Jos. Breidenbach

After an illness of two years following a stroke Jos. Breidenbach passed away at St. Camilla's Hospital, Milwaukee, Friday evening, March 14th. Mr. Breidenbach was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Breidenbach, early pioneers of Eagle and was born April 25, 1858 on the old Breidenbach farm now owned by Ernest Loefer. He was the third eldest of a family of 8 children, namely Sister Theresa of St. Joseph, Mo., who died in 1928; Anna also deceased, Ben A. living at Elkhorn; Frances-Sister Philippa of St. Louis, Mo.; Henry of Burlington, Katherine and Joan at home. He attended school which was conducted by his father in a log school where the present Evergreen Cemetery now is. About 1885 he went to Cresbard, South Dakota, and later to Mellette where he purchased and conducted a large farm. Six years later his sister, Anna, went to keep house for him and a few years later Katherine, Jno. and Henry also left for Dakota, all of them returning to Wisconsin after nearly 20 years of pioneering in that state. Mr. Breidenbach was a good christian, a loyal friend and neighbor. In his convictions of the truth the funeral took place Monday at 9 A. M. from St. Theresa Church, Rev. C. J. Eschweiler officiating. Burial was in St. Theresa Evergreen Cemetery. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

Those from away who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roesch, Elm Grove; Frank Schmidt of Marshfield; Velarian Schmidt and Sister Eulalia Charleston of Waukesha; Mr. and Mrs. Anton Breidenbach of Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Breidenbach, Elkhorn; and Henry Breidenbach, Sr. of Burlington.

Their married life has been spent in Waukesha County, and the last 20 years or more in the Eagle Community. She died after an operation in the Waukesha Hospital on March 12th, at the age of 58 years, 3 months and 26 days.

Handford-Fraley Nuptials

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized Saturday, March 15th, at 2:30 P.M. when Miss Beth Handford, daughter of Thomas G. Handford, became the bride of Louie Fraley.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Francis Foulke sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." Then Mrs. Dean Swift played the Lohengrin Wedding March while the bride slowly descended the stairs attended by Mrs. Raymond Gilbert. She was met by her father who gave her in marriage. The groom was attended by Raymond Gilbert.

The bride was lovely in a floor-length white crepe gown fashioned with a short jacket and long tightly fitted sleeves. Her finger-tip length veil was caught from a wreath of orange blossoms. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white carnations and ferns. Mrs. Raymond Gilbert, her only attendant, was dressed in a floor-length dress of pale blue chiffon and lace. She carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations and ferns.

The marriage ritual for the double ring ceremony was read by Rev. Francis S. Foulke as the two couples stood beneath an arch fashioned of pink and white crepe paper. A cluster of silver bells hung from the center of the arch and large baskets of pink and white gladiolus and pussy willows stood at either end of the arch.

Following the wedding ceremony, Mrs. Francis Foulke sang "I Love You Truly."

Those who attended from other communities were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Crear from Big Bend, Wis.; Misses Ada and Avis Strike from Racine, Wis.; Herman Fraley, Peoria, Ill. and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Uglov of Heart Prairie.

Eat baked potatoes from the shell. They may be slit open at the top when they are served to you. If not you slit them yourself, put on a piece of butter with your spreader and add salt and pepper to taste. Don't scoop the contents out onto your plate, and proceed to mash and butter painstakingly.

A Bit Mixed

Cross marriages between two families produce some queer mix-ups, but the situation created by an American takes some beating.

He married the daughter of his own daughter's husband by another wife, thus making him the son-in-law of his son-in-law.

His daughter, therefore, became his stepmother-in-law and his bride her own stepmother.

His wife has just given birth to a daughter. She is her step-grandmother's sister, her own mother's step-aunt, and her father's step-sister-in-law. Phew!

Military Influence Predominant In Juvenile Clothes for Spring

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHAT'S new in children's fashions? To tell the story would require endless recital, for designers of juvenile modes have found at command so many contributing sources of ideas that they have been inspired to do and to dare this season.

Perhaps most exciting of all is the rush of patriotic themes prevalent in all the apparel for the younger generation. Emblazoned stars, eagles with wide-spread wings, flags unfurled, ships, and anchors and other nautical insignia, braiding, epaulets, sailor collars, officers' capes and brass-buttoned coats, colors red, white and blue in the true American way hold endless fascination for youngsters, especially when they adorn their very own coats and dresses and stylish cape outfits as they do this season.

What could be more attractive, we ask, in the way of new spring ensembles for school-faring sisters than the cunning two-sister cape models shown in the illustration herewith? To fully sense the charm of these clever cape outfits, one must visualize them in their own original bright colorings (matching red wool capes, hats, and skirts with navy jackets) as displayed at a preview of American-designed fashions presented in connection with a series of breakfast style clinics held in the great Merchandise Mart of Chicago. Pace-making fashion events are these clinics which thousands of merchants and buyers attend each season in search of dependable authoritative forecasts which these style shows present.

The two coats in the picture shared applause with the cape suits. Their message is buttons. Rows and rows of 'em! Bright metal ones a la militaire are favorites.

Children adore buttons, and three rows of them as used on the new aqua Shetland wool coat pictured to the right is enough to triple any little girl's joy. The pretty eyelet embroidered collar helps make this coat an important spring fashion, for white collared coats are featured for both adults and little folks.

The nautical influence can be seen in the coat pictured in the inset. Navy Shetland with a red and white trimmed sailor collar and two rows of glittering silver buttons is the formula adopted by the designer of this smart and attractive model.

The pendulum has swung back to sailor dresses. Both children and grown-ups will wear huge white lingerie sailor collars with their new spring frocks. The top color for spring is navy in coats, dresses and capes.

Amusing it is to see the way children's fashions this year copy those of their elders. An adult fashion that repeats in miniature for little daughters of the household is the print-with-plain costume. Cunning versions for tots are pleated-skirt print dresses topped with capes (navy or pastel tones) lined throughout with the print of the dress.

Influences other than the navy or the army that make for versatility in styling are South American trends that bring vivid color into play. Dude ranch fashions also delight tots. There are lariat ties, cowboy fringe trims and studded leather belts.

Smart Hats

If you are fashion-alert and have a yen for exploiting "the latest," you will choose to wear with your spring suit or ensemble a coolie hat as pictured above, for Chinese influence is noted throughout costume design this season. This baku coolie is in bachelor blue, a color slated for spring success. In this instance there is a side cluster of tiny grosgrain bows and an attractive under-chain loop.

Colors as varied as a kaleidoscope give to the other hat a definite this-season aspect, for current fashion fairly shouts color, color, color! This dashing beret is made of black, pale and deep rose, purple, green and yellow grosgrain ribbon stitched together in a pinwheel treatment.

Footwear Features Colors, Low Heels

Glamorized by style designers, low heeled shoes will lead the fashion parade this spring. Newest models have been given flippant touches to make them more attractive.

The great emphasis on color is perhaps their most outstanding feature: the more color the merrier. Sandals or step-in oxfords in a glowing tan, pale blond or smart wine red shade will enliven even the soberest black or navy blue suit.

Tan tones are slightly favored over other colors. They range from the grayed twig tans, soft cocoa and tortoise, to khaki. This last color is especially smart in combination with black patent leather, with khaki gabardine used through the center of the shoe.

Wedges are renamed "lifts" and are recommended for country and sports wear.

Soft cocoa-colored suede is used for one of the dressier shoe styles known as a Capri sandal.

Something a little different is even done to the navy blue oxford. Here the navy influence is definitely making itself felt. One oxford of navy blue calf and gabardine has three narrow folds of white calf across the toe. Similar bands of white cross the back of the heel. For the final touch, the shoelaces have flat leather ends with a small white star design in the center.

Hand-Crocheted Hats

Inexpensive to Make

Sailors, turbans, brimmed hats all done in hand crochet—here's news that is news. Ask your milliner to show you some of the new crochets. If hats are not all-crochet, then the crochet idea is interpreted through trimming, such as crochet applique, yarn pompons, and huge twists of bright wool yarn.

NEWS ITEM By STANLEY CORDELL

FROM the moment that young Kendall Bacon stepped into the cluttered editorial office of the Lansdowne Weekly Gazette, he knew he had tackled a man-sized job. The atmosphere of the place fairly reeked with listlessness.

A middle-aged man in shirt sleeves sat at a desk piled high with clippings and books and bottles of paste and pencil stubs. The man was reading galley proofs. He looked up as Kendall approached.

"I'm Kendall Bacon. Knight sent me down," Kendall spoke crisply. "Oh." The man laid down his proof sheets. He looked at Kendall as much as to say, "So you're the bird the old man sent down to stir things up?" Aloud he said, extending his hand, "Hello, Bacon. I'm Jules Allen, managing editor here. Have a chair."

Kendall didn't accept. His eyes roved about the room, finally returning to Allen's face.

"Well, we might as well get started. Sorry to be so abrupt, but you know why I'm here."

Allen looked at him ruefully. "The old man's letter said we weren't producing, said he was sending a man down to take over and build up the sheet."

"Right. I'm the man. Now, to begin with I want this office cleaned up. Right away. Everyone will work better in a clean atmosphere."

Allen was immediately resentful. "Remember this is a newspaper office, young fellow."

"Which is no excuse for it looking like a pig pen. That's story book stuff, and it's wrong!"

Allen started to speak, but Kendall moved away from him, ordered the stenographer, who had been listening, open-mouthed, to find a man and a broom at once. Then he turned back to Allen. "From now on, Allen, I'm boss. And get that hostile look off your face or you'll find yourself looking for a job." He paused, and presently sat down.

"From now on, Allen, I'm boss. And get that hostile look off your face or you'll find yourself looking for a job."

"First I want to run through your files. No, don't go into a long explanation of what's wrong. I know. Your lineage is dropping off because your advertisers aren't getting results, and your circulation is dropping off. Your circulation is dropping off because you're not getting news, and that's your fault!"

"Say!" Allen's face was red. "Listen, youngster, I've been in the news game twenty years. You can't tell me how to run a paper. You can't write news when—"

"I know, I know," Kendall interrupted briskly. "The town's dead! There isn't any news. Competition from the dailies. Sure, sure. Same old story. I hear it everywhere. Can't tell old-timers like yourself anything."

Allen was mad. No one had ever talked to him like that and got away with it. And yet, despite the youth's insolence, the managing editor somehow liked him. Something about the boy's sure-fire attitude inspired confidence. Old Man Knight rarely made a mistake in his men.

Kendall had picked up a proof sheet and was reading aloud. "Miss Agatha Drake visited in Saysbrook recently! . . . 'Caleb Rollins is having his house painted' . . . 'The Saysbrook bank robbers have not as yet been apprehended.'"

Allen snorted. "Don't say it. Sure, it's gossip. But gossip items like that are the backbone of every country newspaper. That's why folks buy 'em."

"You're right on that point, Allen," Kendall agreed. "But you've got to dig farther than gossip if you're going to put a weekly across these days. Got to get behind the gossip."

"Meaning?"

"Meaning that there's a lot more news in this town than you fellows are getting. You've got to keep your eyes open. Beat the dailies. Give your readers something to read."

"Sounds easy. You show me." "That's what I'm here for. When do your forms close for this week's issue?"

"Tomorrow noon." "Good. I'll have a live-wire story for you by then." Kendall picked up his hat. "If I can do it, you can do it. You're known hereabouts. That fair enough?"

"Seeing's believing, young fellow."

Kendall went out. At 9:30 the next morning he was back. Allen, who had been a little worried, looked up anxiously.

"Got your story?" "Sure. And I've got your bank robber."

"What bank robber?" "The guy who robbed the Saysbrook bank. I saw a news item on your galley proof yesterday."

Allen looked incredulous. "Mean to say you captured him?"

"That's right. And the story's all yours. So hop to it on that type-writer. And run off a thousand extras this week. You'll sell 'em all." Allen swallowed. Things were happening a little too fast.

"Listen," said Kendall patiently. "Yesterday when I drove into town I saw a man painting a house. The house looked as if it hadn't been painted for half a century. Then I saw your news item about it. How could a man afford to have his house painted after 50 years, if he couldn't before then? Especially in these times? Well, the bank had been robbed at Saysbrook, hadn't it? I began thinking. I looked up this Caleb Rollins guy. Sure enough, he wasn't any particular credit to the town. I talked with him. He seemed to have plenty of money, but no particular intelligence. I accused him of the robbery and he wilted. That's the whole story. The local constable promised to keep it quiet until we got the paper out."

Allen's jaw sagged. He couldn't believe it until Constable Layton hove into the office and verified the tale with shining eyes. Then he wrote the story.

Kendall went through the books. By the time the press was running he had jotted down a list of suggestions for Allen to refer to at such times as business was slack. Then he picked up his hat.

"Well, so long, Allen. I'm leaving." He glanced about the office. It had been swept clean and had an ordered look.

"Going? Going where?" Allen had risen.

"Home. No need of me here. Showed you how, didn't I?"

"Yes, but—"

"Never mind the 'buts,' Allen. Just dig in behind the gossip items and you'll find news. And when your next report comes through you'll be out of the red."

He turned and stepped into the street, started briskly away toward the railroad station. Behind him Allen stood and watched the retreating figure. He caught himself wondering just what had taken place in his office during the past 24 hours. He had a feeling that whatever it was, it was for the best. But it wasn't until after the Gazette was on the street and two thousand extra copies had been sold that he was ready to admit his twenty years of experience was something to forget rather than remember.

Man Answers Question Why He Married Susie?

Here is a man's idea of why it is so often a shock to meet the wife of a likable, intelligent, and highly successful man—the kind of man that other men both like and admire.

"A man, when he is 20 or 25, falls in love with Susie. Susie is pretty. She is even a nice, sweet girl. The man marries her, never, of course, stopping to wonder what Susie will be like at 40.

"The guy is smart, and so even though it didn't look at the time as though Susie was making much of a marriage—she was. Her husband climbs steadily by his own brains and ability.

"As he climbs he moves to higher and higher social levels. He lunches, plays golf, does business with men who are more and more successful.

"He belongs to the group by right of what he is and what he has made of his opportunities.

"Susie, naturally, is lifted right along with her husband. But she doesn't belong.

"If her husband had remained pretty far down the ladder—where he was when he married her—she would be adequate.

"But through luck, and none of her own doing, she is in a crowd that is way beyond her. It is just luck she married the man she did. If she hadn't married at all, and her advancement in life had depended on her own brains and effort, she probably would be supporting herself on a 12-dollar-a-week salary and living in one room.

"But there she is—dumb little Susie—married to a highly successful man, the head of an impressive establishment, thrown with people who are really out of her class.

"It is not Susie's fault. It isn't even her husband's fault. If he had married a girl who could keep up, it would have been mostly luck. For young men of 20 don't choose wives who will be suitable companions when they are 40.

"They want a pretty girl—and never mind the brains. And that is what they get for life.

"Hence the common remark about the successful man: 'I wonder why in the world he married HER.'"

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. PUDDING FAVORITE AS MEAL TOPPER-OFFER

DESERVING DESSERTS

Once upon a time a friendly neighbor living close to our house in a small friendly town used to say over and over, "But a dinner just isn't a dinner unless you top it off with a 'deserving dessert.'" And when I pressed him to explain to me just what he meant by a "deserving dessert" he explained that it was a dessert which was so good that even at the end of a man's meal it still deserved to be eaten.

After all, men, bless them, do like their desserts and so in this column today—I am giving to you a number of brand new, easy-to-make recipes for deserving desserts.

All but one, and that's a recipe for a deserving salad. And the reasons I am featuring this lone salad recipe with all the dessert recipes are these: First, it makes one of the best-to-eat salads I have ever tasted. And second, I have a theory that while men like desserts a good many of them simply do not eat as many salads as they should.

So, some time, serve this salad in your dinner menu; then top it off with any one of these desserts and not alone will the man of the family have had his favorite meal topper-offer, but he will have had a health giving, vitamin containing dish as well.

Tomato and Ham Salad.

(Makes 10 servings)

- 1 1/2 cups water
- 2 10 1/2-ounce cans condensed tomato soup
- 4 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
- 1 cup cold water
- 1 3-ounce package cream cheese
- 4 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 4 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 cup salad dressing
- 1 pound boiled ham (3 1/2 cups chopped)
- 3 hard-cooked eggs

Heat water and soup together in 1 1/2-quart saucepan until boiling. Remove from heat. Soak gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes, then dissolve in hot soup. Blend together cream cheese, mustard, salt, lemon juice and horseradish. Add a little soup to mixture, stirring constantly; then return to remainder of hot soup, mixing well. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken, fold in salad dressing and ham. Rub a 2-quart heat-resistant glass baking dish with oil. Arrange slices of hard-cooked egg around the sides, reserving some for the top. Pour in tomato-ham mixture. Allow to gel. Garnish top with slices of hard-cooked egg and serve with lettuce.

STRIP CROPPING CHECKS EROSION

New Practice Preserves the Soil and Water.

By W. D. LEE
(Extension Soil Conservationist, North Carolina State College.)

Increasing public interest in checking wasteful soil erosion is altering the traditional rectangular fields with straight rows so familiar in the American landscape.

A new practice known as strip-cropping, resembling a marble cake because of its swirls, has been gaining increasing favor since the creation of the soil conservation service about seven years ago.

Three types of strip-cropping have come into general use in the United States to meet various conditions. Contour strip-cropping is the production of the ordinary farm crops in long, relatively narrow strips of variable width on which dense erosion-control crops alternate with clean-tilled or erosion-permitting crops. The strips are placed crosswise of the line of slope approximately on the contour.

Field strip-cropping is the production of the regular farm crops in more or less uniform parallel strips laid out crosswise of the general slope but not parallel to the true contour. This is a modified form of contour strip-cropping and is applicable to uniform gradual slopes on soil which are resistant to erosion.

Wind strip-cropping, the third form, is the production of the regular farm crops in long, relatively narrow, straight, parallel strips placed crosswise of the direction of the prevailing wind without regard to the contour of the land. Wind strip-cropping is an effective agent in preventing wind erosion but may be of little value in conserving water.

Strip-cropping, combined with contour tillage and terracing where necessary, has been proved by experiment stations of the soil conservation service and by co-operators in the various demonstration areas to be economical and effective and the most practical means of controlling erosion and conserving soil and water on cultivated land.

Horses, Mules Decrease As Tractor Use Rises

The use of tractors reduce the need for horses and mules on farms and, through a decrease in the numbers of work stock, has a marked effect upon the agricultural produce available for sale, and also upon the financial organization of the farms. Before tractors came into general use 25,000,000 horses and mules were reported on farms in the United States. Since 1920 this number has gradually decreased until only 15,000,000 were reported in 1939.

Approximately 50,000,000 acres of crop and pasture land needed for horse feed in 1920 are now available for other purposes. The displacement of work stock on farms should not be attributed wholly to the use of tractors. The use of automobiles on farms, which increased until about 1930, and the use of trucks for hauling, were as effective as tractors in reducing horse and mule numbers.

At the present rate of work stock reproduction it seems that horse and mule numbers will be stabilized at about 12,500,000 head. However, the recent introduction of the small one-plow tractor may reduce the need for horses still further.

Corn Cobs Valueless

Ground corn cobs have practically no feeding value for poultry. Consequently it is much better to feed ground shelled corn than corn and cob meal. The cob bulk simply means so much useless filler in the ration.

Farm Notes

Whatever the outcome of the European war, the prospect is for small exports in the years ahead, according to the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics.

Higher agricultural income is the principal reason why an increasing number of tenant farmers have bought farms this year, says the Farm Credit administration.

The use of nitrogen fertilizers in the United States practically doubled in each of the 10 years between 1880 and 1910, when it reached a total of 130,000 tons. The 1937 figure was 433,000 tons.

Farm labor is likely to be scarcer and farm wages higher in 1941 than during the past year, farm economists say.

Argentina wheat production varies from year to year, but over a period of years it about equals that of farms in Kansas and North Dakota.

Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay customarily produce about 25 per cent of the world's beef and veal. The United States produces about 30

The so-called cord attached to your electric iron is not a cord; it is two bundles of wires. Do not twist it or bend it or tie it in knots.

Do you like baked bananas? Then here is a suggestion for a main-course food for breakfast, luncheon or supper: Split bananas, stuff them with small link sausages. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven.

When ironing dresses, blouses or jackets, have coat hangers in the kitchen and slip the garment on as it is ironed. This prevents any unnecessary folds or wrinkles and after airing they are ready for the closet with no further handling.

TIPS to Gardeners

NEW SWEET PEAS

A NEW, more vigorous, longer-blooming, heat-resistant sweet pea family has been introduced to the gardening world. It is the spring flowering sweet pea.

Because of their newness, spring flowering sweet peas are as yet available in only seven colors. Three All-American prize-winners were introduced last year: Rose pink, blue, and lavender. The new ones this year are white, clear pink, light lavender, and mauve.

The new sweet peas are grown just like other types now in general use. They may be planted outdoors as soon as the soil can be worked. For best results the soil should be spaded to a depth of 18 inches, and the lower 12 inches mixed with fertilizer, preferably well-rotted manure. The trench should then be filled with the soil-fertilizer mixture to within six inches of the top, and the seed planted one inch deep in this shallow trench.

After vines are well established they should be watered thoroughly once every five to seven days, and the flowers picked regularly.

Plants breathe through their leaves. It is, therefore, necessary to keep house plants free from dust.

Use shallow boxes (cigar boxes are excellent) for flats in which to plant seeds. Firm soil well and make surface level. If there are depressions in soil, water will gather in them.
