Queer Oaths

Three Indian women who were witnesses in a case at Port Arthur danced past the judge instead of taking the oath. This, according to their religion, bound them to speak the truth. If they then lied, they would incur the wrath of their ancestors. In British courts Moslems swear on the Koran, and Sikhs on the Bhagvad Gita, their equivalent of the Bible.

When a Chinese takes the oath he raises a saucer above his head and smashes it to the floor, saying as the fragments fly: "If I tell a lie, may my soul be shattered, like that saucer, into a thousand fragments."

Slow Murder

Many states no longer follow the old common law that a person cannot be indicted and tried for a murder if the victim lives for a year and a day after the assault. For instance, in New York a short time ago, a man was convicted of murder although the deceased did not die from the bullet wound for more than four years.

FARM LOPICS

WATER NEEDED BY DAIRY COWS

Plentiful Supply Increases Milk Production.

By H. R. SEARLES (Extension Dairyman at University Farm, St. Paul.)

Dairy cows sometimes fail in milk production because the herdsman skimps on the least expensive of all the milk-making materials. Plenty of water is absolutely necessary if a cow is to produce up to her natural ability. The best possible feed ration will not get results if watering is irregular and limited.

Water is doubly important because the dairy cow needs it for feed utilization as well as for the milk which is itself about 87 per cent water. Water is the carrier by which nutrients and wastes are transported in the body; it keeps body cells in good shape to carry out their work; it helps break down feeds for use; it controls the body temperature. A shortage of water results immediately in lower milk production. Heavy milking cows are affected even more than light pro-

Cows on dry feed need correspondingly more water than those on succulent feed such as green grass or silage. On the other hand it has been shown that the cow is not particular how she gets her water. If plenty of water is available to drink, the animal will do as well on dry feed as on feed which carries mois-

The U.S. department of agriculture reports that drinking cups in the barn result in definite increases in milk production. With water at hand at all times the cow will drink about 10 times a day.

Declining Soil Fertility

Causes Drouth, Flood

"We don't have weather like we once had," is a trite saying which is unsupported by any scientific evidence. But the experience of recent years has shown that the effects of weather are worse than they once were, according to Dr. William A. Albrecht of the department of soils, University of Missouri. All because we have neglected our soil.

Drouths are more disastrous than formerly because the eroded and shallower surface soils can't take and hold the rainfall, he explains. More of the precipitation runs off and less is stored in the deeper soil zones to be drawn on in drouthy periods.

Studies at the Missouri agricultural experiment station during drouth years revealed that the earth three feet below the surface of tilled, eroded or shallow soils was completely dry and slow in moisture re-But earth three feet under covery. sods or deep surface soils showed good evidences of moisture. Recovery was rapid and the moisture moved down into the deeper levels as storage water.

Man alone can help counteract the results of his carelessness, Dr. Albrecht added. The remedy lies in an intelligent, never-ending program of soil conservation. It lies in putting back into the soil the valuable plant nutrients—nitrogen, phosphorus and potash — that have been drained away by constant cropping. It means raising and maintaining the total fertility level of the soil rather than trying to spur the growth of a single crop.

Growing Spinach Seed May Be Profitable

An expected spinach seed shortage for next year is causing many farmers to consider growing the seed for sale.

Spinach seed is not difficult to grow if weather conditions are favorable, according to C. H. Nissley, of New Jersey college of agriculture, Rutgers university. Seed should be obtained either from wintered-over spinach or from very early plants. The seed should be matured before midsummer, he added.

Nissley explains that because the seed develops at different times, it is advisable to harvest plants when the first ripened seed begins to shatter. Then the plants should be cut, tied in bundles and stacked, or they may be cut, gathered and placed on large canvases protected from rains to dry before being threshed. An average acre yield of spinach seed is 500 pounds, but yields of 1,000 pounds per acre are not uncommon.

Baby Chicks

Buttermilk or sour skim milk are the best feeds for chicks when they are first placed under the canopy, advise poultry specialists of the North Carolina State college. The baby chicks should also have access to dry mash and water. Another good feed is cooked infertile eggs left over from the first candling. Grain feed may be given after the first seven to ten days. It is very essential that plenty of mash hopper space be supplied.

Violent Death of Beauty Puzzle to British Police

Dancing Academy Operator, About to Be Married, Mysteriously Killed.

LONDON. - Great Britain's famous police surgeon, Sir Bernard Spilsbury, went to the internationally known resort of Brighton the other day on an urgent call from local detectives.

The problem which they wished Sir Bernard to solve for them was the mysterious death of the popular and vivacious Mrs. Jack Buckley, 46 years old, of Brighton, hostess and operator of a dancing academy, who was found dead, with severe bodily injuries, on a low roof between two wings of a block of flats in Brighton a few hours after she had written invitations to the forthcoming wedding of her and Bryan William MacCusworth, 31 years old, of Birmingham, inspector for the air ministry. It was thought at first that Mrs. Buckley had accidentally fallen from a third floor window, but the severity of her injuries, coupled with a number of other mysterious features, led the police to suspect that she may have been a victim of foul play.

Two Theories Advanced.

There would appear to have been two complete sets of injuries on the body. On her back there were a series of bruised indentations which, it was thought, could not be explained by the fall.

Detectives believed that these injuries were inflicted at least two or three minutes before she fell from

One theory police considered was that in the room from which she fell she encountered someone with whom she had a quarrel, that there was a short struggle, and that she then was pushed from the window. A man was asked to account for his movements immediately preceding the discovery. Another statement that Mrs. Buckley was a big winner at the greyhound races on the night be-fore she met her death also was investigated. Sir Bernard Spilsbury, in addition to carrying out an examination of the body, visited the scene of the tragedy and examined the window from which Mrs. Buckley fell. He made a close inspection of the brickwork surrounding the window and adjoining the flat roof on which the body was found.

Party at the Club.

It has been established that Mrs. Buckley, an attractive, smartly dressed blonde, with a beautiful figure, dined with friends on the evening of her death.

She returned to the block of flats, where she ran her club and dancing academy on the second floor, shortly before the club was due to close at 10 p. m.

It was her intention to throw little party in celebration of her forthcoming wedding to MacCusworth.

A few friends stayed behind after the club closed for the party.

A few minutes after 10 Mrs. Buckley left the flats. She was seen to re-enter the building about 10 minutes past 10. The friends invited to the party knew that she would be absent only for a few minutes. When she did not reappear in the club a search was started, and eventually her body was found on the low roof between two wings of the flats.

Blind Are Thrilled as 'Sightseers' on Flight

SALT LAKE CITY.—Twenty Salt Lake residents were guests of an air line on a sightseeing flight over Salt Lake City and, although each called the flight the "thrill of a lifetime," not one of them saw anything.

All 20 were blind.

The flight, believed to be the first of its kind in aviation history, was arranged by officials of the state blind commission and the air line.

Before the takeoff, the members of the party were allowed to spend an hour "feeling" almost every part of the plane. Attendants described each of the gadgets, and the workings of the ship.

Then, the 17 men and three women took their seats and prepared for the 35-minute jaunt. Another attendant described the terrain over which the plane passed, and answered questions when it zoomed or

Gardeners

GARDENS FOR DEFENSE

THE home gardener has an important place in our program of national defense, a much more important role than he played during the first World war.

In the face of these facts, gardeners are advised to do two things: Plan to devote increased space to vegetable gardening; and perfect plans for the 1941 garden so as to get the greatest possible yield from the available space.

In stepping up yield from vegetable gardens of limited size, two major devices should be relied on, first, companion cropping — the planting of fast-growing crops like radishes, spinach, and lettuce between rows of slower-growing vegetables like tomatoes, and cabbage.

Second, succession croppingthe repeated planting of major crops such as beans, sweet corn, radishes, carrots, beets, and lettuce. Maryland Short-Landed

If the early settlers of Maryland had possessed better geographic knowledge and claimed all the land granted to Lord Baltimore by the king of England in 1632, the state would be nearly 17,000 square miles in area, according to Collier's. Instead it has only 10,000 square miles, having lost the 7,000 miles, which are now worth about $12,000,000,000, to Delaware, Pennsylvania and what is now northern West Virginia.

Plaids Bold, Colorful, Striking In Spring Coats, Capes, Jackets

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ALL signs point to a riot of handsome plaids in the spring style parade. When you choose your plaid for a new coat, cape, jacket, dress or separate skirt, fashion asks you to throw all caution to the wind. New plaids are big and bold, brazen and color-mad, for fashion is in a mood for drama in plaids this

However, there is another side to the plaid story which has to do with conservative plaids that are in pastel colors so subtle, so winsome, that you will find yourself yielding to their enchantment at very first glance. Which all goes to show in the new spring collections that there's a plaid for every time, place and occasion and for every individ-

Notwithstanding the color furore that is going on, there is much enthusiasm for black and white wool plaids. They are very new and very good-looking and have a unique style all their own.

The plaid costumes pictured typify the new trends. These stunning models were selected from among hundreds at a recent preview dramatically presented in a pageantry of fashion by the Style Creators of Chicago, an event that illustrated new achievement, new triumphs for American designers. Conveying the message that plaids are stylish this season, we illustrate three distinct types herewith-the long coat, the dramatic cape of which you will see an endless procession this spring, and the ever-favorite softly tailored long jacket.

The cape vogue is taking the

world of fashion by storm. The wearing of a plaid cape over a smartly tailored jacket suit is very practical to wear during the fickle weather of early spring days. As an ideal ensemble for later on, you will be topping your crepe and print frocks with a cape in one of the pretty springtime colors. Note the smartly caped lady of fashion in the picture, who wears over a frock of gold hued crepe a full length wool to latest silhouette trends.

One of the new and very smart gestures of fashion is to top your tailored suit with a coat of wool plaid. Provided with such a chic outfit as the sailor-hatted young modern in the picture is wearing, you will be ready to greet spring in fitting regalia. Furthermore, if you own a sleek tailored plaid surcoat smartly straightlined and pocketed as the one worn by the model illustrated, it will prove a perfect treasure later on as a wrap to wear plaid cape, straight lined according over various prints or plain frocks. Note the good-looking plaid-jacket costume centered in the group. Here you see a very advance model in the new longer length. The hige cur of the plaid adds to its charm. You will love the hazy green gold and gray tones in this plaid. Worn with a sheer dress that features an allaround pleated skirt, this jacket will take you places in high style.

More plaid! Here's the latest-hat and enormous underarm bag of vivid plaid to add color glory to your new ensemble.

THE WILD WEST

By VIC YARDMAN

(Associated Newspapers.)
WNU Service.

HERIFF ABE LANG of Mesa county is a noted liar. He admits it, yet he does not classify his tales of great adventures and hair-raising escapes under the category of falsehoods. He calls it romancing.

It is true that Abe has participated in more thrilling and dangerous undertakings than any man in our section of the West. Yet of these experiences he is as close-mouthed as he is loquacious when unfolding one of his imaginary tales.

Last summer there was an easterner named Runnels staying at Ma Clemson's boarding house in Mesa. Runnels had come West for a number of reasons. We knew he was in search of local color. And we surmised he had been sadly disappointed in learning that Mesa county wasn't infested by a bunch of bloodcurdling savages, and that we in the county seat enjoyed many, if not all, the advantages of the civilized world.

Runnels' disappointment was so keen that he made no bones in rag-ging us about the lack of excitement.

In self-defense we had advised our eastern visitor (somewhat testily) that we attributed our peacefulness to the efforts of the great Abe Lang, who, in his early days was quite a gunfighter, and had succeeded in cleaning out the bad element, much to our satisfaction.

Runnels, however, was skeptical. He would like, he said, to hear from the great Abe himself. He didn't believe that any man could have ac-

"Young feller, are you insinuating that the story isn't true, that I'm complished the great feats of courage that we attributed to Sheriff Abe Lang.

And so it came about that one day we sat with Runnels on Ma Clemson's veranda and watched Abe come limping up the street toward us, and knew that Runnels was going to get his wish.

"Why, yes," Abe began, after preliminaries had been disposed of and the sheriff's right leg, an injury to which caused his limp, was extended comfortably before him, "why yes," he repeated. "I guess I can tell you a story, Mr. Runnels. Fact is, I'll tell you how come I bunged up this here laig of mine. I guess the mere fact that you can see how the ankle is twisted will be evidence enough to prove I ain't lyin'

Abe sucked at his pipe and reflected. "Humm. Yep, it musta been thirty year ago. I was a youngster then, in office not more'n a year or two an' rarin' for any kind of excitement. "The Apaches was cuttin' up something powerful then. And they had a system of attack and retreat that just about wore the government soldiers ragged. The redskins would attack a wagon train, no matter the size. If the train was not equipped with a force large enough to Stand off the affront, it was just too bad. The Injuns would massacre 'em all, loot the wagons, and then burn 'em. If the train had a large force of armed men, the Apaches would retreat. Nine times out of ten the armed force would follow. Then the redskins would display cunning. They'd separate, each choosin' a course of his own. When well away they'd lie in ambush and if the wagon force had scattered, like they most always did, one man to one Indian, chances were the white would get plugged from behind a boulder or some such place of concealment.

"It was when things was at their worst that Nate Smith asked me to accompany him and his family from Mesa to Mount Bald, where Nate had staked out a mining claim, a distance of fifty miles. It wasn't much of a trip, and through fairly unhostile country, but Nate wanted I should go along because he claimed his wife wouldn't be so nervous.

"I agreed, and one spring morning we set out, planning to make a two days' jaunt of it. Early on the mornin' of the second day, just as we was getting ready to break camp about twenty-five miles from Mesa, a half-dozen Indians topped a rise, looked down on us and immediately came whooping to the attack.

"Nate and me did the best we could to fortify ourselves with his two wagons and arranged ourselves in the most strategic positions pos-

"It was a hot fight while she lasted, and thank goodness there weren't no more'n six of them Apaches. Nate was out of the picture almost at once, after dropping one of the charging redskins. Well, there was me left alone with five wild redskins to account for, and a wounded man and wife and two children to protect.

"If it wasn't for the woman ${f I}$ wouldn't o' cared much. Women somehow make me nervous. Anyway, I stopped that charge pronto, by the simple expedient of knocking two of them copper-skinned blokes into the dust with as many shots from my rifle.

"The remaining three attackers dismounted and took shelter behind protecting boulders. The fight that followed lasted all morning. By eleven o'clock I had exhausted my supply of cartridges and was usin' Nate's gun which was of smaller caliber. Another of the redskins had stopped one of my bullets, but in turn I was lugging around two pellets from their guns. Howsumever, the wounds didn't bother me much, and by noon I had succeeded in laying low one of the remaining two

"It was right after that I seen the remaining redskin making a sneak for it under cover of a boulder. Thinks I, I might as well make a hundred per cent score and fetch in that jigger's scalp with the oth-

"An' thus thinkin' I jumps for my horse, which had become a bit shy during that shootin', and wasn't inclined to let me get up on him. But without thinkin' much but to get that fleein' redskin, I put one foot in the stirrup, at which moment the hoss leaps ahead, throwin' me off balance. It was then I injured this laig of mine. My ankle got twisted in the stirrup and has never been right sirrup and has never been right since. At any rate, I wasn't drug far before I got myself disentangled and looked around. And there, not twenty-five feet away was my last redskin, running like all get-up toward his hoss. 'Hi-up,' I yells at him, not wishing to shoot any man in the back. The Apache turned, seen me laying there on the ground, and snaps up his rifle. But I had a bead on him an' pressed the trigger, which brought my score up to 100 per cent, although I was some stove up what with two bullets in me an' a busted ankle-'

Abe paused in the telling of his tale, as Runnels, who had been listening with satisfying intentness, suddenly burst into a roar of laugh-

Abe looked at him sharply. In fact, we all looked at him sharply. All during the telling of the story I had felt that Abe was doing an excellent job. I was sure that the easterner was convinced that the West had once been wild and woolly, and that Abe was all we had bragged about him being.

Abe waited a moment, and then said, "That's a nasty laugh, mister. What might it mean?"

Runnels dried his eyes. "Pardon me, Sheriff, but you looked so serious when you were telling that story-quite as if you actually expected me to believe it."

Abe reddened under his tan, leaning forward. "Young feller, are you insinuating that the story isn't true, that I'm a liar? If so you'd better give a reason, and give it dang quick!'

Runnels nodded, stifling another roar of laughter. "Well, it was a good story anyway," he admitted, 'and I'll never tell a soul it isn't true. Only next time, Sheriff, when you recite that yarn, you might bear in mind that we easterners naturally expect you cowboys to know all about horses and how to ride 'em. We wouldn't, for example, ever dream of accusing you of attempting to mount a horse from the right side, under any circumstances." Runnels looked down at Abe's injured right leg."

Mule Trader Recognizes Animal After 20 Years

Of course there are big mules and little mules, but to most persons all mules look alike.

However, down in Kirbyville in the East Texas stump country, there is a man who can recognize a mule he sold 20 years ago and can even remember the name of the animal. And he has dealt in hundreds of mules in that time.

T. G. ("Thorny") Hicks is his name and he has been in the muletrading business for more than 25 years. His memory for mule faces and mule names has made a legend of him-that and the fact that he advertises on his trucks and signboards that he gives "a tolerable square deal to all."

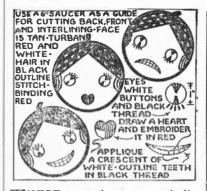

From his native Alabama to the Fort Worth stockyards, his "tolerable square deal" is discussed, and the reputation his signs and memory have brought him has made him one of the several tourist attractions of this town.

"I never tell a ne outright about an animal I'm trying to trade," Hicks asserted one day. "I'll tell the prospective customer the animal is four years old, and I won't be lying, for I don't have to tell him how much older than four years the plug is."

Hicks can drive a bargain trade, and he teaches his wranglers his trade angles. One wrangler, in less than two days, ran a $10 plug into $400 worth of animal by rapid trading and "good hoss talk."

Hicks' "Tolerable square deal" has effect, for Hicks works from daylight to dark-just trading.

There are important changes going on in sleeve styling. The new movement toward an all-in-one sleeve and bodice or sleeve and yoke is very obvious this season. You see it in the Chinese influence this season and in smart dolman sleeves. In this picture, the sleeve extends seamless at shoulders from the voke section. The Russian-styled blouse underneath is of white linen, and the skirt repeats the slight flare of its own peplum.
