never bought a pound of butter in their lives. It was all butterine.

It may be true that good butterine is better than poor butter—but why not let it be sold for butterine? Why should it be sold for creamery butter? Simply because as creamery butter it can be sold for a much higher price than as butterine. It is a bare-faced fraud, that is imposed upon farmers. If creamery butter has a special market price, the farmer ought to have the benefit of it. Instead of that a lot of sneaks and frauds get the benefit in Chicago. This is how it is done:

It is the fashionable grocery trade that caters to the best families that you want to get after. They dare not be exposed. It would break them up in business. They would lose their entire trade, and while you are about it why not get after those creameries in Chicago that wholesale from wagon-butter to the grocery trade and mix in butterine with their butter? I know of one firm that would add to every 60 pounds of creamery 20 pounds of butterine and would sell as high as 100 tubs daily. I have also seen grocers take four- and six 40-pound tubs of butterine at a time and scratch the revenue stamps off the tubs and place them on the counter and mark up "No. 1 Elgin Creamery," at a cent or half cent below the market.

The Press makes an apology for these extracts on butterine. We believe in exposing frauds, and butterine that is passed as creamery butter is a fraud. Let those who wish to buy butterine buy it, but let it be bought as butterine and not as creamery butter. The farmer has a right to demand that protection, and the state ought to give it. In Wisconsin laws to this effect are enforced. In Illinois the butterine fraud seems to have everything his own way.

Football at Elkhorn.

One of the attractions of the Elkhorn Fair will be a game of football between the Whitewater Normal School eleven and the Beloit College eleven. The game will be played at ten o'clock Friday morning.

Dawn of Freedom.

Creative genius is a factor in all walks of life. The man who creates a new sensation for dramatic purpose is as truly a genius as he who builds a startling mechanical contrivance which is to benefit mankind's comfort or needs. The playhouse is as much a necessity to the worn-out brain tissue which needs relaxation as the relief which comes to humanity from any of the mechanical devices, and Lincoln J. Carter as the author of the most new and novel of these play house devices has added still another leaf to the laurel of his crown by bringing into use, for the first time on any stage a stupendous rock weighing sixty tons—which is precipitated down into the canyon from a rocky mountain side, accompanied by the thunders of an avalanche echo, burying a bridge in its course of destruction. This effect will be presented in his latest play—Just Before Dawn, which will be seen at the Casino Monday evening.

To Try for the "Varsity" Eleven.

Ed. Blair who made an excellent record on the gridiron while playing on the Carroll College and Waukesha High School elevens has entered the university this fall and will try for a place on the Wisconsin team. He is a quick active player with a good head and should make a record for himself.

John Kerr's Barns Burned.

The barns and outbuildings on John Kerr's farm in the town of Belafield were destroyed by fire Saturday night. The fire originated in the straw stack but the cause is unknown. The barns contained much grain and some machinery. There was no insurance.

Those pugilists who do most of their scrapping with their mouths could get a few valuable pointers by studying the experience of a would-be sneak thief and his subsequent troubles at the Depot recently.

No Small Change.

Dean Monahan relates an incident which illustrates the absence of small change in the early days of Kansas. In 1868 he went into the postoffice at Hays City, threw down a quarter and asked for a postage stamp. "Want only one?" queried the postmaster. "Only one," replied the novelist, whereupon the postmaster handed him a stamp and raked in the quarter. "Don't I get any change?" demanded Monahan. "Change, [—]" replied the government official. "We have no change in these parts smaller than a quarter!"

And this was strictly true. In Hays City the smallest coin known was the 25 cent piece. A glass of beer sold for a quarter, and the same charge was made for a pound of crackers or a cigar. It is related in the early annals of the town how the saloon and dance hall keepers held an indignation meeting to take action in the case of a new man who advertised to sell two glasses of beer for a quarter. The meeting resulted in the departure of the innovator for pastures new. As late as 1873 there was a store in Hays City which never gave any change smaller than the 25 cent piece. If the customer had, say, 15 cents coming, he was at liberty to help himself to a glass of whisky from a barrel which stood in the corner, but he need not expect his dues in money.—Kansas City Journal.

Why the Light Went Out.

In front of the high altar in the cathedral at Salzburg there is a great lamp that is supposed to burn "forever and a day." One morning, years ago, worshippers were surprised to see it go out, and this was repeated morning after morning, always about the same time. It was thought the attendant had neglected to give it sufficient oil, and though he declared his innocence, he was told that he would be discharged if the oversight were repeated. Unwilling to deal unjustly with the man, the dean of the cathedral hid himself one night to see if he could solve the mystery. He had not long to wait. About 10 o'clock a big rat was seen descending the rope by which the lamp was suspended. Having reached the oil, it fed freely, and then went away by the way it came. Needless is it to say that the attendant held his place.

Farragut's Opinion of Dewey.

Rear Admiral Dewey as a young officer impressed one as a self contained man with powerful native force. I often think of the remark made by Admiral Goldsborough to Farragut on the occasion of the visit of the latter to our ship. The two admirals were standing within a few feet of my table, and Dewey had stepped back to give an order to the orderly. "Farragut," said Goldsborough, "Dewey will make his mark in the world if he ever gets an opportunity." "Aye," answered Farragut, with the pleasant smile so becoming to his homely face "and he will make the opportunity." And Farragut was a true prophet.—Harper's Round Table.

Revenge.

"Hurry up, there!" yelled the conductor to a man who had chased the car about a quarter of a mile. "We can't wait all day for you." "Is this a Woodward avenue car?" asked the tall, thin man, who was panting like a tugboat after his long run. "Yes," was the curt reply. "That's right," said the thin man, "always speak the truth, and your neighbors will respect you." And so saying he hurried around the corner, while the conductor came down from the car to look for a brick.—Detroit Journal.

When Men Buy Plumes.

I sat behind two women in a fourteenth street car when a funeral procession, made up of members of some secret society in full regalia passed up the street. Thoughtful of the plumed hats displayed one of the women in front of me.

"Did you ever see anything sillier than that?" she sniffed. "Look at those men—dressed up in all those gowgaws just to let folks know they've got a secret. Where would you find women willing to parade around the streets togged out like stage soldiers? Who ever heard of women doing it? Imagine the Daughters of the American Revolution riding around in cocked hats, or the Women's Christian Temperance union with gold laced aprons. Women have more sense. They wouldn't deliberately make themselves ridiculous that way."

"Look at those sashes and look at those awful hats and those mangy plumes. My husband's got them all. He paid $75 for his outfit. He paid $15 for a stringy ostrich plume for his hat, and then"—here the true inwardness of her contempt for secret society regalia came out—"after paying all that for a plume he doesn't wear once in six months, he almost dropped dead because I paid $5 for a feather I've worn every day for a year. A man's just a natural born—well, I won't say it."

But you could see that she thought it, just the same.—Washington Post.

A Wonderful Creature.

The polyp is the most remarkable creature on earth. If cut transversely or longitudinally into several parts, each will become a perfect animal. Tremblingly turned them inside out and they ate and enjoyed themselves as much as ever. He slit two longitudinally, placed the halves together, and united them into two animals. He divided two transversely and created one with two heads. He pushed one down the throat of another, a third down the throat of the second, and thus formed a creature with three heads.

They Destroy His Works.

In China the faith in heredity is so strong that when a "habitual criminal" is captured they not only cut him into small pieces, but put all his sons and grandsons to death. The Celestials evidently believe that faith without works is dead.—Boston Globe.

High Water Advertising Mark.

The New York Herald of April 17 printed an editorial statement that on the previous day (Sunday, April 16) its paid advertising reached the high water mark in that journal's history. The Chicago Tribune on that same day, last Sunday, April 16, printed not only more advertising than the New York Herald, but what is believed to be the greatest amount ever printed in a single issue of any regular daily edition of a newspaper. Leaving out of account the twenty-two columns of advertising printed by the New York Herald on that day in the special section devoted to the interests of Brooklyn and New Jersey and appearing only in the edition of the record of "The Tribune" for April 16 surpassed that of the Herald by more than 1,000 lines in the actual amount of paid advertising. Even allowing the Herald all it claims, including its Brooklyn and New Jersey supplements, 77,225 acre lines of advertisements, including those supplements it claims 50,700. The Chicago Tribune printed that day 88,450 acre lines of paid advertisements. The comparison should be made in lines of acre measure, because the columns of "The Tribune" are longer and contain 300 acre lines, while those of the New York Herald contain only 250 lines of acre each. For the four Sundays ending April 16, the number of columns of advertisements in the New York Herald, according to its own claims and including its Brooklyn and New Jersey special sections, was 1,007.25. In the same period of time "The Tribune" printed 1,081.43 columns of actual paid advertisements. These reduced to acre lines gave the New York Herald 307,268 lines and "The Tribune" 330,751 lines. In "The Tribune" there were printed in that period 23,283 more acre lines than in the New York Herald. This excess was equal to eighty-one columns of the size of those of the New York Herald. Therefore the New York Herald printed an average of 39.25 columns less each Sunday than "The Chicago Tribune."

Waukesha Committee Receives No Encouragement From the Wisconsin Central People.

THE MOVE A MATTER OF ECONOMY.

Committee is Told That the Removal of the Car Shops and Division End is Purely a Matter of Economical Management.

The committee sent to New York by Waukesha to protest against the removal of the car shops returned Thursday night. They were unable to accomplish anything.

Mayor Warden made an official report to the common council Friday night.

He said that when the committee reached New York they met several members of the Stevens Point committee and were told the result of their efforts. Later they saw some of the directors and a conference was arranged for Tuesday night at which time they put forth all of the arguments in their power in favor of the retention of the shops.

They were unavailing. President Whitcomb and the directors informed the committee that the consolidation of the car shops and the removal of the division end was done purely in the interests of an economical management of the road. The move was contemplated at the time of the re-organization and it was represented to the eastern capitalists who purchased the road that if the divisions were lengthened and the shops consolidated the road could be made to pay.

Mr. Whitcomb told the committee that the lengthening of the divisions would result in a great saving in fuel alone. He said that 8 per cent of the fuel consumed in running an engine from Waukesha to Chicago was used in getting up steam in the round house and that it was just as easy to run 150 miles as 100. By lengthening the divisions one division is done away with and this much fuel saved.

The directors also informed the Waukesha committee that Stevens Point had offered a bonus of $50,000 if the shops would remain in their city but that a bonus was of no object to the road where a matter of economical management was concerned. Manager Whitcomb also told the committee that the removal of the shops was not a speculation on his part and that he did not own a foot of land in Fond du Lac. He said that his only property there was some stock in the electric lighting plant.

The committee were also informed that the Waukesha car shops are the property of the Wisconsin Central railroad company.

At the conclusion of the mayor's report, Alderman Jacobson moved a vote of thanks for the committee and the motion was put by President Spence and unanimously carried.

Now that it is definitely settled that there is no hope of retaining the shops Waukesha will bend all her efforts to securing some large manufacturing plant to take their place and no great difficulty is anticipated in doing this.

PHYSICIAN MARRIES.

Dr. Grove Harkness Secures a Michigan Bride.—The Wedding Celebrated Today.

A number of Waukesha people have received cards announcing the marriage today of Dr. Grove Harkness to Miss Mary Rollo at Cheboygan, Mich. The wedding will be celebrated in St. James' Episcopal Church. Miss Rollo is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Galusha De Nello Rollo, of Cheboygan. Dr. Harkness is one of the leading physicians of Waukesha. After a short wedding journey he will bring his bride here.

IN MUNICIPAL COURT.

Wales Burglar Pleads Guilty and is Sent to Waupun. Other Business.

John Ryan who was arrested at Portage several weeks ago together with his partner, Jos. Rouse, on a charge of vagrancy, and later brought to Waukesha by sheriff King on a charge of burglarizing the Wales postoffice, pleaded guilty in municipal court Thursday afternoon and was sent to Waupun for one year by Judge Tullar. When arrested by the Portage officer Ryan and his companion were selling knives and razors which they had taken from the store of Wm. James at Wales, in which the postoffice is located. Both were given sentences as vagrants until an investigation could be made of them.

Sheriff King received notice of the arrest of the men and went to Portage and got Ryan when his time expired there. Rouse will be brought here for trial as soon as his sentence in the Portage jail expires.

Rufus Jowles was bound over to the March term of municipal court on a charge of burglarizing the office of the Eagle lumber yard.

C. G. Allen was found guilty of assault and battery and given ten days in jail.

Tim Sullivan was discharged. He was arrested on a charge of beating his wife but she did not appear against him.

James C. Crowley has been summoned as a juror in the N. S. District Court at Milwaukee.

Tribute from the South.

(From the New Orleans Times-Democrat.) Apropos of all this, and other, news from Paris, we take this opportunity to express our admiration of the extremely able and interesting news service from Paris and from London which "The Chicago Tribune" has been running daily in its columns for several months past. Several of the New York dailies have excellent cable letters from London and sometimes European capitals in their Sunday issues, but they appear as a rule only once a week, the brief dispatches which they get on the other days of the week not amounting to much in the way of an intelligible and adequate presentation of European news.

"The Chicago Tribune's" foreign service, signed "Grace Corns" from Paris and "H. J. Whigham" from London, taking it all the week around, is a long way ahead of the foreign news service of any of the New York papers. One or two of the New York papers have had for years a deservedly high reputation for presenting their readers with news of interest from foreign parts, and the public will not forget its indebtedness to them on that account. But it is beyond dispute that the star of journalism is Westward taking its way, and that the journalism of Chicago is beginning to be the metropolitan journalism of the present, and will certainly be, if things move as they are moving now, the metropolitan journalism of the future. We do not generally, if at all, approve the politics of "The Chicago Tribune," but, apart from its politics, it is, in our opinion, superior to any of the New York papers. Not only is its foreign news service the best in the United States, but its home news service covers the country with a fullness to which the New York papers are strangers. "The Tribune" edition last Sunday must have caused many of us to be envious of the New York "It was a journalistic effort to which neither none of the Gotham papers has been equal."

Rouse is Arranged.

Jos. Rouse, charged with being a partner with Jas. Ryan in the robbery of W. C. James store at Wales, was arranged in municipal court Monday morning and his examination set for Saturday. Rouse and Ryan were arrested at Portage several weeks ago when they were selling stuff taken from the Wales store. Ryan pleaded guilty and went to Waupun Saturday.

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION

Accepted as a Fact in the Hay Barn and Provided Against.

"There are some things to be accepted on the evidence we have," according to Henry Stewart, "for it is difficult to prove them by actual eye knowledge." This he would apply to the so called spontaneous combustion of hay in a barn or stack. He says in Country Gentleman: It is probably the case that no one ever saw a barn of hay taking fire from its own internal heat, due to the fermentation and decomposition of the carbonaceous matters of it when in a damp condition. But there is a great deal of evidence, unquestionably true, which goes to prove the possibility of such an occurrence. In my own experience I have had a barn filled with clover hay which came so near taking fire and actually breaking out in flame that since then I am positively sure that the spontaneous combustion of moist or mere damp hay is not only possible and even easy, but that it is possible to put in hay in such a manner that, under the right condition of the weather, it will certainly heat to burning simply by internal fermentation and oxidation of its carbonaceous matter. I have seen hundreds of mows and stacks of hay in my life the center of which, when taken down for use, has been of a dark brown and in some instances black and actually charred by the heat.

It is a frequent occurrence that ships are burned by spontaneous fires occurring in the coal bunkers. The fact is that damp carbonaceous matters, as well as oily stuff of the same kind, will oxidize so actively as to take fire. Secondary fermentation will not produce sufficient heat to cause combustion, so that it is a wise precaution to have this first fermentation go on in the bay in the field, with the hay in cocks. The form of the cock is best tall and slender, for in this form the cock will shed heavy rains and yet keep dry, if the top is protected by a common hay cap, while a low, broad one is impossible to keep dry even from a few hours' rain.

The drawing shows the right shape of a haycock and the manner of making it self shedding of the rain with a cap one and a half yards square of common sheeting. If these shaped cocks are necessarily out in the weather, they will be safe against weeks of wet, if such a misfortune should happen to a farmer, for the cap on the top will turn the water there, and the sides, well raked down, will shed all the drip. Hay put up in these cocks will cure perfectly, with no risk of harm, and once this first fermentation is over there will be no secondary one, for dampness afterward will be due to water only and not to the sap of the grass, which is sufficiently carbonaceous to start the requisite fermentation for the production of heat. A secondary wetting of the hay will cause mold, but not any fermentation of the hay by which heat will be produced.

I am so sure of the possibility of spontaneous combustion of the hay that I would be very careful to avoid the risk of it by the simple method of having this fermentation go on in the field in a safely made cock in which there is not more than 400 pounds of hay.

PROFIT IN STRAWBERRIES.

Some Interesting Statements From the Kansas Station.

The strawberry is one of the most profitable crops ever introduced on Kansas soil, according to the station of that state, which presents the following case in order to support the statement: Last spring a gentleman set in his garden in Manhattan 1,025 strawberry plants of the following varieties: Warfield, Parker Earle, Robinson, Beder Wood and Hibel. The plants grew in matted rows and covered one-fourth of an acre. The plants grew well, the ground was cultivated frequently, and during the winter a mulch of clean straw was kept on the bed. The yield to this date has been 2,400 boxes and will reach 3,000 boxes by the time the crop has ended. The setting of the plants, the cultivation and the picking have mostly been done by the family, so that the only outlay was for the plants and berry and crate boxes. The first 400 boxes sold at 12½ cents per box, the remainder at 10 cents. The following is the record:

EXPENSES.
Cost of plants.....	$3 00
Crates and boxes.....	9 00
Commission.....	54 00
Total expenses.....	$66 00

RECEIPTS.
400 boxes berries at 12½ cents.....	$50 00
2,000 boxes berries at 10 cents.....	200 00
Total receipts.....	$250 00
Gain.....	$184 00

The pickers who were hired were paid at the rate of a cent per box. Estimating at this rate for the whole crop and allowing $15 for labor of setting the plants, cultivating and mulching the bed, we have left $190 for the quarter acre, or a very handsome rate of $796 per acre. No irrigation was employed. Another case is recorded where the profit was at the rate of $804.42.

Speaking generally, the most favorable location for strawberries for the local market is right in the city on vacant lots, where the city waterworks provide sufficient water for irrigation of small tracts. Besides having a water supply, the berries are near the market, and the cost of delivery is small.

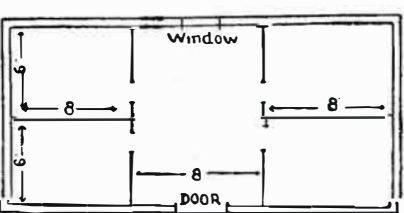

Intensive culture is the only profitable method of culture in strawberry growing. Try the recommended varieties until you have found the best and then discard all but three or four. Give the ground thorough preparation and have the soil rich. Use good, strong plants in setting the bed and after that cultivate well and water when the plants indicate the necessity of it. During winter cover the whole bed with a mulch of clean straw. In the spring this can be mostly removed from the plants and placed between the rows. On the whole, the best success comes from setting a new bed each year. Old beds can be renewed, but the labor required is often greater than that required to set the new bed, while the greater profit nearly always comes from the new bed.

Barley Hay the Best of All.

For grain hay we believe barley is the best of all, says the Denver Field and Farm. It grows as rapidly as oats or wheat and if properly managed may be made to yield two crops from one seeding. To do this the first cutting should be done in July, when it has headed out and the grains are beginning to fill. Use a mower for cutting, and about 24 hours later take a fork and turn the rows over. The following day in the afternoon the hay should be cured sufficiently to be raked into windrows and hauled from the field. Immediately after hauling off turn the water over the field, giving it an ordinary course of irrigation. This will cause a new growth to put out from the crowns, and a second irrigation will probably be necessary to cause the length of growth desired. The second crop can be allowed to stand a week or two longer than the first, and let the grain become half ripe before cutting. The last cutting will not be so hard to cure as the first. In regard to the first cutting we will state that the two days' drying may not cure it sufficiently, and in that case it will be well to spread it after hauling or else put it in small shocks for awhile until well cured before stacking. The object in removing the first cutting from the field as soon as it will do to handle is that it is generally necessary to irrigate the field before the second crop will start. The four rowed variety of barley is best for hay when it is the purpose to grow two crops in a season.

A Handy Granary.

A correspondent sends The Ohio Farmer a sketch and brief description of a granary recently built, the plan of which may be new in some localities: The frame requires about 1,500 feet of rough lumber and about 1,200 to 1,400 feet of siding, flooring, etc. A fraction less than four squares of roof is required. It will cost about $60 to $75 and can be constructed by any one of ordinary ability. Size, 12 by 24; height, 8 feet to the square. The foundation is building block pillars, eight in number, with floor of granary about on level with an ordinary height wagon bed bottom, making it easy to load and unload. All siding, flooring, etc., is good quality southern pine, which is said to be mouse and rat proof. The roof is galvanized steel.

In only a few states does the spring wheat acreage equal that of last year.

ROOF OVER THE ROAD.

Road Expert Harrison Turns the Tables on the Farmers.

Road Expert E. G. Harrison of the department of agriculture meets with some humorous experiences in the course of his travels over the country building experimental roads and spreading the doctrine of good roads. Frequently these are in the form of puzzling questions from quizzical farmers and often a statement which seems to offset his knowledge of road building.

Some time ago he was attending a meeting of farmers who were invited by officials of the League of American Wheelmen to hear General Harrison and to learn from him what he proposed to do with the experimental roads he was to build in the township. On this occasion one of the audience spoke up and asked:

"How deep do you propose to build your road?"

"Eight inches," was the reply.

"Why, man, that won't be any use in this country! Why, sir, the frost goes eight feet into the ground!"

The rest of the farmers sided in with this remark and for some time had a little fun at the general's expense. But he is always ready for such things, and it did not take him long to turn the tables on them.

"You farmers have sheds on your premises, of course," he replied, "and you have often in the spring of the year, when the frost was coming out of the ground, been obliged to lay planks to enable you to reach those sheds without getting in the mud?"

They gave their assent to this statement, and he continued:

"When you reached the shed, you found the ground hard, firm and dry under the roof, and yet the frost had nearly an equal chance to get into the ground there as it did outside." The farmers saw the point.

"The whole philosophy of road building," continued the general, "is to build a roof over your road through which the water cannot penetrate, and the frost will amount to little. Now, gentlemen, what I propose to do is to put a roof over your road. Of course it is impracticable to place this roof up so that you can drive under it, but I shall place the roof on the road so that you may drive over it."

On another of the occasions when the L. A. W. gave him a chance to address a similar meeting he was asked the value of and the application of drains to dirt roads.

"Have you as a boy going barefooted, as all boys should, noticed that by working a piece of moist ground with your feet you create mud? Of course you have, and so has every boy that ever lived. In that little act you have the secret of bad roads. The moisture in the ground, aided by constant travel, creates the mud holes and ruins them. Now take a sponge and soak it full of water. You will find that the big holes do not fill, but the fine pores are the ones that hold the fluid. Place the sponge in a sieve over a basin, and you will find that it will become dry in a short time, the water seeking the basin below. That is just the principle involved in making good dirt roads. We place the drain through the center of the roadway, and the earth above holds the moisture, which, like the water from the sponge, seeps down to fill the vacancy below in the drain and is carried off."

Seeding Stiff Clay Soil to Grass.

Prepare the soil as for wheat in August, and in early September sow 10 quarts per acre of timothy and brush and roll it in. In March sow six quarts medium red clover on light snow or light honeycombing frost. If for pasture, sow 32 quarts per acre of blue grass seed in September with the timothy.—Ohio Farmer.

The Leafless and Triumph Radishes.

A comparison was recently made by Rural New Yorker between the two unique varieties of radish—viz, Triumph and Leafless. This showed that both kinds are early and that there is but little difference between them, the Leafless being about three days earlier.

LEAFLESS RADISH—TRIUMPH RADISH.

Now The Rural illustrates the two, showing a little bunch of the Triumph and a single specimen of the Leafless. The quality is much the same, the Leafless being a rich, darkish crimson, the Triumph white and crimson, variously splashed and dotted. The latter is nearly round, the other generally oblong. Doubtless a larger quantity of the Leafless may be grown on a given plot because of its scanty leaves. The question of relative value seems to depend upon which would sell more readily in the market, the solid colored Leafless or the variegated Triumph.

Hard Macaroni Wheat.

It is reported that the work of the department of agriculture last year in bringing new species of grain to this country from Russia and Siberia is to be followed this season with observations of cereals in the west. A special agent will investigate with a view to introducing and establishing in New Mexico and Arizona hard wheats suitable for the manufacture of macaroni equal to the genuine Italian macaroni.

MAKING DIRT ROADS.

MODERN ROAD MACHINERY HAS SOLVED THE PROBLEM.

Graders and Rollers Properly Used Produce Hard and Durable Highways—Road Taxes Should Be Paid in Cash.

The greatest enemy of good roads is water. A road may easily be kept good if the water can be kept off. Hence, the first thing to consider in constructing a road is to build it so that the water will run off. This is accomplished by building it high in the middle or "crowning" it and giving the entire road surface a hard, smooth finish.

Water always runs down hill, and it will readily run off of any road if it be but given an opportunity to do so. The fault with too many of our roads is that the water cannot run off. Passing wagons and horses' hoofs are permitted to wear them down until ruts are formed. These hold the water and allow it to sink into the ground, which becomes softened, so that continued travel makes matters worse and worse.

The problem of building roads which will shed water has been solved by the road grader or road machine. The American farmer is quick to realize the value of machinery, and the rapid growth in the use of the reaper, the binder and the separator is an eloquent tribute to the practical genius of American agriculture. The growth of the use of road graders has been wonderful during the last few years and indicates that the farmer has discovered a practical solution of the problem how to build his local dirt roads.

But something more is needed to make a thoroughly good road besides a road machine. To properly finish a dirt road made with the use of a grader it should be thoroughly rolled and hardened. It is not sufficient that it be crowned, but it should be made hard and smooth. The same thing is true of gravel roads. This can be best accomplished with the use of rollers. Horse rollers weighing from five to eight tons are most frequently used for the purpose. All loose stones should be removed from the road surface before rolling, as well as sods, turf, leaves, sticks or any other matter that will tend to soften the road-bed. A road that is thoroughly and repeatedly rolled is well fitted to stand the wear of travel and can be made into a perfect watershed.

The use of machinery in building roads has been seriously handicapped by its cost. It is frequently thought wrong that farmers should be obliged to tax themselves for the purchase of road graders and road rollers in addition to having to stand the regular road tax. There is much justice in this position, for the average farmer pays his full share of taxes, and these should not be added to or increased without some very excellent reason. But the farmers of the United States are badly in want of good roads, and the clamor for their construction is growing from year to year. Quite a number of towns have solved the road machinery problem by voting to pay their taxes in cash instead of working them out and using a part of this fund for the purchase of machines, which avoids the necessity of levying an extra tax for the purpose. This plan has been adopted in New York and Wisconsin and probably elsewhere. The town clerk of West Chester, Westchester county, N. Y., says it has always been followed there. In the town of Walton, Delaware county, N. Y., the cash road tax was adopted in 1889. Some years later the taxpayers voted by a large majority against returning to the old system of working out the tax. James Hill, chairman town of Parabel, in Wisconsin, reports that in 1895 the town adopted the plan of paying its road taxes in cash. He declares that "our people think we have accomplished more the past year under the cash system than we did in four years under the old labor system." Similar results are reported from many other towns in Wisconsin and New York.

Road taxes may be collected in cash without hardship to the poorer farmers, who may desire to continue working out their share of the taxes as heretofore. Only part of the tax would ever be required during any one year to pay for machinery, and the remainder would be employed to hire men and teams for operating the machines. Thus the poorer taxpayers are given employment at good wages, and the town officers are in position to secure a dollar's worth of work for every dollar of tax, which has been impossible in many towns under the old system of working out taxes. This explains the growing popularity of the cash road tax and the fact that few towns have ever abandoned it after giving it a fair trial. Experience has shown that more can be accomplished with $1 of road tax paid in cash than with $2 or even $3 of tax worked out on the highway. This has made it possible to make a large reduction in the amount of the tax.

This matter of paying road taxes in cash is something that should be left to the vote of the people in each town. It is essentially a subject for local home rule. The plan is being more generally adopted, however, as its advantages continue to become better known. It will probably result in the very general use of road graders, rollers and also of rock crushing plants and in that way help largely to solve the good roads problem. A number of states have recently adopted laws authorizing the town boards to purchase road machinery on time payments, among them being Michigan, New York, Arkansas and Wisconsin.

James Templeton is buying lots of grain these days, and paying prosperity prices for it. Fred Hummel's hotel is doing lots of business these days.

SUSSEX, Sept. 16—Chas. Malch's new harness shop is rapidly getting into shape for the fall trade. With a new building, a clean stock and a new business man in Sussex, the new harness store certainly ought to do a good business. Weaver's store windows took a bath while Mr. Weaver took in the state fair last Thursday. The store will not only recover, but Mr. Weaver will go right on selling stoves and hardware, a full car load of which was received only recently.

MUKWONAGO GOSSIP.

MUKWONAGO, Sept. 16—Ye editor visited Mukwonago last Friday and found the little village more thriving than ever. The canning works keep busp morning, afternoon and evening. Cars are being constantly loaded and sent off to market. The factory is a very interesting sight. Scores of men and women are at work preparing the tomatoes for market. The fruit is canned and afterward steamed and the sealing process completed, all in less time than it takes to write about it. The cans are cooled and packed in boxes and cars, saving all storage expense. The Mukwonago factory is very successful under Mr. Stare's management. The details of the business are carefully looked after, shipments are made promptly and all in all the business is prospering. Mr. Stare is a practical man, who thoroughly understands the business and gives his entire attention to it. The factory brings hundreds of dollars into Mukwonago, every year. It is of great benefit to every line of business, the farmers getting 20 cents a bushel for all the tomatoes that he cares to contract for. The success of the Mukwonago factory is now assured and easily raises the question, Why cannot Waukesha have such an industry. Speaking of hardware, the scribe noticed that Goodman & Schultz's stock seemed all that could be asked for. If the cold winter that is promised materializes, Mukwonago has little to fear, for Goodman & Schultz can certainly "stove" the whole town and so keep people comfortable. C. A. Perkins and son, took in the sights of the Cream city last Friday. They report Milwaukee like Mukwonago—on the boom. Mukwonago's summer visitors have about concluded their season's rest. A few of them linger in the lap of summer, like the weather.

Sinceners & Matthews, the carpenters who have been putting up an addition to the house belonging to Daniel Schley have completed their work. Mr. Wm. Zeltenger did the mason work.
