Among the visitors at Eagle Lake this week was John Donlan, Sr., who came up from Chicago to visit his sons, Judge Donlan and Gus A., who have been guests at the hotel the past five years. He was much surprised to see the Judge was able to walk with crutches now for the first time in nine years.

THE VILLAGE ELECTION.

The choice of the caucus was the choice of the people on election day, Tuesday. The unanimity and harmony which characterized the primaries, was noticeable during the election.

There was but one ticket in the field. Only two of them were found to bear the marks of a lead pencil to gratify the dissatisfied voter. Politics were relegated to the rear, and democrats and republicans walked side by side as voters and candidates on the village ticket. The honor of being the first President of the village was given to Edward Bossingham, the popular merchant tailor. Joseph J. Lurvey, I. L. Grosse, Harvey Clemons, Edmund Lins, Sr., Wm. Ihrig, J. M. Partridge were elected trustees, Geo. A. Sherman, clerk; Frank Schmidt, treasurer; Geo. Wilton, assessor; H. M. Loibl, supervisor; Wm. A. Logan, constable; B. A. Partridge and Dan Clohisy, justices of the peace; and J. H. Campbell, police justice.

The office of marshal and street commissioner are to be filled by appointment by the trustees. Under the banner of incorporation with the government honestly administered, no one can have just cause to complain. The fallacy that villages become so expensive that it will be a burden to the tax payers can only originate in selfish and fault finding minds, who delight in making misrepresentation detrimental to any community or society.

We can see no danger ahead of us by reason of having incorporated. On the contrary we can hear the voice of the people approving of this movement. We can look into the future and see the village keep step with its sister villages in the county. The improvements to be made will be controlled by the village board, who are regardless of the interests and wishes of the people.

Let us all glory in the fact that this village is incorporated and give the officers the support needed to successfully discharge their official duties.

WALWORTH'S FAIR.

Weather did its worst for the fair on Friday, but the thing had got to going and was not to be stopped at that time in the game. Wednesday and Thursday were rainy and many people were on their way Friday before.

The fair, which commenced on Thursday there were about 3000 people on the grounds. This was the record breaker, and gave an income $600 in excess of that of Thursday last year. The fair paid well this year, but we are unable to state the amount cleared as the accounts are not all in at this writing.

The improvements to the grounds are marked. The buildings look neat and the track is in a splendid condition. This is shown by the fact that a pacing record of 2:12 was made on Thursday.

One great feature of this fair is that gamblers and pool sellers are not allowed on the grounds. Notice was posted by the management before the fair was inaugurated that games of chance would not be permitted within the gates, and it is noticeable that but few put in an appearance, those who did come being disgusted and sorry they ever came. Of course, the usual number of fakes were on the grounds, but no shows with an immoral tendency were given space in which to exhibit. The aggregation of "coon" with a barnstorming minstrel performance did a lucrative business, as also the owners of the Australian wild girl, the many snake charmers and swollowers. The remainder of the fake exhibitors managed to eke out a good living from the large crowds who passed in and out daily.

The display of live stock was the best ever shown at the county fair in Elkhorn. In all the departments it was a question what to do with the large amount of stock brought in. The pens for poultry had to be enlarged after the exhibits commenced to come in.

The races this year were fast. A number of good horses were present and the improved track is said to be one of the fastest in the state. On both Wednesday and Thursday the amphitheater was crowded, as it was on Friday to see the game of football played in the rain. Of course racing was impossible on Friday as the track was too wet and slippery.

A novelty in connection with the fair was the carrier pigeon service inaugurated by the Milwaukee Journal. Messages were sent from the grounds to the Milwaukee office and the pigeons were out but a short time.

The high diver was a drawer. He ascended to the dizzy height of 100 feet and plunged down into the shallow tank, and came out without any appearance of having received a hard shock from his dare-devil feet.—Whitewater Gazette.

We have first class farms for sale of rent. Houses and lots for sale and money to loan at 5 per cent. Insurance in mutual companies at one half rates.

We want fifty cords of seasoned oak wood for which we will pay market price.

KILLED AT HARTLAND.

A Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Brake man Falls From the Top of a Car and is Crushed Beneath Wheels

Saturday morning James M. Crummeey of Milwaukee, was killed by the cars at Hartland. He was a brakeman and as the 7:45 freight pulled into Hartland he was standing with his 12 year old son on the top of a car. A sudden lurch of the train caused him to lose his balance, and fall between the cars. Three cars passed over him and he was instantly killed. The body was taken to A. Schraudenbach's undertaking establishment where it was prepared for burial. It was then shipped to Oconomowoc and taken to the home of Mr. McDonald in the town of Summit.

The dead man was born in Waukesha county and is well known in the vicinity of Hartland. He was married to Miss A. Schraudenbach of this city before her marriage. She and three children survive. The funeral was held at Oconomowoc.

FROM THE TAX ROLL.

Things of Interest Taken from Tax Rolls of Waukesha County.

There are a number of interesting facts and comparisons to be found in an examination of the tax rolls of the county. For instance there are 283454 horses assessed in the county this year as against 281231 last year, quite an increase. The average value has also increased about 8 per cent. Last year the average value was $24.93 and this year it is $26.21.

While there has been an increase in the number of horses there has been a slight decrease in the number of cattle and also in their average value. There are 344432 head this year with an average value of $12.30 as against 345773 with an average value of $12.78 last year.

There has been an increase in the number of sheep and an increase in their value. This year there are 50658 sheep assessed at an average value of $1.36 as against 47250 with an average value of $1.25 last year. There has been a marked decrease in the number of hogs raised and a slight decrease in the average value.

This year there were 51149 hogs with an average value of $3.03 as against 36079 last year with an average value of $3.18.

One of the things which everyone comments upon is the remarkable scarcity of bicycles and gold and silver watches as shown by the assessment rolls. In the whole county there are but 566 gold and silver watches assessed and 476 bicycles. In six towns there are no watches and in eight no bicycles according to the assessment rolls.

When asked for an explanation of this Mr. Hardy, the Waukesha assessor said that watches and bicycles were difficult things to get at. They were owned largely by people who had no other taxable property and that if they were taxed in nine cases out of ten the tax would not be collected. It would only amount to about ten or fifteen cents and it would cost more than that in time and labor to carry the accounts on a book, and instead of being a source of revenue it taxed the bicycles and watches would be a source of expense.

"From telegraph operator to president in thirty-four years," says The Chicago Times-Herald, speaking of Mr. Earling's election to the presidency of the St. Paul road, "is a record that should impress the young railway men of the country with the possibilities of attainment under the 'merit system' now so universally recognized as the only system for building up great and successful industrial enterprises." And ambitious young railway men might as well remember, while they are about it, that Mr. Earling has given himself, beside a thorough knowledge of railroading as a business, an excellent general education. He has taught himself more Latin than the college graduate who is above the average can boast of, though Latin is one of the subjects furthest from railroad management. He has a considerable knowledge of engineering. He has become not only one of the foremost railway men in the country, but also one of the few very successful Americans who have so cultivated interests other than business that when old age and retirement arrive time will not hang heavy on their hands.

Southern Dialect.

The southern dialect continues to reveal its quaintness. Mr. Terrey has recorded this Florida dialogue:
"What time might it be?"
"Six o'clock."
"Lan sakes! I didn't know it was so sune as that."
"Soon" in this case probably meant early. He has also put on record the answer of the North Carolinian who was asked if he had been at the World's fair:
"No. I fowed for to went, but I didn't git to go."
I have lately heard a bit of genuine negro English which may do to go with these examples. A young woman of my acquaintance was visiting at a house where a colored lad was kept as a sort of boy of all work. After she had been there a day she overheard a conversation between the cook and this boy:
"How do you like the company?"
"I like her right well," said the boy.
"Do you think she's pretty?"
"Well," said the lad, "she ain't 'zackly pretty, but she'll dew well 'nough whar dar ain't no better at!"—Boston Transcript.

Glass Cutting.

The layman who is introduced to the mysteries of cutting glass for the first time is amazed at the amount of work that the workman does entirely by his eye. The first stage of the bowl which is to be cut finds it in a perfectly plain condition, not a scratch upon it and only a half dozen or more marks in red chalk, which mean absolutely nothing to the unpracticed eye. But to the workman they mean the whole pattern. Perhaps the dish is a salad bowl. The marks in chalk will run from the edge, five intervals apart, down to the center of the bowl at the bottom. In one of the divisions of the bowl thus marked there may be a little further marking in the shape perhaps of a diamond. This indicates the pattern into which the bowl is to be cut, and it will be repeated in each of the five divisions. All the intricacies of the design the workman has in his head, and they develop on the glass in a way which seems to the looker on absolutely marvelous.—New York Times.

THE COWPEA.

Its Advantages as a Substitute For Clover. How to Grow It.

The cowpea is receiving much attention nowadays from northern agriculturists. W. C. Latta of the Indiana station has recently contributed the following to the literature of this plant in the north:
Owing to the fact that clover is frequently damaged by freezing in winter and by drought in summer there is some inquiry for another leguminous crop which is not open to these objections. With our present knowledge no substitute for Indiana can be offered that is equal to the cowpea, and large quantities of it are raised and flourished throughout the state. Notwithstanding this fact the cowpea has some points of advantage, among which are (1) greater capacity to endure drought, (2) ability to grow on soils too thin to nourish clover, (3) ability to produce a large amount of forage or green manure in a few months of warm weather, and thus avoid the frosts of winter and early spring.
Cowpeas are highly esteemed for forage in many parts of the south. They are pastured, cut green and fed as a soiling crop, and also cured as hay. Where they seed well they furnish an excellent pasture for pigs, in which case the land is left in fine condition for subsequent crops. In this state only the earliest sorts would produce much seed. In the richer soils the tendency would be to run to vines. Cowpeas produce a very watery growth and are therefore not easy to cure for hay, although they have the advantage of maturing in the dry season of the year.
Both tops and roots are valuable to fertilize the soil. Cowpeas have, like clovers, a very beneficial, mellowing effect on soils in which they grow, and when turned under they quickly replenish the store of humus and available nitrogen. It will doubtless be best to turn the crop under before the autumn frosts. If corn is to be grown the following spring, it will be well to sow rye soon after turning under the pea vines, to prevent alike washing of soil and dissipation of the nitrogen stored in the vines. Two different years this station has plowed under good crops of cowpeas that would not mature seed.
Cowpeas may be sown broadcast or in drills. The rate varies greatly. One bushel if drilled, would doubtless be ample. The planting should not be done till the ground becomes warm and all danger from frost is past.
I think feeding the milk back to my cows has to do with their continued milking when in high flesh, and also with the solidity of the cream and the wonderfully quick separation from it of the butter. My cows came fresh in milk in February and March, but even in December it is considered at our house a poor can of cream and something wrong if I cannot bring from 25 to 30 pounds of butter from it in five minutes.—Exchange.

Temporary Fencing.

The zigzag plan of building temporary board fences is recommended by a correspondent of Home and Farm, who says: If the boards are 16 feet long, set the posts 7½ feet apart and in a straight line. Put the boards on as shown in sketch, nailing one panel on one side of the post and the next one on the other, with the post in the center of

Corn Cultivation.

A system of corn cultivation that will give highest yield under ordinary conditions seems to the Illinois station to be about as follows: Cultivate deep during the early part of the season to remove weeds, conserve moisture and allow the plant an early vigorous development. Then gradually decrease the depth as the corn grows, until near the end of the season, when the cultivation should be shallow and as far from the hill as is consistent with removing weeds, in order to avoid root pruning and to leave the soil in the best mechanical condition.

The Velvet Bean.

A cut of the velvet bean is here reproduced from The Rural New Yorker. It is from a photograph sent by a Georgia correspondent. The bean is described as a strong vigorous grower, the blossoms attractive to the eye, but of an odor objectionable to most people. According to seedsmen and others, large acreage has been planted in Florida.

VELVET BEAN FLOWER.

ida and the gulf states, and small plantings for experiment at the north have been numerous. The bean is described in a bulletin of the Florida station as follows: "The pods are very thick and leathery, do not crack open when ripe and are difficult to open by hand. The pods contain from three to five large, plump, fine looking beans irregularly colored with purplish and brownish patches. The foliage is much like that of other beans. The vines grow from 10 to 20 feet in height."

BINDING MATERIAL.

Should Equal the Hardness of the Stone of the Road.

Every stone road unless properly built with small stones and just enough binding material to fill the voids presents a honey-combed appearance. In fact, a measure containing two cubic feet of broken stone will hold in addition one cubic foot of water, and a cubic yard of broken macadam will weigh just about one-half as much as a solid cubic yard of the same kind of stone.
To insure a solid roadway and to fill the large proportion of voids or interstices between the different pieces of broken stone some finer material must be introduced into the structure of the roadway, and this material is usually called a binder or by some roadmakers a "filler."

There used to be much contention regarding the use of binding material in the making of a macadam road, but it is now conceded by nearly all practical and experienced roadmakers, both in Europe and America that the use of a binding material is essential to the proper construction of a good macadam road. It adds to its solidity, insures tightness by closing all of the spaces between the loose irregular stones and binds together the macadam crust in a way that gives it firmness, elasticity and durability.

Binding material to produce the best results should be equal in hardness and toughness with the road stone. The best results are therefore obtained by using screenings or spalls from the broken stone used. Coarse sand or gravel can sometimes be used with impunity as a binder, but the wisdom of using loam or clay is very much questioned. When the latter material is used for a binder, the road is apt to become very dusty in dry weather and sticky, muddy and rutty in wet weather.

If Jersey cows had always been allowed the run of a pasture freely and had plenty of outdoor life and fresh air, without so much of the monstrous forcing and high feeding to make a butter record, we should never have had a tuberculosis scare in this country, at least not so great a one. The way for those to right themselves who have gone wrong is to go back upon their tracks.

Hood Farm Exhibits at the Fair.

The Jerseys and Berkshires from Hood Farm, Lowell, Mass., exhibited at the State fair, attracted the admiring attention of all who visited the stock pens. Coming from the home of the great World's Fair Winners, Brown Bessie and Merry Maiden, and some of the Jerseys being direct descendants of these cows, it was natural that they should be a center of interest.

Among the Jerseys shown was the bull, Hood Farm Pogis, a son of the great Kathletta's Fancy who has a seven days test of 17 lbs. 6 3/4 oz. from 344 lbs. 9 oz. milk. Her greatest day's yield during the test was 50 lbs. 6 oz. In one month she gave 1,416 lbs. 1 oz. milk, in one year, 11,784 lbs. 2 oz., and in two consecutive years, 22,374 lbs. As a two year old, Hood Farm Pogis won at the New England Fair the sweepstakes prize as the best bull of any age and headed the sweepstakes herd, and he has proved a prize winner wherever shown.

For a two year old bull of Hood Farm Bessie's Son was shown. This young bull is out of the great prize winning cow, Tormentor's Fancy Wax. He has won many blue ribbons.

This famous stock is a forcible illustration of what it is possible to accomplish in breeding lines, provided the right foundation is laid in the blood of the winners. Many young farmers will be led to form higher ideals by seeing the results that have followed the wise and persevering efforts of the proprietor of Hood Farm.

President Lincoln and the Flowers. President Lincoln, with his great, kindly nature to which children and music appealed so strenuously, was of course passionately fond of flowers, and during his administration the conservatories assumed a form very similar to their present appearance. Very often when Lincoln wished to be absolutely alone he sought the solitude of the conservatory, and those about him, as soon as they became appreciative of this fact, exercised the greatest care that his wish for privacy should be respected. Often when the cloud of war and desolation hung darkest over the country the old gardener in charge would come suddenly upon the president standing dejectedly among the foliage, his eyes bedimmed with tears.—WALDON FAWCETT in the October Woman's Companion.

CHARLOTTE TEMPLE'S GRAVE.

The Most Popular Spot In Trinity Churchyard, New York.

A few days ago passersby in Broadway, looking through the high fence that surrounds Trinity churchyard, saw a slender black gowned girl kneeling by the grave of Charlotte Temple. Her head was bowed in her hands, and she seemed utterly lost to her surroundings. After awhile she arose with a very pale face, walked swiftly through the gates and disappeared in the crowd. She was only one of many devotees at the shrine of the poor girl who died for love. No body ever visits Trinity churchyard without pausing for a few minutes before the big brown slab that bears only the name "Charlotte Temple."

"Oh, yes!" said the gray haired old man whose duty it is to keep the ancient tombs kept in order. "It is the most popular grave in the yard. I have been here going on 17 years now, and there have been very few days in good weather when the grave has not had a visitor. Several times I have seen women come here and stand in the cold and sleet and snow looking at the tomb. Somehow they always look as if they were in trouble."

"Seven or eight years ago I began to put potted flowers, geraniums and the like on the grave, and I have kept it up every summer since. It is mainly to mark the grave, so that visitors can find it. It is the only grave in the yard that has flowers on it. Otherwise the people would bother me to death. When they ask me where the grave of Charlotte Temple is now, I simply tell them that it is over on the west side with some potted flowers on it. That saves me a deal of trouble."

"Several of the gravestones are crumbling badly and will have to be repaired if the descendants of the dead want to perpetuate their memory. See; here is the oldest grave in the place."

Then the old man swept away a layer of dust from a crumbling gray stone and showed the date, 1681. "We have several that date almost as far back," said he, "but none of them is so popular as that of Charlotte Temple."

Then the ancient attendant placed his broom under his arm, picked up his wheelbarrow and trundled away among the graves.—New York Herald.

BEAUTIFUL MOUNTAIN PEAKS.

Rainier, Shasta, Hood and Other Fine Mountains of the Far Northwest.

About 50 miles south of Tacoma you get a view of the most beautiful mountain peak on the earth's surface, Mount Tacoma, or Rainier, and carry it with you for three or four hours. It rises directly from the tide level to a height of 14,422 feet, unhidden by intervening ranges or foothills, and stands squarely against the sky, the perfection of magnificence, dignity and power. It is two and one-half times as high as Mount Washington, and I believe the highest peak in the world that rises directly from a plain. It is known to us in the east as Mount Ranier and was so called in honor of Admiral Ranier of the British navy, but here they call it Mount Tacoma, the old title given by the Siwash Indians before the white man came. The base is covered with a dense forest of ever living green. Above the timber line the snow is white and smooth and perpetual, and it looks as if it were a solid block of the purest marble.

Mount Tacoma is just two feet higher than Mount Shasta, 297 feet higher than Pike's peak and 400 feet higher than Gardiner's peak. The highest in the United States, Mount Crillon, Alaska, is over 16,000, but an exact measurement has never been taken. Mount St. Elias, Alaska, is 15,327; Mount Whitney, California, is 15,088, and Mount Williams, California, is 14,406.

There are several other very beautiful peaks visible from the railway, including St. Helen, 9,750 feet, the patron saint of Portland, around whose head hangs a perpetual halo; Mount Hood, which is a shapely cone, 11,225 feet, which was named in honor of Lord Hood of the British admiralty, and Mount Baker, 10,800 feet, christened in honor of Joseph Baker, one of the lieutenants of Peter Puget, who discovered the sound. Theodore Winthrop has written lovingly about them, and they are the subject of the purest and choicest descriptions that exist in the classic prose of Washington Irving, although I believe he was never nearer them than his home on the Hudson river, 3,000 miles away.—Chicago Record.

Evidence before the ways and means committee of congress shows that most of the filled cheese is made in Illinois. Illinois ought to be ashamed of herself.

The country over, the produce exchanges are dead against the filled cheese iniquity. Since many of the members of these bodies are very wealthy and influential men, the representatives in congress will be forced to listen. It is not to their credit that they pay more heed to rich city men than to plain farmers, nevertheless such is the fact, and it is a good thing something can force them to look into this fraud.

A Colorado dairyman has had good success in raising sugar beets for his cows.

The creamery has been a godsend to the northwestern part of this country. Creameries in South Dakota report a prosperous season. South Dakota dairy farmers have succeeded in making the co-operative system profitable.

Agricultural Brevities.

So far as soil and climate are concerned, it seems to be settled that New York state is well adapted to the commercial growing of sugar beets.

A western New York horticulturist who has sprayed his orchards as many as five times in a season expresses the opinion that, commercially speaking, it does not pay to spray more than three times—first, when the buds begin to swell; second, just after the blossoms have fallen, and third, when the fruit is about pea size.

A Lesson in Arithmetic.

Scottish School Inspector (examining class)—Now, my little man, tell me what five and one make.

No answer. Inspector—Suppose I gave you five rabbits and then another rabbit, how many rabbits would you have? Boy—Seven.

Inspector—Seven! How do you make that out? Boy—I've a rabbit o' ma ain at home.

"But he is very polite and amiable," suggested Mamie; "and quite intellectual. He always has something to read to you."

High Water Advertising Mark.

The New York Herald of April 17 printed an editorial statement that on the previous day (Sunday, April 16) its paid advertising carried the high water mark in its journal's history. "The Chicago Tribune" on that same day, last Sunday, April 16, printed not only more advertising than the New York Herald, but what is believed to be the greatest amount ever printed in a single issue of any regular main edition of a newspaper. Leaving out of account the twenty-two columns of advertising printed by the New York Herald on that day in the special section devoted to the purchase of Brooklyn and New Jersey and appearing only in those editions, the record of "The Tribune" for April 16 surpassed that of the Herald for the same day by more than 10,000 square lines of paid advertising. Even allowing the Herald all it claims, including its Brooklyn and New Jersey supplements, the New York Herald on that day still fell short of "The Tribune" by more than 1,000 lines in the actual amount of paid advertising.

The exact figures are given as follows: The New York Herald of April 16 printed in its main edition, exclusive of its Brooklyn and New Jersey supplements, 77,523 square lines of advertising, including those advertisements to amount $6,704. "The Chicago Tribune" printed that day 88,470 square lines of paid advertising. The comparison should be made in terms of square inches, because the columns of "The Tribune" are longer and narrower than those of the New York Herald, and the number of lines is accordingly less. For the four days ending April 16, the number of columns of advertising in the New York Herald, exclusive of its Brooklyn and New Jersey supplements, including those advertisements to amount $6,704, "The Chicago Tribune" printed that day 88,470 square lines of paid advertising.
