The Week Before Easter

Dawn in Illinois

(Trucker's View.)

Another dawn in Illinois—a February dawn when the stars widen and thin, and the posts and trees along the road begin to emerge with clarity, and the dawn clouds of salmon, pink, light green, and deep red streak the sky... I'm cold, hungry, stopping for nothing, not even to eat, yet unconsciously my eyes are on the eastern sky.

There is no country more lovely than from Chicago to Harvard, thence to Freeport, to Rockford, then due north thru Rockton, Beloit, Janesville, Lima, Whitewater, Palmyra. Then you turn off the pavement to Lake Lula. Lake Lula is a lost lake—that is, few folks know about it. It is blue-blue and connected by a long and extremely narrow inlet with Eagle Springs lake on which are the Tuohy famous golf links—35 miles from Milwaukee, a little better than 100 from Chicago.

Southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois are the same type of land. Hawthorne farms along Libertyville highway are about the same as Wisconsin farms—until you come to Palmyra and Eagle. Low hills, hidden lakes, bungalows built in the yester-years when this was Wisconsin's playground, and dried-out lakes tell a story of hopes crushed, dreams dead.

There are water moccasins on our land, but they are a timid snake (the poisonous) and scuttle for cover when they know we are near. There are only four other houses on this entire lake. All are empty. Two were used for a camp a few years ago, but the project has been abandoned.

We have five hundred Hamburg hens—the most beautiful bird in captivity, black and white, the demarcation being clean cut, prettily blocked. They are wild, never set, so mother takes the eggs to a hatchery, that being part of her social life—talking to the hatchery lady about hens, eggs, feed, and fries.

Neighbors come to see mother and father Sundays we have supper guests and our cardamon biscuits with wild strawberry jam have become so famous that mother is getting a bit heady she says.

Joe, the Trucker, (from Chicago Tribune.)

WISCONSIN'S HEALTH

By Cornelius A. Harper, M.D. State Health Officer

Army camp life is going to prove to a lot of our people for the first time that the right kind of food and good living habits build up health and strength in short order.

Wisconsin men who are home on leave after a few months of army life already show improved health. Their weight is moving toward normal, and they are stronger and have more zip than when they left civilian life.

Our new army is the best fed, the best clothed and the best housed of any army in history, and these advantages all have direct health angles.

For those who are willing to look at annoying facts in the face, the training of our young men will be an indictment of our civilian habits of living. The list of charges would look something like this:

1. Eating too much, for the type of work engaged in.
2. Paying no heed to the right combinations of food.
3. Failing to take outdoor exercise.
4. Failing to get enough sleep.
5. Failing to dress for the weather.
6. Failing to get routine medical care.
7. Over-indulging in drinking and smoking.

Most of us could clear ourselves on some of these charges, but few could honestly deny all of them.

Our armed forces have outgrown their fondness for beans, and are now leading the way in sensible eating for active living.

Milk production records indicate that hybrid corn silage and silage made from open-pollinated varieties were equally good in feeding value.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

FARM TOPICS

LIQUIDS REPLACE DRY FERTILIZER

Helps to Prevent Big Loss Caused by Drouth.

By DR. V. A. TIEDJENS
(Associate Olericulturist, N. J. Agricultural Experiment Station.)

Farmers need no longer fear the bugaboo of drouthy years that heretofore have robbed them of returns they should have had on their fertilizer dollars. They are licking the problem by applying fertilizer in solution instead of in the dry form to vegetables, farm crops, pastures.

By thus applying chemical fertilizer dissolved in water, the burning of fertilizers applied dry is eliminated and phosphates are made more available.

Liquid fertilizers are used as starter solutions applied to the roots of plants when they are set, or applied in the drill with beans, corn, and other seeds. They may also be applied as a side-dressing as the crops are growing.

Regular fertilizer mixtures may be used for liquid applications, but they usually have so much residue that the solution must be prepared a day or two in advance and the liquid separated from the residue. These mixtures are too acid for starter solutions, but may be used for side-dressing purposes.

Higher analysis mixtures have been used to better advantage when the phosphorus was derived from mono-ammonium phosphate. A 13-26-13 mixture, made with urea, mono-ammonium phosphate, muriate of potash and nitrate of soda and used at the rate of 2 to 4 pounds in 50 gallons of water, has given very good results as a starter or side dressing solution. This mixture is almost wholly soluble and can be made up as it is used. It becomes sticky when exposed to the air.

Liquid fertilizers have given more economical results than dry mixtures due to the greater availability of the phosphates.

Liquid fertilizers have been used successfully to grow large acreages of tomatoes, beans, cauliflower, broccoli, cabbage, sweet corn and celery. In every case yields were better because, as growers stated, the crops grew in spite of dry weather.

Spring Pasture Feeding Changes Flavor of Milk

Slight defects in flavor may prevent full enjoyment of milk and thus curtail its use, says H. A. Herman of the Missouri college. It is to the interest of every producer or handler of milk then to protect the flavor of milk and its products.

Flavors in milk may originate at various stages in its production and handling. Bad flavors are not necessarily associated with the safety of milk for food purposes.

In early spring, and in particular on short and weed-infested pastures, weed flavors are quite common since cows are forced to eat herbage they might otherwise refuse. Cows in milk should not be forced to depend too heavily on pastures infested with wild onions or similar weeds. If the dairyman has no other choice, however, he can hold the flavors imparted by these various weeds to a minimum by removing the cows 3 to 6 hours before milking time.

A change from dry feeding to grass always results in a different flavor appearing in the milk, and customers sometimes complain. These flavors can be prevented by following a well planned routine of feeding.

Good pasture is the best source of vitamin A for live stock. Vitamin A promotes growth, health, vigor, long life, appetite, digestion, reproduction, and resistance to infection.

An Ohio survey made in 1924 in nine counties revealed that 47 per cent of the farm homes were more than 50 years old and the average distance from the well to the kitchen was 74 feet.

Humor Jostles Aside Justice in Many Freak Laws

Pants for Horses, Limit on Doughnuts, Ban on Onions, Are Some.

ST. LOUIS.—The stern countenance of Justice might well break into a smile if the lady put down her scales long enough to read some of the laws passed in her name, according to Lyman E. Cook, self-styled "freak law" specialist of St. Louis.

Author of a book on silly statutes that are tucked away in the digests of nations, states and cities, Cook cites as a fair example the Fountain Inn, N. C., law requiring horses to wear pants.

Other favorites in Cook's collection of 30,000 loony laws include: A Clinton, Conn., ordinance that forbids one to walk a tiger on a chain through the city streets; one in Oak Park, Ill., which limits the number of doughnuts that may be fried in one day to 100, and another that requires the citizens of Barre, Vt., to take a bath every Saturday night.

Back-Slapping Illegal. Furthermore, a slap on a friend's back in South Carolina may land you in jail. And in San Francisco don't prepare chop suey with rat meat unless you want to be tossed in the clink.

In Dallas, Texas, all dogs must wear red headlights. And in Alton, Ill., cats were once required to wear bells to warn birds of their approach.

Incendiarism is heavily punished in Maine, especially the crime of setting a mule on fire. And it's against the law to exhibit a cow with 10 legs or a horse with four tails in Iowa.

The Monday wash is regulated in Napanee, Ind., where an ordinance rules that clothes lines must be more than 50 inches long, and in Reading, Pa., where it is against the law to hang women's underwear in the open.

Nebraska has a law that forbids barbers to eat onions during working hours. And Minnesota has one that makes the teasing of polecats and skunks a misdemeanor.

Another Minnesota law says that a hug and a kiss are tantamount to announcement of betrothal. But Massachusetts' laws say 10 kisses are necessary, and Maryland's say you have to keep company with the girl for three months.

Piccolo-Playing Mayors. Traffic regulations in Fairbanks, Alaska, include an ordinance forbidding moose to use the sidewalks. In Puerto Rico playing a phonograph constitutes a breach of the peace.

Missouri's statute books carry a law authorizing any city or village to levy a special tax for the support of a band, provided that the mayor can play a piccolo and that each member of the band is able to eat peas with his knife. Another bill passed by the Missouri legislature requires streetcar conductors to wear red vests.

Cook began collecting odd laws 17 years ago, he said, when he won a case for a client by citing an old South Carolina law that required churchgoers to carry guns. Since then he has enlisted the aid of other lawyers all over the world in his search for freak statutes.

And Cook has a favorite. Of the thousands of laws in his collection he points to a Neligh, Neb., city ordinance as the silliest. It specifically forbids sale of the holes from doughnuts.

Low Alimony Figure by Wife Surprise to Court

OAKLAND, CALIF.—Mrs. Frances E. Petersen is believed to have been the only woman seeking a divorce in local courts who asked for too little alimony.

Twenty years old, and with a two-year-old son, she blushed and replied diffidently when Judge Harris asked her how much alimony she desired.

"Would $40 a month be all right?" she queried in reply.

"No it would not," declared the judge. "It wouldn't be enough."

And he awarded her $12 a week from James A. Petersen sheet metal worker.

Kicks $68,000 Out of Way, Boss Receives the Reward

NEW YORK.—A well dressed woman, shopping in a market, dropped a paper-wrapped package from her shopping basket and a clerk, thinking it was waste paper, kicked it under a counter.

About to leave the store, the woman noticed the package was missing and screamed.

The manager, Edward Culhane, and the clerk hastily recovered the bundle and gave it to the customer.

She told them it contained $68,000. Culhane received a $10 reward. The clerk got nothing.

Fugitive Gets a Lift Right Back to Prison

BOISE, IDAHO.—Jack Fallis, 24, decided to escape from the Idaho penitentiary because the state prison board postponed his parole hearing until January.

Attempting to thumb a ride, Fallis was picked up by three motorists who returned him to prison. They were penitentiary guards.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

QUILTS do not belong to any one period and there doesn't seem to be the slightest indication that the old art of making them is dying out. Most quilts today are planned as bedspreads and have a color scheme to harmonize with other decorations. If a variety of figured scraps are used in the piecing, one dominant plain color is generally repeated in each block to give the design unity.

Again, one color is combined with white throughout the entire quilt. Some quilts have elaborate pieced borders; others are finished with a band of white with the dominant color used as an edge binding. A bias striped material makes the binding of the quilt in the Whirl Wind pattern shown here.

The beauty of any quilt is enhanced if it is set off with a valance around the bed. They knew that in the days of the four-poster and the rule applies still. The bed in the sketch had no particular tradition and the footboard was much too high to display the quilt spread to advantage. What a difference in the effect when the board was cut down and the crisp frills of dotted Swiss were added! Surely, any quilt that is worth piecing is worth this extra touch.

NOTE: If you have an old iron bed that you would like to cut down, SEWING Book

3 tells how; 10 cents postpaid. You may also want Mrs. Spears' three Favorite Quilt Patterns. One, called the Ann Rutledge, was sketched from an original in the reconstructed Rutledge Tavern at New Salem, Illinois, and it is possible that Ann may have been making these quilt blocks when Abe Lincoln came courting. The other two patterns are the Whirl Wind and the Kaleidoscope. Set of three patterns with directions mailed for 10 cents. Send order to:

TIPS to Gardeners

QUICK FLOWER GARDENS
MANY people want quick results in the flower garden, and for them the lists of annual flowers offer effective aid.

A highly satisfactory, and economical hedge, for instance, can be grown in six or eight weeks from seed. Kochia is the plant. A single packet of Kochia seed will provide a full, bushy hedge along the front or side of the yard. For a flowering hedge, Four o'Clock will produce attractively within two months after seed is planted.

Glowing borders of flowers that beautify the yard, and at the same time provide ample cut flowers for the housewife, may be enjoyed the first summer. The fastest-growing and most dependable annuals for cutting include the Zinnias, Marigolds, Bachelor Buttons and Petunias. There are tall, medium, and dwarf varieties of each.

Most widely used of fast-growing annual vines is Heavenly Blue Morning Glory, whose giant, soft-blue flowers are in a class by themselves. It is well to scratch the coat of Heavenly Blue seeds before planting them to speed their otherwise slow germination.

Sized It Up
"Miss Green, do let me help you to more pudding."
"Well, thanks," said the young woman, "I will take some more, but only a mouthful, please."

Neckwear Gives Fresh, Sparkling Charm to Spring Suits, Coats

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

cross stitch and petit point, is an important spring 1941 message for neckwear. The collar and cuff set below to the right in the group is one of the charming new versions. Rambler roses are embroidered on linen in red and black cross stitch.

FOR a fashion-right approach to chic and charm for your Easter costume, try the lacy, crisp-white neckwear way. It will work like magic. The new jabots and animated cascades of sheer white, the smart detachable lace-trimmed and befrilled yokes, likewise the huge immaculately white sailor collars that stress the new low-cut, deep-throated lines are performing miracles in adding "the touch that tells."

You will find the neckwear quest one of high adventure this spring, for fashion is dramatizing the theme. Versatile lingerie touches will carry your costume to dizzy heights of allure.

There's big news in the revival of frilly jabots this season, and history is also repeating itself in the animated white fluttery cascades, the kind that will help "lift" any blouse, frock or jacketed tailleur right into spring. The sheer organdie and Val lace jabot which cascades from a tiny turnover organdie collar (pictured above to the left in the group illustrated) is warranted to give springlike froth and freshness to any Easter costume. The jabot is attached to an organdie vestee, so it stays anchored and serves as a blouse.

A magic panel in embroidered organdie and lace (shown above to the right) may be depended upon to perform magic on any dress, be it print or plain, smart navy, unerring black or a delectable pastel shade. A clip attachment under the bow adjusts to any neckline. Clip it on to your newest frock and presto! it will sparkle with lacy loveliness.

Colored embroidery, especially

All dressed up and ready to go stepping in the Easter parade is the smartly clad maiden in the panel portrait to the left. For that fresh-out-of-a-band-box look, Evelyn Alden, American designer, has created a youthful redingote (redingote are "tops" this spring) with a crisp lingerie bib attached to the neckline of the dress beneath. Be sure to wear a fruit-laden hat with this ensemble, for fruit trimmings are tremendously important.

A new trend, and one that is rich with possibilities, is the wide use of pleated white lingerie frillings in unique and dramatic ways. You can buy these pleatings by the yard at neckwear counters. Newly arrived navy or black suits and dresses are finished off at throat and wrist with generous ruffings done in the dandified Regency period manner.

You can give your bolero frock or suit a fresh spring uplift by sewing in a white ruff that extends down the front edges of your bolero or even all the way round if you prefer. As most fashion-alert women are aware, the newest dresses are styled with yokes this spring. For a final swank accent, follow the outline of the yoke of your frock or your blouse with crisp white lingerie pleating. Many best shops are featuring this very new idea. (Released by Western News per Union.)

Patriotic Emblems

Patriotic emblems are proving an endless source of inspiration for decorative motifs in costume design. Flags, stars, eagles, nautical insignia seen in bright embroidery or in glittering colorful jewels. They lend enchantment to new fashions in endless ways: Here you see a stunning white rayon hi-hat turban and matching scarf. This twosome is inexpensive, and at the same time is good looking and decidedly practical.

Thoroughly American in color and design, these decorative pieces give wardrobes that pro-America look!

Low-Cut Necklines Tell

New Fashion Story
There is a new movement in necklines that will be a dominating influence in blouses and dresses from now on. The collar opening continues down to form a low deep slender point. Some dresses have an extra little camisole device to wear on less formal occasions. The deep-throated effect is extremely flattering. To wear at the low point, stunning jewelry clips are being especially designed. These will tell a fascinating new fashion story.

Deep Pleated Flounces

Popular on Navy Coats
There is a very smart new-type coat being shown which is particularly striking in navy. The body line is fashioned after the fitted princess lines, to which a knee depth pleated flounce of the self fabric is seamed. You can get stunning costume suits that have these long coats, worn over a matching one-piece dress.

Enchanting Blouses

The new blouses are simply enchanting. They are frilled, tucked and lace-trimmed in fascinating profusion. Their feminine frou frou is distracting pretty. On the Easter parade they will appear in endless procession, adding winsomeness to the legions of navy suits and caped costume ensembles.

Pale Coats, Pale Furs

Beige coats are taking unto themselves fur trimmings in delicate tones to match. Reefer fronts of furs are chic

HAIR-RAISING EXPERIENCES

By VIC YARDMAN

(Associated Newspapers.) WNU Service.

"OH, THERE'S been times," Jud Billing said, "when I've seen real he-man excitement. There's been times, an' there still are."

He sucked on his cigarette, and I held my breath. It seemed that at last my repeated efforts to get a story from Jud were to be rewarded. He is a congenial person but inclined to be reticent and modest. At times, in fact, he gives the impression of being annoyed at my constant questioning.

"But wasn't it more dangerous back in the early days? Wasn't the job of being sheriff more exciting?" I asked him.

"A trifle," Jud admitted. "There's still as much danger an' as much shootin' an' cattle stealin' an' crime in general going on right now as there ever was. There always has been a war against rustlers in the West, and it looks like there always will be. Today rustlin' is conducted on a scientific basis. Motor trucks and the like. We have to be a bit more careful about shootin' a man these days, have to give him a trial. In the early days we just shot 'em down and wondered whether they was guilty or not afterward."

"I recollect once—musta been 20 years ago—when this here county was fair infested with rustlers. Not a rancher but what was reportin' losses weekly. An' not a one either ever got a crack at the thieves. It was plumb mysterious, 'way them cows disappeared."

"It was then that I was elected sheriff. I was just young enough to think I could hold down the job and not stop a bullet. I was plumb fed

"First I visited every rancher in the county who had been losin' stock, and explained what I intended to do."

up with this rustlin' business, my dad having lost more than 50 steers an' one of his cowboys havin' been lamed up with a rustler's bullet.

"I was plumb determined to exterminate them cow thieves once an' for all. More than once I was shot at from ambush. But I went ahead collecting evidence an' information regarding the thieves."

"After awhile I picked up enough facts to pin the leadership of the rustlin' gang on one Danny Kilroy. Danny was a desperado of the worst sort, greased lightnin' on the draw, and a crack shot."

"And then a little later I learned that the main hangout of Danny and his gang was a place called Trail's End, which wasn't nothin' more or less than a cluster of miserable shacks stuck out on the desert. The rustlers drove their stolen stock to Trail's End where they were transferred to a bunch of drivers, who herded the cattle over the line and sold them in Mexico."

"I got all the facts, then began to make plans. First I visited every rancher in the county who had been losin' stock, and explained what I intended to do. Not one of 'em but what was willing and eager to fall in with my proposition."

"We gathered one night out at my dad's ranch, which place was located at the southern end of the county, nearest to Trail's End. There were 20 of us, not including myself and dad. Personally I carried two holstered guns and one in my waistband. I also had a Winchester rifle in a saddle holster. The others were equally well armed."

"We started out about midnight, rarin' for vengeance. It was the big thrill of my life. There I was only a youngster, ridin' at the head of a band of men, some of whom had dangled me on their knees. It was surprising the way those men accepted me as their leader, looked to me for orders, an' obeyed 'em without a question."

"On the day previous the rustlers had made off with a big herd of stolen cattle, an' it was this herd we was trailin'. We came up with it just before daylight. Bedded down they were, with half a dozen riders camped nearby."

"Instead of attacking at once we surrounded the camp, and waited. At the first flush of dawn I peeked from behind a boulder and saw the riders were up and getting ready to start. I threw down on one of 'em with my rifle and pulled trigger. It was the signal for the others. There was just one fusillade of shots. No more was needed. The entire six rustlers was dead before they had time to grab a gun."

"We didn't wait to bury 'em. Two of our boys headed the herd back home an' the rest of us rode on toward Trail's End. It must have been about 6 a. m. when we arrived. We started at the head of the street and rode to the other end and, shootin' as we rode. Then we turned an' rode back again, shootin' some more.

"The town was taken completely by surprise. During those first two rides we shot and killed at least 10 men and wounded half a dozen more. After that we dismounted and went through every miserable building in sight. The rustlers put up a game fight, but we hunted 'em down. In less than an hour there wasn't a man left as far as we could see. And so we set fire to the town and drew off to watch the dang place burn down."

"Personally I had the pleasure of shootin' Danny Kilroy. Him an' me met in the barroom of the town's only saloon just before the boys set fire to the place. Sure, I was scared! Danny had a reputation for being the fastest jigger with a gun in the country. It was just luck I saw him first and let him have it."

Jud paused and pulled his hat down over his eyes. I sat for a moment or two studying the under part of his face. At last I said, "Jud, I think you're a damned liar!"

Jud was on his feet in an instant, eyes ablaze.

"Liar! You callin' me a liar! Say, that's a fightin' word out here! If you weren't a good friend of mine I'd—"

"Sit down and cool off," I interrupted calmly. "You're not scaring me a bit. That story isn't true, and you know it. You're just trying to be entertaining."

Jud grinned sheepishly and eased back into his chair.

"I'm ready to admit," I continued, grinning myself, "that you've experienced a good many adventures, probably more thrilling than the one you just concocted for my benefit. But why not stick to the truth? Certainly, in your 20 years as sheriff you must have had some hair-raising experiences?"

Jud looked at me, squinted out into Welcome's main street, sighed, rolled himself a cigarette and lighted it. Plainly the mood for story telling had passed.

"That story I just told you," he said at last, "is good enough for any man. Take it or leave it. As for my personal hair-raising experiences"—he pulled his hat down over his eyes again and stretched out lazily—"I guess maybe I ain't had so many. Men who have hair-raising adventures have 'em because of some foolish mistake they make, or because they overlook doing something plumb reasonable, an' a feller ain't overanxious to talk about them lapses."

Clouds, Like Misfortune, Taken Too Seriously

Julie and I were taking pictures, at least I was. Julie was furnishing the human interest. Yes, in the pictures. I complained about the arrangement of the clouds; they didn't just suit me.

Julie grinned a sort of puckish grin, and said, "If you don't like the way the clouds are fixed, why don't you push them around?"

It was an idea. It couldn't be done so far as picture-taking was concerned but it might be possible in a lot of other meanings.

Some of our days are made dark by clouds of misfortune, trouble and doubt and those are the kind of clouds that can be pushed around. It isn't particularly difficult to push them aside and let the sunshine in, and even though it may rain there is often a rainbow, a rainbow of hope for the future.

We take clouds too seriously; both kinds of clouds, those in the sky and those that darken our lives. Neither kind is permanent. They are here today and gone tomorrow, and those which darken our lives can be pushed around.

Clouds have their values, too. It is more than likely that the warmth and light of the sun would be little appreciated if it wasn't for the clouds. Anyway, they furnish a contrast; and if one doesn't like them, he can follow the advice of the old Negro melody and, "Push dem clouds away."

Meat Rich in Vitamins

Biggest health news in years is that meat is so generously rich in vitamins.

Vitamins naturally have been in meat all the time, health authorities admit, but it's only through the recent work of scientists that the public learns how much vitamin protection there is in meat. Many vitamins are found in meat, particularly the vitamin B group, including vitamin B-1 (known as thiamine) which promotes growth, helps the body to use carbohydrates, and stimulates the appetite.

Two other "hidden virtues" of meat are a growth stimulating one called riboflavin which helps protect against nervous disorders, and the pellagra-preventive vitamin which is another of the vitamin B's.

Cow Decides Case

In a dispute in Cornwall, England, over the ownership of Jenny, a heifer, C. H. Stolman, one of the claimants, called Jenny as a witness. When it saw its old cowman, Fred Jewell, after six weeks it at once demonstrated its affection by putting its forelegs over his shoulders. The judge said the cow had decided the case. He had never seen a cow do a trick like that before.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Always polish furniture with the grain in the wood.

Grease can be removed from an iron by rubbing cornmeal over it.

Sauces shouldn't be added to boiled onions, cabbage or celery until time to serve.

Soap and water will remove ink stains from washable fabrics if stains are first soaked in milk.

Mirrors should never be cleaned with soap suds. The best results are obtained by rubbing them with a paste of whiting and water. Then polish with a dry chamois to remove the powder.

To beat egg whites quickly add a pinch of cream of tartar before starting to beat. The eggs will froth more quickly and hold their shape a longer time.

MISS JONES AND JADE FLOWER

Sitting beside Miss Jones My co-educational companion Who wears shell-rimmed glasses, And watching her fingers Ink-stained and excited As she delivers her learned opinions Upon the lease-lead bill At this intellectual gathering My heart deepens with longing For Jade Flower.

Jade Flower from my home In Orchid Mountain: I can hear far away From this smoky, murmuring room The gentle cicada As it sings to her Sitting by her green-silk window, Her peach-blossom lips unsmiling And her hibiscus-white hands Gently folded and waiting..... Charles Yu, Chicago.

NOSING THE NEWS BY JUDGE DEVITT

And headlining the news for this week is the lightning-like seizure of Axis ships and ships of countries under German domination by the United States. And this certainly will not occasion any ease as to the already widening tension between our government and the dictatorships. And this move forestalls any further attempts by Germany to sell these interned ships either to Britain or to this country. Which is exactly what Adolph was trying to do some two months ago, and presumably he then saw the handwriting on the wall.

And if South American countries follow suit it will be a smashing blow to the Axis dreams of world domination. For if South America follows suit the solidarity of purpose of the western hemisphere will be proclaimed to the world.

And the full import of this ship seizure is not known as yet. And while we are told from authoritative sources that Germany and Italy expected this, there will most assuredly be the most violent of protests from Berlin and Rome. And yet these protests will be empty words because the act will have already been completed, and completed legitimately so as to forestall any sabotaging attempts aboard these ships.

And it may well be the case that German submarines might be sinking their own ships which could be transporting arms and supplies to embattled Britain. And it may well be that this fateful step by our government may mark the last great step
