All in Silence

By PROF. J. C. CHAPMAN (Department of Agronomy, University of Wisconsin)

American agriculture is coming to realize that a national defense program against the forces of soil depletion and exploitation is just as vital to the future of this country as defense against foreign aggression. In every past age soil fertility has played a dominant part. Succeeding civilizations have sought and fought for fertile lands that would provide food and clothing.

The restlessness of the earth's early inhabitants, their migrations and invasions of new countries were in most instances due to the depletion of the soils in their own countries and a desire to acquire and settle the more fertile areas of the then-known world.

It was not until comparatively recently that the development of the science of soil chemistry taught the nations of the world how to maintain soil fertility on their lands.

Of recent date, too, is the recognition by American agriculture of the dangers of soil exhaustion in this country. Farmers have come to realize that every year they are selling plant food from their land in the form of cash crops, dairy products and live stock. They have discovered that even in a system of live stock farming where all the crops are fed to stock and the manure returned to the fields, they are losing fertility at an alarming rate. Everywhere we have been drawing checks on our bank account—the soil -and spending and using our fertility much faster than we have been replacing it with plant foods.

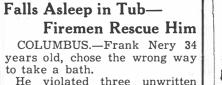

The hopeful fact in our situation, however, is that farmers in increasing numbers are becoming aware of the seriousness of these losses and are taking steps to prevent them. They are using lime and fertilizers and following soil and crop management practices that will restore the native productiveness of their farms. This national defense program against the forces of soil depletion is steadily gathering momentum. It is being spurred forward through the co-operation of the federal government, the AAA, the state agricultural colleges, and farmers' organizations everywhere. The war

Finds Her Family, Lost for 39 Years

Mother Reunited With Two Sons and Daughter.

DETROIT .- Thirty-nine years of sorrow and heartache were swept away in a small flat when Mrs. Mollie Hatch was reunited with a daughter and two sons who had thought their mother dead.

"We haven't had time to get acquainted yet," the daughter, Mrs. Asenath Keiser, smiled, dabbing her eyes with a handkerchief, "but we certainly are happy to have found each other. It's been terrible, all these years, thinking mother was dead and not even knowing where her grave was." The sons, George and Joseph, smiled agreement.

A tragic marital discord brought about the separation of Mrs. Hatch from her children in Rondo, Mich., in 1901.

"It was on August 19," Mrs. Hatch, white-haired and smiling, said promptly, proving that 39 years had not dimmed the moment when she was forced to abandon everything she loved.

In the years that followed, Mrs. Hatch traveled restlessly through seven states and Canada.

"I never stayed in one spot long," she said, "but finally I stopped in this part of the country." She has been in Detroit and Dearborn for the last 19 years.

In her 20-year travels, Mrs. Hatch lost all trace of her children. Until Saturday night, when her daughter arrived by bus from Canton, Ohio, the picture in her mind had still been that of a little, three-year-old girl.

A few days ago, Mrs. Hatch related, there began a chain of circumstances that was climaxed by the reunion.

"I met a family in Bayport," Mrs. Hatch said, "and they mentioned they were from Saginaw. I asked them if they knew my sister Kit. It's unbelievable, but they lived right next door to her. "They notified the children. Joseph heard about it (he's been living right in Detroit, less than a halfhour's drive from me) and he came out Saturday to see if it was true.' "Joseph called me in Canton Sunday," Mrs. Keiser broke in. "I was so stunned that I fell down the basement stairs," she laughed.

Mulch of Pine Needles Reforests Eroded Field

Pine needle mulch can sometimes be used to reforest old fields or clay gall areas, recent experiments at the Southern Piedmont Soil Conservation Experiment station at Athens, Ga., show

Seeking an economical way of seeding eroded areas, the station mulched four clay-gallea plots with 800 pounds of pine-needle litter from adjacent woods. In five months a healthy mixed vegetation developed, including more than 1,600 shortleaf seedlings—an average of two seedlings from each pound of mulch.

The study will observe for several years the survival and height growth of the seedlings resulting from this simple and inexpensive scattering pine-needle litter over the bare area to a depth of about one inch. If only one-fourth of the existing seedlings live for five years, the area will be well planted.

Texas Man Fined Under Law That Never Existed

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS.—The city commission's collective face still is pretty red. The commission belatedly passed an ordinance prohibiting parking in loading and emergency zones-three months after police began making arrests and corporation court began assessing fines under its provisions.

William Blanchet, assistant city attorney, said that the ordinance had been scheduled for passage three months ago but that, due to an "oversight," it had not been put on the books. Police, however, believing the ordinance in effect, began making arrests.

Now the city is wondering what to do with the fines assessed motorists for violating a law that didn't exist.

From the very start in assembling your new wardrobe, keep firmly implanted in your mind that accessories, above all else, are cast to play the dramatic role in fashion this season. Do this and you will find yourself safely charted in the right course through both spring and summer.

It is a matter of tradition that a new and becoming hat ever has and ever will prove the most effective first aid in sounding the first joyous note of spring. This season fashion goes the idea "one better" with the insistence that a matching handbag complete the picture by way of adding drama to the occasion. Try the hat-and-matching-handbag-way and you will find that it works like magic in broadcasting the glad tidings of spring.

Note the quartette of fetching hatand-bag ensembles shown in the illustration. Twosomes of this sort are typically "first fashion" news for spring. At the upper right of for spring. At the upper right of the group a navy blue stucco braid parel. The whole trend is to cor-relate and to co-ordinate costume beret is shown which claims distinction because of the bright patrioticcolored strips which detail the beret and, are repeated in the "nautical knots" which enliven the navy felt handbag. By the way, navy will be tremendously smart again this season. To the upper left the problem of matching hats and handbags has been eliminated by two well-known American designers. Clear synthetic strips laced through the Howard Hodge hat and the Nat Lewis handbag subtly emphasize harmony of colors and materials. In the popular South American manner the hat of artichoke straw has a high pleat-ed crown of the same flame red felt used for the handbag.

Below to the right black felt and spaghetti braiding is manipulated into a new version of the fashionable off-the-face pillbox with its low-tied bow of the braid, repeated in the laced handbag.

For the handsome hat and bag set pictured on the figure seated, bright green silk petal-shirred grosgrain ribbon is used by Lilly Dache. A matching petal-shirred envelope bag completes this distinctive accessory ensemble.

The supremacy of accessories in the spring mode carries courage and inspiration in the thought that the movement is being aided and abetted by the very highest stylecreative talent in all industries that pertain to fashion in women's apdetail. To this end designers, manufacturers and merchants are enthusiastically working together to co-ordinate color, material and style motif. By way of suggestion when you go accessory seeking, look up the new tiger yellows and browns, the many smart greens, the beiges, Peruvian pink, the new pastel jewel colors, and reds are bolder and brighter than ever. # HOUSE PARTY MURDER 88

By JAMES FREEMAN (Associated Newspapers.) WNU Service.

T WAS a high-pitched, ear-splitting scream; the scream of a woman.

Following it there was a shot, a series of groans, a heavy; thudding sound.

Then silence. A profound, heavy silence.

Clyde Greene was the first to reach the corridor. Clyde's room was next to that occupied by Marie Leland. As the youth opened the door he switched on a light button and the corridor was brilliantly illuminated.

Clyde pounded on Marie Leland's door. There was no answer, and he decided to force the lock. By this time, the corridor was filled with people. Doors opened and frightened, curious faces looked up and down. At sight of Clyde opening Marie Leland's door, they came running.

Clyde paused just inside the room. A shapeless bulk on the floor obstructed his passage. He felt along the wall, found a switch and snapped it on.

The bulk on the floor was a dead man. Blood oozed from a wound in his temple. Clyde recognized him at once as one of his week-end guests. His name was Howard Lund, and he was known to be madly in love with Marie.

Marie lay on the bed, unconscious. A dressing gown partly covered her form. Her face was white as chalk. Clyde kept his head. It was his house; he was, in a sense, respon-

The bulk on the floor was a dead man. Clyde recognized him at once as one of his week-end guests.

He kept the crowd back, sible. turned to look at them. Jack Chase seemed the calmest.

"Go down and call the police, will you, Jack. And the rest of you please get back into the corridor. We don't want to disturb anything until the police get here."

It was fully a half hour before Inspector Oscar Bean and his chief aide, Bert Ross, arrived on the scene. They went immediately to that Homer was a no-good from man's son.' "Did you tell him he could come to your room?" "No!"

Bean spoke musingly, looking at Homer Dunlap. "It might be possible that someone who thought a good deal of Miss Leland overheard Lund make that threat. That same someone might have anticipated Lund coming to Miss Leland's room; might, in fact, have been there himself, or in the corridor nearby and-"

He broke off, got to his feet. "However, that isn't what happened -Greene, you'd better have your guests leave the room. These things are upsetting."

Greene nodded. He didn't understand, but he was glad to comply with the request.

Greene remained in the room until after the guests had gone.

"I'm sorry you didn't get anywhere with your questioning, Inspector." Bean shook his head. "On the contrary, Greene, I got a long way. It didn't take a great deal of ingenuity to identify the killer.'

Clyde's face was a mask of as-tonishment. "You don't mean you know who the culprit is!"

"That's exactly what I do mean." "Well?"

"Marie Leland!"

"Marie! But good heavens, how could it be? When I arrived in the room she was lying on the bed unconscious.' "How do you know she was unconscious?" Clyde bit his lip. He regarded the inspector steadily, wanting to believe, fearful of what the man knew. "She identified herself as the murderess when she told her story. She mentioned awakening and seeing a man's wrist watch glowing in the dark. A man's! Why not a woman's? She knew it was a man's because she was expecting a man. And she wanted that man out of the way because of what he might tell. Besides, how many men who were in this room tonight wore wrist watches? None. All but Howard Lund had removed their watches for the night.' Bean paused. "She shot him.

The gun was lying close by his hand. She had wiped it off with a handker-chief. I have the handkerchief in my pocket. It's spotted with grease marks from the gun. She had barely time to feign unconsciousness on the bed when you arrived. She must have been breathing heavily. It's odd you didn't notice.''

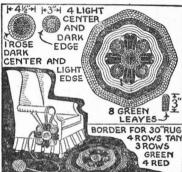

Clyde sank into a chair. He turned his head as a sound came from near the door. He opened it and Detective Ross stood there. Behind him was Marie Leland, fully clad, miserable of expression, frightened, sobbing hysterically. Clyde turned away. It was a nasty business.

New 'Half Hat'

Of all the exciting fashion news for spring, 1941, what is more exciting than the novel "half hat" recently turned out by Lilly Dache! There will no doubt be a rush for these flattering flowery hats when the season gets into full swing, for they are not only charming but practical.

Unusual Fabrics Enhance Dresses

Unusual fabrics frequently add to the attractiveness of evening gowns. A little use of the imagination will oftem produce satisfactory results.

'If you are a smart young person you might consider going to the upholstery department next time you need material for a new evening dress You will be doubly smart if you choose material with a gray background.

Heavy gray rayon taffeta has great possibilities, as does gray satin with tiny motifs in gold or striped and damask designs. This material is so wide that it takes only a few yords to make a beautiful dress

A new development in the jewelry realm is clips that come in series from two to three, four or five. They vary in size and are worn along a neckline or are clipped or pinned to sweep down one side of the bodice like a flock of little birds.

Another version of the jewel series is interpreted in several clips that may be worn singly, in a series or fastened together to form one important individual-looking piece. Such is the new lotus flower clip. One clip may be the flower, another the bud still another the foliage. Wear them separately and they serve many purposes, fasten them together (they are made to do just that) and you have one imposing piece of jewelry to wear with your evening gown. 'The idea is carried on in some instances to include matching finger ring and earrings.

Main Street Gone From Fashion World

"There is no more Main Street in Fashion," declared Mrs. Wilhela Cushman, fashion editor of Ladies Home Journal, before a convention of retailers and manufacturers who recently held their spring national shoe fair in Chicago. Mrs. Cushman says she has found in her travels of 20,000 miles in the past that Main street and Fifth avenue meet and now launch simultaneously the same advance fashions.

Declaring that this season "a costume will be made by its accessories," Mrs. Cushman said that bags will be bigger, softer and more colorful. In footwear, the news is of softer shoes. There is a new softness about the leather used. The seamless glove will also be featuated this season, she added.

Marie Leland's room. Minutes later they came back downstairs and confronted the scantily-clad guests in the drawing room. And with them came Marie Leland, still pale, frightened looking. She flung herself on a divan and immediately broke into sobs. Homer Dunlap came and sat down beside her, and Marie clung to him.

Inspector Bean spoke to Clyde. ''You're Greene, aren't you?'' "Yes."

"You'll save yourself a lot of trouble, Greene, and a lot for your guests, by answering my unrestrainedly. You what it will mean if I clear this up tonight

"Of course. Ask your questions." Bean glanced sidewise at Marie. "Was this man Lund in love with the girl?"

"I believe<sup>L</sup>he was."

"Did she love him?" Clyde looked uneasy, but Marie wasn't watching him. "I don't think so."

"Possibly she loved someone else, and Lund was forcing himself on her?

Clyde glanced meaningly toward the divan. Bean nodded and strode in that direction. He sat down, close by the girl, ignoring the threatening look with which Homer Dunlap regarded him.

"Miss Leland, will you please tell me exactly what happened?"

The girl dabbed at her eyes. She was holding Dunlap's hand, and when he looked at her reassuringly, she turned to Bean.

"I don't know how long I'd been asleep. I was awakened by a noise. I looked up and saw a man's wrist watch glowing in the dark near the I screamed. There was a door. flash, a loud report. The door opened and closed. I saw a figure dart into the corridor. Then I must have fainted.'

"You didn't recognize the figure, have no idea who it was?" "No."

"Had Howard Lund been forcing his attentions on you?

"Yes." She paused, seemed to consider, and went on. "We used to be engaged. It was a silly love affair. I soon got over it. Then I met Homer and fell in love with him. Howard kept hounding me.' ''Hounding you?'

"Yes. He said he'd discovered some things about my past, and unless I'd let him come to my room he'd tell Homer. He always said thought of a woman telling him how to handle his money.

The thing to do, according to one expert on financial problems is to treat the problem as a business concern treats it. A business concern makes its purchasing agent the shrewdest bargainer it can dig up and to hire the best bookkeepers it can find for its auditing department. It doesn't give the purchasing job to a good contact or idea man, or the auditing jobs to a bunch of good salesmen.

Do the same thing in your home, the expert advises. Take stock of each partner_rule out the vanities and taboos-determine which of the two firm members is the better at stretching a dollar and keeping track of all the dollars that come in and go out, and then simply elect that partner chancellor of the home exchequer.

Run the business side of the family as a business, unemotionally and shrewdly and you will likely detour a lot of emotional upsets, not to mention a lot of inefficient use of what money you have to use.

Why It's Stonewall Jackson Time: July 21, 1861.

Place: Manassas, Prince William county, Virginia.

Dramatis Personae: Generals Thomas Jonathan Jackson and Bernard Elliott Bee, Federal and Confederate troops.

It was the first Battle of Bull Run, or as the South prefers to call it, Manassas.

Under the withering fire and irresistible charge of the Federals, the Confederate General Bee's brigade had broken and was on the verge of utter rout

As from nowhere, appeared General Jackson with five of Virginia's crack regiments, who, though con fronted by superior numbers, were holding their own, were indeed beginning to press forward.

"See, there is Jackson standing like a stone wall!" shouted Bee to discouraged soldiers.

Suiting their actions to his stirring words, which passed from lips to lips, the fast faltering troops reformed their ranks and put up such a stiff fight as to contribute materially to shifting the tide of battle. the Federals coming off second best. General Bee was killed leading the fresh rally; but his sobriquet, "Stonewall" for Thomas Jonathan Jackson survives lustily.
