Wisconsin's Health

By Cornelius A. Harper, M. D.
State Health Officer

Four refuse containers at every street intersection would soon make a town conspicuous for neat appearance, but none of our municipalities has considered the investment worth while.

The investment is considerable, for it involves not only the cost of the containers but their upkeep, protection against vandalism and frequent emptying and disposal of the refuse.

But consider the returns on such an investment.
Through patient educational efforts the citizens would soon make full use of these containers, and the city or village would at all times present clean streets and sidewalks.

The touring public, which has only such surface evidences by which to get an impression of a community, would notice this neatness at once, and the community would profit directly from the good impression.

Municipal housekeeping of this sort is not for appearances alone, for it has a close relationship with community health.

When the last snowdrift has melted, Wisconsin towns make haste to remove an unsightly collection of wastes which clutters up the streets. It is at this season that our careless habits stand out like a sore thumb.

We have a large number of civic organizations which make a practice of contributing to their community's well being. It might be that these groups will head this reform by contributing the needed containers.

GOOD TIDINGS FOR THE EASTER BREAKFAST
(See Recipes Below)

EGGSTRORDINARY!

With the passing of winter and the arrival of spring comes the joyful Easter season, bringing with it new life and new hope. . . Why not express these good tidings in the traditional Easter Sunday breakfast?

Make your Easter breakfast the No. 1 breakfast of the year—the time when the whole family, and guests, too, perhaps, gather leisurely 'round a gaily decorated table laden with their favorite early-morn dishes.

Let color-splashed eggs be the centerpiece. You can use those that the children have "discovered" in their traditional pre-breakfast egg hunt.

Pile them high in the center of a grass-filled Easter basket. Then, to complete the scheme, mark each person's place at the table with an egg caricature—Uncle Sam, an Indian Chief, Mr. Rabbit or even a pert young lady.

"While they're still 'oh-ing' and 'ah-ing,' serve 'eggs in nests'—just to keep the theme in mind. To complete your menu, you'll of course want glasses of cold fruit juice, crisp ham slices or bacon curls and steaming popovers. It's taken for granted that you'll make plenty of hot coffee. They couldn't ask for more!

Eggs in Nests.
(See picture at top of column)
1 egg
½ teaspoon salt
Butter
5 bread sticks

Separate egg, placing white in small, deep bowl and retaining yolk in one of the half shells. Beat egg white until stiff and slightly dry (when dry, it will have a slightly coarse appearance). Pile egg white in oven-proof cup or dish in which 5 bread sticks have been arranged. Drop yolk into depression made in center of egg white. Bake in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees F.) until bread tips and egg white are delicately browned (about 15 minutes). Season with salt, pepper if desired, and a lump of butter dropped on yolk. Serves 1.

Just in case you're wondering how the bread sticks are made, here are directions. Because of their dainty arrangement in the serving dishes, I call them Bread Buttercups:

Remove the crusts from a loaf of uncut bread. Cut lengthwise slices from the loaf. Trim the slices so that they are about 1½ inches wide and the ends pointed. Brush with an egg and milk mixture and arrange in baking cups. It is best to brush the tips with a little melted butter so that they will brown more readily.

Pop-Overs.
2 eggs, beaten
¾ cup milk
1 cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon melted fat
Combine eggs and milk. Pour over sifted dry ingredients. Beat with a rotary beater until smooth. Add butter. Beat. Pour batter into hot greased muffin pans, filling one-third full. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 35 to 45 minutes. Dry in oven about 10 minutes with

LYNN SAYS:

Eggs join with other foods to fill your needs and produce your health. They are among our best sources of the muscle building proteins. They are high in iron which is needed to build good red blood. They supply phosphorus which forms a part of every active cell of the body.

When "peeling" hard-cooked eggs, crackle the shells, then start the peeling at the rounded end of the egg. Holding the eggs under running cold water or dipping in a bowl of cold water helps to ease the shell off, leaving a smooth, unbroken surface of white.

CHICKS SELECT FEEDING NEEDS

'Cafeteria Method' Is Found Very Satisfactory.

By G. T. KLEIN
(Extension Poultryman, Massachusetts State College, Amherst.)

Cafeterias for chickens may sound a little queer to the average poultryman, but it is one of the newest feeding methods now in vogue. By the new system, Biddie has her choice of feeds and believe it or not, she can make a much more intelligent choice of what she needs than can some poultrymen.

In three separate feeders there are whole oats, whole or cracked corn, and laying mash. Biddie's appetite may vary from time to time, but during the year her diet will consist of 41 per cent corn, 30 per cent oats, and 29 per cent laying mash. The ration has been balanced at 12.9 per cent protein over a year's period, although individual birds vary from 11 to 15 per cent.

It is very important that every bird in the poultry flock has a chance to eat grain or mash at any time, and hoppers must be large enough to take care of all of the flock. Hopper requirements are 20 linear feet, feeding from both sides, for every 100 birds, or about five inches of feeding space per bird.

Feed consumption is increased by adding fresh mash frequently, running the hand or fingers through the mash often, and placing the hoppers in well-lighted positions. Hens like to see what they're eating as well as humans.

Although whole wheat is not used extensively in this cafeteria feeding system, it is a good practice to throw some into the litter as a scratch feed. This helps to keep the litter in a dry fluffy condition.

Because of the small quantity of mash used in this system of feeding, the vitamin D carrier must be increased in the mash.

There has been no tendency for a flock well bred for production to become too fat on this system of feeding. The large proportion of grain that is used makes this system economical and also cuts down labor requirements. Cannibalism has not been too excessive since it is held in check by the large quantities of oats that are fed and the scattering of wheat in the litter.

Good Fence Should Last Seven to Twelve Years

Good wire, properly strung between strong, well-braced posts, should make a farm fence last from 7 to 12 years, says H. M. Ellis, extension agricultural engineer of N. C. State college. There should be a good coating of galvanizing or zinc on the wire to protect it against the elements, he says.

"Some copper in the wire will add still more years of service to the fence," Ellis stated. "The copper content should not run less than 0.2 of 1 per cent, which is usually spoken of as '20 point' copper. The quality of the wire is the main consideration in building fences; it isn't good economy to buy cheap wire."

Ellis also says that for a good, long-lasting fence the quality of the posts and the workmanship in erecting the fence must be of the best. The posts must be big enough, properly spaced, well planted, and well braced. If durable wood is not available, soft timber may be treated with creosote or otherwise to make the posts last as long as the wire.

"It is wise," the specialist declared, "to build your fence on paper before you start cutting posts and buying wire. Farmers spend much money every year maintaining fences that are not essential.

Grinding Roughage Not Very Advisable

Farmers are fooling themselves and not their cattle when they grind up corn fodder and stemmy hay so fine the animals are unable to separate the good material from the bad, according to R. R. Snapp, professor of beef cattle husbandry at the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

"It is true that a given amount of ground fodder will go somewhat further than it would if it were fed whole. However, the unpalatable roughage tend to dilute good feed, making for less palatability and digestibility for the ration as a whole," Snapp explained.

Controlling Lice

Lice can be controlled on calves and heifers without recourse to dips and other "wet" preparations. Excellent results can be obtained with a mixture of one part sodium flouride and two parts of ordinary flour.

This is dusted lightly over the backs of the animals from a perforated can and worked into the base of the hair with the fingers. One application is usually adequate. Sodium flouride is poisonous and should be handled carefully.

TIPS to Gardeners

CHOOSE BEANS WISELY

THE gardener should be well acquainted with the many available varieties of stringless beans, if he is to get the most from his bean crop.

If earliness is the principal interest, the gardener should select either Bountiful (green-podded) or Golden Wax (yellow). Bountiful is excellent for use when small, in shoe-string size. It is also a good choice for home canning, for it produces abundantly.

The gardener interested in yield over a long season should select both a bush bean, and a pole bean. The pole beans begin producing when the yield from the bush beans tapers off.

Kentucky Wonder is one of the best all-purpose pole beans. It provides good quality snap beans. When past the snap stage, the pods may be cut up, and cooked southern style. Later, this bean may be used in the green shell stage. In the more mature stage the beans may be used in baking or in soup.

At Least Stern Parent Had Son's Rapt Attention

Father had decided that he must administer a strict lecture to his six-year-old son. The boy had been naughty, but did not seem to appreciate the fact, and it was with some reluctance that the parent undertook a scolding.

He spoke judiciously but severely; he recounted the lad's misdeeds, and explained the whys and wherefores of his solemn rebuke. His wife sat by, duly impressed.

Finally, when the father paused for breath, and, incidentally to hear the culprit's acknowledgment of error, the lad, his face beaming with admiration, turned to his mother and said: "Mother isn't father interesting?"

Prophetic Author

Copenhagen's first bombproof shelter, built a short time ago, is on the site where Ludvig Holberg, the celebrated Scandinavian author, wrote his Epistola in 1727. In it, says Collier's, Holbert predicted that if men should ever learn to fly they would swoop down upon and attempt to destroy great numbers of innocent people who, to save themselves, would have to take refuge in holes in the ground.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Up-to-the-Minute Easter Costume Calls for Gay, Tiny Flower Hat

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Even handkerchiefs are apt to yield to the sway of flowers this season, in that they have posies embroidered or painted on them to match those on one's "Easter bonnet."

Above to the right in the picture is a lovely black satin hat, trimmed with two waxen white roses. A veil of black fishnet subscribes to the slogan "with every hat a veil this spring."

Centered in the picture, a young lady of high fashion wears one of the tiny pompadour hats so smart this season. Note the glorified rose splashed on her handkerchief. These handkerchiefs come in a series of flowers, so you are sure of getting a "hankie" to match your flower hat.

You will be wanting a red hat this season to keep pace with fashion, or at least one trimmed with bright red flowers. The little hat shown in the upper left corner is gaily flowered with bright red poppies. Wear it to set off a navy blue costume. Add a smart red under-arm bag.

Smart Gob Dress

A smart gob dress, perfect for the junior high or high school girl, is here shown. It adheres to a traditional pattern of simplicity in accordance with the present fashion trend toward classics. That this dress reflects the patriotic note so characteristic of current fashions is readily seen in its every detail—the dress is of red, white and blue rayon cotton, with an all-pleated navy blue skirt and long-torso lines for the blouse. The white nautical blouse is trimmed with red braid and red anchors.

It's a two-piecer and makes the best of all school dresses. With it you'll no doubt want to wear a saucy sailor hat, and perhaps shoes with turned-back midy designs. It is an easy dress to make.

Silk, Rayon Printed Suits

Taking Fashion by Storm

New and exciting in the spring style parade are suits that are tailored of silk or rayon-mixture prints with exactly the fine nicety and simplicity one expects of wool suits. The long-jacket suit with an all-round pleated skirt is a favorite. The jacket has revers and a one-button or two-button fastening.

You will find in the stores stunning redingote styles as well, tailored like cloth, fitted meticulously as your long topcoat, the dress underneath styled in a fetching one-piece manner. These new print tailors are starting a vogue that is taking the fashion world by storm.

Tiers, Ruffles, Peplums

Add to New Silhouettes

The newest silhouettes call for tiers, ruffles and peplums. And the real news about these styling details is that designers are handling them so adroitly that they in no way destroy the straight slim lines that fashion demands this season.

Very good looking are the new dressmaker coats, cut on princess lines to above the knee, at which point a wide pleated flounce carries on to the hemline.

Prints and Plain

A new and very helpful aid in selecting prints and plains to "go together" is the manner in which materials are being displayed this season in the stores. It is the custom this season to show a print and the plain material all side by side in colors that correlate perfectly.

Flower Bracelets

The newest fashion wrinkle is to wear a flower or boutonniere attached to a ribbon bracelet, the cuff of your glove, or the edge of the sleeve at the wrist. Of course the flower should match the flower trimming on your hat.

Designers Defy Raids

In London, dressmakers keep on dishing out their normal supply of work, in spite of air raids. Clothes are made on a sort of ambulating schedule, workers shifting from the basement shelters to the upstairs workrooms and back again.

THE RIGHT MAN

By MEREDITH SCHOLL
(Associated Newspapers.)
WNU Service.

"NOW there's a girl," said Allen Cotter, pointing over the heads of the dancers, "who's worth writing home about."

Tim Bingham, who stood at Allen's elbow at one end of the stag line, nodded. "One in a million," he agreed. "It's a pity she couldn't have done better when she picked a husband for herself."

"Married Ames Forbes, didn't she? What's wrong with him? As I remember Ames, he wasn't a bad egg."

"It isn't that. It's simply that he doesn't appreciate Dora. Take tonight, for example. He hasn't danced with her once. He acts like he'd never met the girl."

Allen eased away from the stag line and found a seat in a remote corner of the room. Strangely, the things that Tim had just said were an accurate interpretation of his own thoughts. Long ago he and Dora had been sweethearts. And now as Allen reflected upon the variety of experiences and adventures which he had undergone since leaving Cooksville, he told himself for the hundredth time that nothing in his life had been much finer or beautiful than those sweetheart days with Dora Mead.

And now Dora was married! Well, he had expected that. He had expected it even though down deep in his heart he had half hoped all during the train ride from Boston to Cooksville that she wouldn't be.

Allen smiled wistfully as he recalled his disappointment. Of course it was silly and entirely unreasonable. After all, you couldn't expect

Allen found himself on his feet. He wasn't thinking clearly, but he knew he was going to do something drastic.

The music had stopped again. The lights were brighter. Dora and her partner were standing up.

At that moment, Allen blindly enraged, swept aside the palm leaves and stepped in front of them. With one hand he reached up, grabbed hold of the collar of Dora's partner's coat, and jerked him about so that he could look into his face.

Dora screamed. The man whose collar was suddenly tightened by Allen's grip swore in sudden surprise. Dancers who were walking off the floor stopped and stared. And Allen Cotter's mouth sagged open and a slow flush spread over his face and up about his temples.

For the man with whom Dora had kept her rendezvous away from the prying eyes of the public was Ames Forbes, her husband!

Allen seemed happy and contented and decidedly pleased with the dance.

a girl as sweet and lovely and as fine as Dora Mead to remain single all her life.

After the first shock of it Allen hadn't been wholly displeased. To begin with, Ames Forbes was about as fine a youth as Cooksville had to offer. He had been in their class in high school, and since graduation had become a credit to his town and his family.

Allen remembered what Tim Bingham had just told him. Well, you couldn't tell about men these days. The thing was puzzling. Allen sank back in the chair which he had located in an alcove behind a palm tree and began to brood. Could it be that Dora and Ames were unhappy? Could it be that Ames had actually tired of his charming young wife? It seemed incredible. Time had, if anything, added to Dora's loveliness and charm. It didn't seem quite possible that any man could tire of her.

And yet it was obvious that Ames had other interests when at a party, besides devoting his attention to his wife. During the week that Allen had been in Cooksville he had seen a good deal of the pair, and not once had he witnessed any demonstration of affection between them.

Unconsciously Allen clenched his fists. If Ames were making her unhappy . . .

A young couple were dancing on the other side of the palm tree. It was a dreamy waltz and the lights had been dimmed. Allen couldn't distinguish the figures very clearly, but he knew, without making half an effort, that the girl was Dora. Her head was resting on her partner's shoulder. She seemed happy and contented and decidedly pleased with the dance.

As Allen watched, the music stopped and during the brief interval before the orchestra swung into the encore, Allen saw Dora's partner take hold of the girl's arm and lead her quickly into the alcove where sat Allen.

Allen was not naturally a curious person. Other people's business was their own. And ordinarily he would have stood up and moved away, leaving the young couple to their own devices. But this situation was a little different. A lot different, Allen thought. He was sure that Dora and her partner had not seen him. The alcove was only dimly lighted and the palm tree separated them. Without moving he could witness quite clearly the scene that was being enacted within a few feet of him.

Instantly upon sitting down, Dora had reached up and drawn the man's face down to her own. He crushed her to him and held her close for, it seemed, an eternity.

And in that moment something happened inside of Allen that shattered every beautiful illusion and optimistic outlook he had ever entertained toward life and women.

No one, of all the people Allen had ever known, could have so completely changed his whole viewpoint as did Dora in that moment when he saw her in the arms of another man, disloyal to her husband, acting as would any cheap, common wench.

Allen cursed under his breath and wished he were anywhere but there in the alcove.

Of one thing he was sure. He had misjudged Ames Forbes. It was Dora's fault. Dora had been the deceiver, the cause of their trouble. And Ames, good, noble Ames, had gone on without saying a word, covering up that misery he must have felt, merely being polite to his wife in public without once indicating he hated her for her treachery.

Suddenly a fierce anger welled up in Allen's soul. It wasn't fair. It wasn't fair to Ames or to him. Dora had been his guiding light as much as she'd been Ames'. She had served now to shatter his every illusion as she had served to shatter those of her husband.

Allen found himself on his feet. He wasn't thinking clearly, but he knew he was going to do something drastic.

The music had stopped again. The lights were brighter. Dora and her partner were standing up.

At that moment, Allen blindly enraged, swept aside the palm leaves and stepped in front of them. With one hand he reached up, grabbed hold of the collar of Dora's partner's coat, and jerked him about so that he could look into his face.

Dora screamed. The man whose collar was suddenly tightened by Allen's grip swore in sudden surprise. Dancers who were walking off the floor stopped and stared. And Allen Cotter's mouth sagged open and a slow flush spread over his face and up about his temples.

For the man with whom Dora had kept her rendezvous away from the prying eyes of the public was Ames Forbes, her husband!

Earliest Known Windows

Were Merely 'Openings'

Windows were originally nothing more than openings in a wall for light and ventilation.

Our word window is supposed to be derived from two Scandinavian words meaning "wind eye." Some authorities, however, suppose the word to have been originally "wind-door," referring to the doors or shutters to prevent the wind from blowing through the openings.

The ancient Egyptians and Greeks used thin slabs of marble for window-panes while the Chinese used rice paper for the same purpose.

In Genesis we read that the Lord told Noah, "A window shalt thou make to the ark," and that after forty days Noah "opened the window that he had made."

Referring to the temple built by Solomon, I Kings 6:4 says: "And for the house he made windows of narrow lights."

The early Romans appear to have made window-panes, perhaps of transparent shells, to illuminate their baths.

Window-glass as we know it now was probably first made in the Twelfth century by the Anglo-Saxon monk Theophilus.

Although some window glass was made at the early glassworks at Jamestown, in Virginia, glass window-panes were not common in America until about the time of the Revolution.

Alaska Air Bases

When William Seward bought Alaska from the Russians, 73 years ago, paying them $7,200,000, the purchase was denounced as "Seward's Folly." The frozen northern waste, it was held, was hardly worth a dollar, let alone the price paid. But today, to protect Alaska, the United States is preparing to lay out $25,000,000 on five air bases, and the governor of the territory says five more bases will be needed.

Alaska from its fisheries alone adds more to the national income of the United States each year than the capital sum it is proposed to spend on air bases. The frozen waste of 80 years ago has become an asset of high value with fisheries, mineral, timber and agricultural resources. Besides, it is the republic's defense outpost to the west, and in a world full of peril, like the one in which we live, outposts are of first importance.

The Alaska air bases are intended primarily, of course, for the protection of the United States. They also serve to protect Canada, and British Columbia can hardly be indifferent to the proposal to place one of them on Metlakatla island, in the Panhandle, just south of Ketchikan.

Ribs of Beef Roast

For a really superior roast, standing ribs of beef should weigh at least six pounds. For the small family, this may seem prohibitive at first thought, but in reality a large beef roast may make several return appearances with equal success. A two rib roast or, preferably, a three rib roast is large enough to be roasted fat side up, using the rib bones as a rack so that while cooking the melted fat will drip down in a self-basting process. At the first appearance for a company dinner, the thick center or "eye" muscles of the roast will make a "sure-to-please" meat service. Green pepper cups filled with escalloped corn, pan browned potatoes and a garden-fresh salad would be good companions.

NEW IDEAS
for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

DO YOU remember how old-fashioned comforters used to be tufted? They were made of two layers of fabric with cotton between and every four inches or so in rows the three layers of material were caught together with a stitch of wool yarn double which was then tied twice and clipped to make a fluffy tuft. Well, that is exactly the way many of today's smartest chair covers are made. A cover of this sort redeemed this old rocker and revealed its hidden charms.

The cover is plain, medium green glazed chintz tufted with dark green yarn and three inch dark green fringe is used around the bottom. A long zipper makes a center back closing. Each section of the cover was fitted on the chair in the muslin lining first and these pieces were used as patterns for cutting the chintz, also the cotton which was trimmed to be 3/4-inch smaller all around.

After the pieces were tufted, as shown at the upper right, the seams were stitched up. Long stitches were then made on the inside to catch the edges of the cotton in place.

NOTE: Are you planning to make slip covers this Spring? Mrs. Spears' Books 1 and 3 tell you exactly how. Book 1 gives directions for fitting and finishing slip covers for chairs and davenport. Book 3 shows you how to make a pattern first; also how to arrange openings in covers for chairs of unusual types, and how to anchor slip covers so they will stay neatly in place. Books are 10 cents each. Send order to:

The American Legion members enjoyed a delicious meal at their meeting this week. After they had finished eating they were informed that it was not roast beef they had eaten but horse meat. Some of the members still think it was beef but we can assure them that it actually was horse meat.

Someone else in town had a delicious meal Saturday but we do not know who it was. And it wasn't horse meat either. It was chicken.

Early that morning a big chow dog was seen to enter Fred Blomley's chicken coop. A few seconds later out strolled the chow, a fat, live chicken nesting securely between his jaws. He was last seen heading past the Enterprise office presumably for home. Incidentally there are only two chows in town so it's an even flip.

This recent spring weather we have been having proved to be too big a temptation for a group of Palmyra high school students. They went A.W.O.L. Their continued absences irked the faculty and Tuesday they were expelled from school. Some were back in school again Wednesday, after consultations between parents, teachers and pupils, a little sadder and a little meeker.

The debate between Russell Devitt and Kenneth Elwood Monday evening was mild compared to those informal sessions held every night at Wayne's Restaurant.

This is what we call salesmanship. Two weeks ago, Don Thayer of Whitewater was looking for a friend of his. He stuck his head in the door of Hackett's Men's Store and asked if he was there. Roy never answered him but put out his hand. Don, figuring Roy wanted to shake hands, stepped in. They shook hands. Then Roy said, "My that is a terrible pair of shoes you have on." Don, who had not the slightest intention of buying anything a few minutes previous, walked out. But he had a new pair of shoes on his feet.

Last Wednesday was a big day for W. J. Ketterhagen and Russell Devitt. They spent the day in Milwaukee and enjoyed themselves riding on Gimbel's escalator. It was a new thrill for Devitt but Ketterhagen says it's old stuff to him. While eating in a downtown hotel they sat next to Patsy Kelly and Zasu Pitts, movie stars. (By sitting next to, we mean at the next table.)

The operetta, "The Stolen Flower Queen," given by the grade children of the school, was presented Friday night in the school gymnasium to a large audience.

A Little Bit o' DRIFTWOOD

LOVELIEST OF TREES

Loveliest of trees, the cherry now is hung with bloom along the bough, And stands about the woodland ride Wearing white for Eastertide.

Now, of my threescore years and ten, Twenty will not come again, And take from seventy springs a score, It only leaves me fifty more.

And since to look at things in bloom Fifty springs are little room, About the woodlands I will go To see the cherry hung with snow.

NOSING THE NEWS BY JUDGE DEVITT

And with the coming of Spring Hitler has struck again. This time it is against Yugoslavia and Greece, two tiny nations of the Balkans. And so, after almost two years of warfare the present European war has finally reached the spot where the fireworks were touched off in 1914. And that place of course is the heart of the Balkans, Serajevo, then a part of Serbia and today Yugoslavia.

And naturally the Nazi's will be odds-on favorites to smash these two small countries as thoroughly as Hitler's war machine machinated Belgium, Holland, and Poland. And in spite of these predictions the Germans may find themselves in for much more of a fight than they at first anticipated. And it will not be surprising if Turkey jumps into the fray on the side of the Balkan States. And it will not be surprising if Russia, finally aroused, does not take a hand in slowing down Hitler's steamroller. And it will not be surprising if British troops which have been quietly infiltrated into Greece during the past few months do not raise particular havoc with the German troops.

And it will not be surprising if this move of Hitler's may not be the turning point of the war. And Hitler is carefully working into the Balkans rather than directly attempt invasion of the British Isles which may well spell doom for his vaunted dreams. For conquering the small nations of Greece and Yugoslavia, rolling his motorized units over mountains and difficult country, hand to hand fighting in narrow passes, disadvantageous fighting conditions, all are a better prospect for Adolf Hitler than the twenty three miles of water known as the English Channel.

And the German army, mechanized to the nth degree moves with precision over the fields and countries of Europe. And yet to date the German army has bogged down like a cow stuck in the mud when they reached a strip of water which at its narrowest point is only twenty three miles across.
