Doughnut Stones

Doughnut stones are perforated ring-like stone objects of prehistoric significance. They are found on the sites of early Indian settlements throughout North America, particularly in southern California, where many have been unearthed from ancient burial plots. It is believed that the Indians slipped these stones over heavy sticks for use as hammers, weapons, or as weights for digging implements.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

SHORT STORY

A Marriage Saved

By BARBARA ANN BENEDICT

(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

JUD had always respected Neil and Elsie Kilduff. Especially Elsie. She was not only a sensible sort of person, but a good sport. Took things philosophically and made the best of hard times.

It had, in fact, been Neil and Elsie who had brought about the marriage of Jud and Bettina. Jud hadn't been strong for the marriage stuff. But Neil and Elsie had made such a go of it. Seemed to have such swell times together. They were the only married people of his acquaintance who got along without much squabbling; they found pleasure in each other rather than in someone else's husband or wife.

Jud thought of these things as he stood on the curb before his apartment that cold, bitter January afternoon. And impulsively he decided to go and have a talk with Elsie. It would be good, he thought, to talk with Elsie, after what had just happened.

He knew, as he turned up his collar and bent his head against the strong northeast gale, that he'd never go back to Bettina. Today's quarrel was the culmination of many. It would be the last. He laughed cynically as he pictured that last scene; Bettina, white-lipped, saying, "And this time you needn't come back. I'm tired of you running out in a huff every time we have a difference of opinion, and then come whimpering back home about mealtime. If you decide to return this time, please let me know, so I can get out."

And Jud had said, sarcastically, "Don't worry, sweetie, the joint is Jud talked on and on. He wouldn't have believed he had it in him. Words just came—strong, powerful words. Words that made Elsie's eyes open in surprise. Words that finally dried her tears and brought a smile to her lips.

"I hadn't thought of it that way," she confessed. "I—I guess we'd better try again. I needed someone like you, Jud, to talk to me."

Jud felt important and triumphant, yet behind it all he knew a sensation of being a hypocrite. Was he man enough to go home and face Bettina? To practice what he's preached? He threw back his shoulders. He'd do it, by jove. He'd go back to Bettina and apologize. He'd talk to her as he'd talked to Elsie and they'd made a new start.

He knew a warm feeling of ecstasy. He felt like a martyr.

Elsie followed him to the door. There was gratitude in her eyes. She made him promise that he'd bring Bettina over for bridge after dinner that evening. She pressed his hand warmly, her eyes shining with happiness, and watched him out into the street.

She turned then and went back to the divan and sat down. After a moment she picked up the phone and dialed Bettina Chadwick's number.

"It's all right, darling," she said, when Bettina's eager voice answered. "He came here as you expected, to pour out his troubles. But I was ready for him. He's on his way home now. Thinks he's a martyr. And it's just as well to let him think so. I'll tell Neil not to say anything when he gets home. And, for heaven's sake, don't mention to Jud that the whole thing was prearranged. He'd never forgive me."

Cold Bath Is Excellent

Tonic Before Breakfast

A warm bath, taken just before going to bed, relaxes the muscles, attracts blood from the brain and tends to induce sleep in many individuals. A general cold bath or shower is an excellent tonic if taken on rising in the morning. It wakens up the sluggish circulation; it drives the cobwebs out of the brain and provides a general feeling of well being.

The alternate application of hot and cold water is one of the simplest and most successful forms of treatment for pain, congestion, inflammations, blood poisonings, sprains and bruises. But when to use hot or cold is a matter of training and experience. The application of cold over the heart slows the pulse, and over the abdomen relieves intestinal spasms, slows the movements of the abdominal organs and controls pain. A pleurisy pain is best controlled by heat; the pain of a rheumatic joint by cold applications. Sprains and bruises are relieved by cold applications or immersion in water. This closes the blood vessels and tends to prevent bleeding into the joint as well as to reduce the swelling.

For severe inflammations, those due to infections, where there is much redness, pain, swelling and fever, contrast baths are advised, in which the infected part is placed in water as hot as can be borne for four or five minutes. Then immerse in cold water for 40 or 50 seconds and repeat five or six times. Between immersions, the part should be wrapped in cloths wrung from a hot Epsom salts solution. These force a large amount of fresh blood into the inflamed part, blood that is loaded with white corpuscles which attack the offending organisms. Water inside and out is fine medicine.

Too Little Vitamin C

Many of us are victims of a mild type of scurvy (too little vitamin C). The lack is great enough to hold the system substantially below par. Minor signs, such as tender gums, are observed occasionally. In all probability, however, the most significant indication involves the slow and imperfect healing of wounds.

Physicians have long noted that occasionally they will encounter a patient whose cuts mend so gradually that he is singled out as possessing some peculiarity. We now know the answer—not enough C.

Research has now shown just what happens. When one does not take an ample quantity of C, all of the steps in the restoration of broken tissues are retarded. Under the microscope, the cells appear immature. The healing elements seem to be floating in too much fluid. They are thus prevented from forming a network of firm fibers.

Surgeons realize that in those who are obliged to undergo operations, steady improvement is all important; and the employment of doses of C will reduce the hospital stay appreciably in many cases. To bring this about, the use of fruits and fresh vegetables will do more than all the dressings that may be applied. It is assumed that there is no infection and that the work has been performed in a skillful manner.

THE vogue for slacks and shorts outfits has developed into one of the most significant, outstanding movements in the field of modern costume design. Beginning some few seasons ago as a mere experiment, the new mode of costume today flings a challenge to designers to give their best to a movement that is advancing in leaps and bounds to unqualified acceptance by women everywhere, women who recognize the chic, the comfort and the ease that slack costumes offer.

A few seasons ago the wearing of slacks was restricted to certain time, place and occasion and if you ventured beyond a prescribed program you were made to feel conspicuous. Nowadays slacks costumes are so generally worn, nothing less than a whole wardrobe of slacks is required in order to keep up with the social and fashion demands of the times.

Impetus has also been given to the slacks costume movement owing to the spreading of interest in civilian defense works which is creating a new and most exciting demand for slacks outfits, because of the need of durable workaday clothes. Among college girls who are taking courses in "emergency mechanics," there is a call for trouser costumes and coveralls made of denim, gabardine and other sturdy materials that will be increased as the fall school terms begin.

However, the workaday idea is but a single phase and a very recent development of the slacks-trousers costume theme, and there will be much to say later in this regard. Just now a most fascinating story is being unfolded at vacation resorts and amid home environs, a story so thrilling in interest and so wide in scope it carries through from sun-up to sun-up all through the 24 hours of a calendar day and night.

And so, while the vacation spirit is going strong throughout the nation, fancy turns to cool sleek streamline types such as the trim suit pictured to the right. Tailored with precision and cut to give the style-correct streamline silhouette, this is a type that makes instant appeal to best-dressed women. Over this smart outfit the wearer tosses one of those short wool jackets, the rage at resorts this summer.

In the same category as this "classy" slacks suit are the exquisitely tailored jacket and slacks suits. Fashioned of gabardine for the most part in fetching pastel greens, violet shades, soft blues and dusky pinks. There is a nicety and finesse about these suits that indicate genuine refinement and appealing femininity. See the pert little play suit pictured above to the right. The entire outfit is made of waffle pique with large stars in red and white.

Button-On-Vestee

Soon the time will come when college and back-to-school wardrobes will be the paramount theme in every household where school-faring daughters live. Why not look ahead and, in idle vacation days, make up a simple basic wool dress and brief jacket which will serve as a suit for a "starter" on the fall clothes program. The costume pictured will prove ideal as a many-purpose outfit.

Button-on vestee is in crisp white pique and really very easy to copy. Bright metal buttons make a smart trim for the dress when the vestee is removed. To give your costume a final fillip, knit a smart turban in white sports yarn.

Quills and Feathers To Feature Fall Hats

There is much novelty in the new hat arrivals. The tendency is to manipulate fabrics in intriguing and original ways. Among the fabrics used often is jersey, with an angora finish and milliners are creating draped turbans and toques of long scarf effects in lacy feather-weight woolknit manufactured especially for millinery purposes. These scarfed novelties will also be worked into snoods and apron drapes at the back of hats.

Look for quills and feathers galore, for they are "on the way." Not one quill but several, will appear dramatically posed on a beret or turban or novelty shape. Feather-adorned felt hats will be very popular this fall.

Bretons still maintain as a favorite type in the simpler and wider-brim felts. Sometimes these will have a crochet edge instead of a ribbon binding.

Belts Cleverly Handled

Reduce Waistline Span

In the march toward smooth silhouettes designers are manipulating belts in subtle ways. The latest move is to inset the belt in a svelte graceful midriff treatments. When shopping for the new gown take note of this, for it is surprising how this technique takes away inches from the waistline span.

Braided Effects

Much braiding is appearing throughout late summer fashions. It is said this matter of using braided trimmings will be accentuated throughout fall fashions. An interesting reaction to the call for braided effects will be hats with braidwork on off-face brims that corresponds with braiding on jacket or frock.

FARM TOPICS

WHEAT STORAGE BINS IMPORTANT

Poor Flooring, Foundation May Spoil Grain.

By E. W. LEHMANN
(Head of Department of Agricultural Engineers, University of Illinois.)

With an almost bumper crop of wheat in prospect, many farmers are planning for extra wheat storage on their farms as a result of a shortage of warehouse storage space.

The first specification for a good bin is foundation footings, large enough to prevent settling—4, most soils one square foot of surface bearing on the ground for every 60 bushels of wheat. Footings need to be wider on soils that are not firm. Depth of foundation should be 12 inches to as much as 36 inches to protect against leaning and undermining by water, rodents and livestock. Fifteen to 18 inches above the ground is a good height for foundations. Small and medium-sized bins are often put on semi-permanent foundations such as of stone or concrete blocks.

Floors and joists should be designed according to tables of weight-carrying capacity (such as found in the U. S. department of agriculture bulletin, Wheat Storage in the Ever-normal Granary) and the materials should be free of bad effects and termite damage. Tight floors are necessary to keep in gasses during fumigation.

Concrete floors in bins for long-time storage need to be at least eight inches above the ground with hollow tile or coarse gravel underneath. It is a good plan to cover concrete floors with moisture-proof kraft paper or loose boards or to paint them with two coats of asphalt-aluminum paint.

Bin walls can be made of various materials such as boards, plywood, metal or masonry, but must be strong enough to resist bursting pressure. Sometimes added strength is provided by wire or rod cross-ties. Walls must be tight to keep out moisture and to make fumigation feasible.

Simple Repairs Increase Farm Tractor Efficiency

How to keep tractor power up and fuel costs down gives many a farmer a headache.

To try to help farmers relieve some of these "headaches," H. P. Bateman and G. M. Petersen, agricultural engineers of the University of Illinois college of agriculture, recently completed some tests on farmers' tractors.

They found that simply resetting the carburetor needle valve on some of the tractors gave a fuel saving of as much as 10 gallons for each 10-hour day. Improper adjustment of the carburetor was the most common cause found for high fuel consumption.

Adjusting the governor gave as much as a 20 per cent increase in the maximum power of some tractors operating under governor control, and more than doubled the power available at rated motor speed under governor control.

Grinding the valves resulted in a third power, yet the fuel consumption was decreased nearly 10 per cent at the same power output in the case of a tractor with the valves in poor repair when brought to the laboratory.

Milk, Natural Greens Bolster Egg Yield

If hot summer weather has caused your birds' appetites to wane, revive them with green feed and milk. L. M. Black, extension poultryman at the New Jersey college of agriculture, Rutgers university, advises flock owners.

"Toward the end of the production year, layers often begin to lose interest in the standard rations," Black says. "Hot weather also tends to reduce feed consumption and lowered egg yields often result. To counteract these effects, wise poultrymen feed supplementary materials to whet their birds' appetites, bolster depleted stores of vitamins and provide protein to stimulate egg production.

"Natural green material is generally plentiful during summer and proves a welcome addition to the laying ration. Fresh lawn clippings, swiss chard, cabbage, lettuce and many other garden vegetables—even many varieties of weeds—are excellent.

Combined Straw

Straw left on the field by the combine and plowed under late in the summer for a fall-seeded crop may have detrimental effects, says W. A. Albrecht of the University of Missouri college of agriculture. Straw going back into the soil directly will frequently be injurious to the next crop instead of beneficial. The cases of dangerous effects from straw turned under will increase as the number of combines employed on farms becomes greater.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IT ALL started with a bright idea for making a simple, painted coffee table from odds and ends of lumber. The sketch at the lower left gives the dimensions. The two end sections were made first; the top and sides of these being screwed together with 1-inch metal angles. A shelf was then nailed in and a 1/2 by 3-inch board nailed across the back of it. Two boards for the top of the table were then screwed to the end sections.

Now the needle-lady comes in. The table was to be painted putty color and then waxed. She bought a yard of slightly darker tan sateen and applied a design of bright blue and red morning glories and green leaves on it with stems and tendrils in green outline stitch. This was placed over the table top and tacked around the edge. A piece of window glass was then cut to fit and 1/2 by 3-inch pieces were screwed to the sides.

NOTE: This graceful morning glory design is so attractive that Mrs. Spears has arranged to furnish transfer patterns to be used in stamping fabric for a table

John: "Why that's nothing. I was fishing over on the river. I started pulling in my line, there was a quick jerk. I pulled it in and there was a lantern, still burning."

Jim: "You don't expect me to believe that one?"

NO SINGING THE NEWS

BY RUSS DEVITT

And the scene shifts on the ever-changing world panorama to the Far East. And the accord entered into by Japan and France for the occupation of army and naval bases in French Indo-China is naturally a Nazi brain-child. And France is dominated by Hitler and Japan debunked by Hitler with the resulting critical far eastern situation.

And as a result of the Japanese expansion program, Japan finds her main source of supplies and her main source of exports, namely the United States, cut off cleaner than the proverbial bone. And it is not conceivable that Japan will be able to receive those things from Germany which has up to this point enabled her to carry on the long drawn out war with China. And the only thing which will make this possible is a quick knock-out blow to Russia. And to date Russia seems to be absorbing the shock of the Nazi blows quite well.

And so there is a prospect of a bitter economic war between this country and Britain and the island of Nippon. And the only result can be the Japanese the loser. And Japan by entering into the Nazi scheme of things (maybe they were forced in) has lost her best friend. In the world economically. And it is the private view of this department that Japan would pull out of the mess even now if she could so do without losing face.

And maybe this means that the United States is now closer to the theatre of war than ever before. And maybe it means we are further away. And at any rate there comes from German diplomatic sources a story of the offer of a "painless peace" to Britain, providing Russia is defeated and provided that the United States stays out of the conflict. And even if such a peace offer were officially made to England it would receive no consideration. For the world knows there is no lasting peace with a dictator.

A Little Bit o' DRIFTWOOD

I Wandered Lonely As A Cloud

I wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a cloud,
A host, of golden daffodils;
Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the milky way,
They stretched in never-ending line
Along the margin of a bay:
Ten thousand saw I at a glance,
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced; but they
Out-did the sparkling waves in glee:
A poet could not but be gay,
In such a jocund company:
I gazed—and gazed—but little thought
What wealth the show to me had brought:

For oft, when on my couch I lie
In vacant or in pensive mood,
They flash upon that inward eye
Which is the bliss of solitude;
And then my heart with pleasure fills,
And dances with the daffodils.
