THIS WEEK IN DEFENSE

Maj. Gen. Hershey, Selective Service Deputy Director, speaking in Lafayette, Ind., said that misguided patriotism of employers was allowing many men to be drafted who are more useful in industry. Employers and registrants should not hesitate to appeal classifications, he said.

"All of us should carefully consider where we are best fitted to serve," Gen. Hershey said. "It is certainly neither desirable or necessary that each man dedicate himself to a future in the armed forces."

Poppy Day Significance

Next Saturday little red poppies will bloom on millions of coats throughout America. As the annual day for the wearing of the poppy draws near, it is well to bring to our minds the significance of this little flower. Why do we have a Poppy Day?

First, we wear the poppy once a year to express the feeling of reverence that is always in our hearts for the men who died on the poppy-studded fields of France and Belgium during the World War. The poppy is their flower. It grew on the battlefields where they fought and died; it grew over their fresh graves—the one touch of beauty and life in all that region of destruction and death known as the front. Nothing can symbolize our remembrance of the sacrifices of the World War dead in so fitting a way as the wearing of the poppy.

Variety of Laces Introduced Into Summer Fashion Picture

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

LACE, a favorite material down through the centuries, is this season soaring to new heights in the fashion domain. Lace nowadays is being used in more ways than was thought possible in yesteryears. It is entering into every phase of fashion.

This could not be so were it not for the amazing variety of laces now being manufactured—laces so versatile that they can be used as dependably and satisfactorily as any fabric.

It challenges the imagination to realize that the usefulness and adaptability of lace has been made to cover such vast scope. Today this fabric is being fashioned into every kind of apparel—bathing suits, redingotes, hats, gloves, and most significant of all, stunning tailored jacket suits. Lace used for suits looks as if it might be a choicely patterned open weave mesh, but it isn't. It's sturdy. Next time you go on a shopping tour, look at these new meticulously tailored suits. You will see them in white or colors, and in navy and black.

There seems to be no end to the enchanting fashions that are being made of lace. Citing a few of the newest lace entries, there is the long evening coat of pastel Alençon lace over a matching sheer dress, also the practical-to-wear daytime redingote of fabriclike cotton lace, and lace capelets and stoles that are newer than jackets to wear with sheer summery dresses.

To look your radiant best at daytime summer occasions wear a simple frock of lace in a delectable color. The two frocks shown in the foreground of today's photograph illustrate this idea. The fact that the skirt of each model is pleated means that lace and pleats are continuing to play a charming duet in the new summer style picture.

The model to the left is a slimming dress in a sheer lace. The bodice has a low V-neck in a flattering line. Shirring at the waistline gives it easy fullness. The skirt whittles the figure into slimmest with its stitched pleats. Imagine this lovely model in any color you like, for it is available in all the newest shades.

To the right in the picture a lace dress for the fashionwise woman is shown. It is a type that may be worn to bridge parties, afternoons at the club and so on. It is a classic for the woman who would dress becomingly and tastefully. The skirt is knife pleated. The bodice is detailed with a grosgrain cord bow tie at the neckline. The dress is made of a delicate looking lace, softly feminine and very practical.

Centered in the picture is a jacket dress in lace. The dress with a jacket can be worn on formal or less gala occasions. It is always a welcome fashion, especially if it is lace. This model, in a dainty flower-patterned lace, has a mite of a jacket entirely scalloped with a tiny collar and puffed sleeves. The cunning jacket is wearable with other gowns. It would be especially effective worn with a black net evening gown or with a flower print that repeats the jacket color.

Middy-Type Dress

For you who sew it is easy to keep in style by using good fabrics and simple patterns. Just now middie type two-piece dresses are very much in the fashion picture. It is dresses of this sort that require dependable materials. One of the perfect "finds" this season in the white goods collections is serg-a-hed. It launders beautifully, is amazingly inexpensive and is wearable. It is just such simple frocks as this that young girls want most this season.

Vegetable Jewelry

Out California way vegetable jewelry is quite the rage. CBS Star Helen Wood strikes a new style note with a necklace of corn kernels. Almost the only item that hasn't as yet made its appearance on milady's neck is a string of potatoes. These necklaces are made of various gaily colored seeds and pods, with alternate brass beads and coral chips. Best of all, they're both light on the neck and pocketbook.

Paris Fashions Turn Masculine in Style

New suits in today's Paris fashion parade are finished with masculine precision, but a saving feminine touch is introduced by organdy blouses with frilled fronts and field flower bouquets for mannish lapels. Closely fitted redingotes in patterned wools and silks, fine-striped wools and pencil-striped dark fabrics are among the collections. One house features tailored silk suits in checked surah and double-breasted models with horizontal stripes.

Loose backs in plain and printed crepes have full skirts shirred to hip yokes. Some are trimmed with linen, while others have linen boleros, with paillettes.

White pique trims frocks and coats, and sailor hats.

For young girls there are checked silk dresses to be worn with linen redingotes and bolero suits of checked wools embroidered with white soutache.

Silhouettes reflect the masculine line above the hips. Shoulders are natural and waists slim, and slim hips are emphasized.

Crisp Lace-Trimmed Blouses Worn With Cotton Dresses

From all indications the cotton evening skirt worn with a lingerie blouse is going to be a leading summer fashion. The one liked best is the full peasant type, made of a bizarre flower print topped with a wispy lace-trimmed snowy white blouse. Very attractive skirts are being made of gay plaid ginghams, also of colorful sheer, crinkled cottons. Skirts of cotton lace, with dark jersey fitted bodices, or long-torso middies of jersey seem to please the young smart set. The 'teen age also has a yen for skirts made of flowered glazed chintz.

Lower Heels

Good news! It is interesting to know that shoes are being built for comfort as well as smartness. The latest models are made of indescribably soft leather, and the heels are much lower.

Convicts Employ Skill to Create Chapel in Prison

Blacksmith Shop-Like Room Made Into Beautiful Place of Worship.

COLUMBUS, OHIO. — While the cathedrals of Europe—symbols in stone and mortar of man's reverence—are damaged or wrecked by bombs, convicts at Ohio penitentiary here continue to make their "cathedral" into a beautiful place of worship.

Seven years ago St. Catherine's "Cathedral" in the penitentiary resembled a blacksmith's shop; today it possesses ecclesiastical beauty. The story of its transformation is the story of Rev. John A. Sullivan and of Norman ("Rubber Nose") Billig and other convicts like himself.

Billig turned his skill in wood-working to making the chapel of St. Catherine an aesthetic place for worship. Other inmates, skilled craftsmen, shared in the work.

Father Sullivan was appointed prison chaplain on July 17, 1933, and his dream of a more beautiful St. Catherine's was born on that day.

Shrine Once Bare.

"Standing there," he once said, "looking at the splintered floor, the crude pews and the gray brick walls, I felt something should be done. I thought there ought to be a place where men could leave prison behind them, a fitting place for worship."

He examined the floor of the sanctuary and found it would have to be relaid. He discovered the transoms of the windows were solid. It was impossible to open them for ventilation.

There were no doors, crucifix or images of saints. Only two unused doorways at the foot of the stairs that once opened upon adjoining classrooms.

Father Sullivan discovered there were inmates like Billig who were able and eager to help with the project. He made plans and consulted local architects for suggestions.

Renovation work began in earnest in 1938. Inmates tore out the rickety balcony from the rear of the chapel. Huge bronze-hinged doors were placed at the entrance. The idle doorways at the foot of the stairs were converted into niches, occupied by the images of Saint Theresa and Saint Francis of Assisi. A large cross, tooled in the machine shop, was placed above the entrance.

Rail of Solid Walnut.

It was decided to inlay the floor of the sanctuary with black walnut, set in geometric design. Billig and another convict, since paroled, laid down this parquetry.

A communion rail, which ecclesiastical architects believe is unique, was created by Billig. Built of solid walnut, it measures 50 feet. Upon four of its posts are carved the figures of the Apostles—St. John, St. Matthew, St. Luke and St. Mark.

Billig worked 393 days to carve the figures of the Apostles and other ecclesiastical designs on the railing. The windows were rebuilt and the openings closed with panes that look like stained glass. Two other convicts, both Methodists, worked on the walls.

And so the job of rebuilding goes on.

Farmer Loses His Hand In Ghastly $5,000 Plot

ST. LOUIS.—Post office inspectors told of a ghastly plot whereby a farmer deliberately lost his left hand in order to file claims for $5,000 against accident insurance companies.

Chief Postal Inspector William H. Noah announced a warrant charging mail fraud had been issued against D. V. Mardis, Kirksville, Mo., insurance man, who was alleged to have taken part in the scheme.

Noah said Mardis intentionally battered the farmer's hand with a hammer after staging a fake automobile accident last April 18. Later, when it appeared the injury would knit, Noah said, the farmer manipulated the hand to prevent healing and make certain that amputation would be necessary.

Hand Tap Code Devised To Serve Sightless Man

ST. LOUIS.—Joseph Murphy, deaf and blind for many years, has devised a code of taps by means of which his friends communicate with him.

Taps on the back of Murphy's hand take the place of speech which he cannot hear. One, two, three and four taps represent the first four letters of the alphabet. The remaining letters are divided into four groups with a tap series for each group.

'Sea Serpent' With Head Like a Horse Is Found

VANCOUVER, B. C.—The body of a 10-foot "sea serpent" with a horse-like head and bulbous nostrils, which was found on the beach near here, defied identification.

Dr. W. A. Clemens, F. R. S. C., biology professor at the University of British Columbia and director of the dominion biological station here, said he was unable to classify the specimen.

Household Hints

Make an oilcloth cover for your ironing board. Put over cover on ironing board when brushing and sponging garments.

Painting the top and bottom cellar steps white may save many falls.

Most silk lamp shades may be successfully washed with lukewarm soapsuds. Dissolve soap flakes thoroughly before adding them to the water and use a very soft brush to apply the suds to the shade.

Don't keep honey in the refrigerator. It keeps better in the cupboard.

Cotton corduroys look best after laundering if they are not ironed, but are merely brushed along the direction of the ribs while still slightly damp.

Always use bread crumbs to cover articles to be fried. Cracker crumbs absorb the grease.

To remove chocolate stains from table linen, sprinkle the spot with borax and then pour boiling water through the cloth.

Out-of-door pillows, used for the canoe or porch swing, should have an inner covering of oilcloth and an outer one of some attractive cretonne. These will remain uninjured through a rain.

Even Court Ruling Couldn't Make Absent Plaintiff Talk

"I understand that you called on the complainant. Is that so?" demanded a browbeating barrister of a man he was cross-examining. "Yes," replied the witness. "What did he say?" "Counsel for the other side objected that evidence as to a conversation was not admissible, and half an hour's argument ensued. Then the court retired to consider the point, announcing some time later that they deemed the question a proper one. "Well, what did the plaintiff say?" repeated the cross-examining attorney. "He wasn't at home, sir!" was the answer.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
 Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
 There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nationwide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. It's your neighbor!

PLANT TISSUE 'MIRRORS' SOIL

Furnishes an Accurate Test For Essential Minerals.

By DR. GEORGE D. SCARSETH
 (Soil Chemist, Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station)

An effective checkup of the "conveyor belts" that supply farm crops with food from the soil can be made during the growing season by means of Tissue Tests. These tests will tell whether the growing plants are receiving their principal nourishment—nitrogen, phosphorus and potash—in balanced amounts.

The tissue test of plants, like the rapid chemical test of the soil, affords a quick diagnosis of plant nutrition or starvation. The proper use of either of these tests make it possible for the farmer more accurately to determine the fertilizer needs of various crops on individual fields.

The tissue test consists of splitting open stalks or leaf stems of corn or other growing crops and cutting out thin pieces of tissue. These pieces are placed in a glass vial containing a chemical agent. The reaction of the chemical to the plant tissue reveals the presence or absence of the necessary plant foods.

Usually six or eight samples representative of the type of plants growing in a field will suffice. Certain parts of a plant give more reliable indications of fertilizer needs than others. In analyzing corn, tissue from the base of the main stalk is best suited for a nitrogen test. For phosphorus, the tip of the main stalk or the main stalk just below the tassel is best, while for potash the base of the leaf at the ear node is most effective.

If the nitrogen supply of corn plants is deficient, the test for nitrates will be negative, while those for phosphates and potash may be high. The corn plants in such a case are likely to be stunted. Leaves will be greenish yellow, with yellowing tissues following the midrib from the tip end.

If the phosphate "conveyor belt" runs empty, tests are likely to show: Nitrates high, phosphates negative and potash high. Physical symptoms will be plants dark green in color with spindly growth, but with leaves otherwise normal.

When potash is insufficient, tests will show nitrates and phosphorus both high while potash is low. Plants will be weak, dark green in color with leaves showing a marginal scorch.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By Florence C. Weed

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Milk

It is a modern miracle that a man can tip his hat made of milk and yet it won't spill. Following the lead of Italy, American research workers have produced a "milk wool" which they claim is much superior to the foreign product. It is cheap, long wearing and takes color well and can probably be used for upholstering material. At present, it is going into men's hats.

In recent years, the ingenuity of government and dairy scientists has uncovered new uses for 30,000,000,000 quarts which once was wasted. It goes into casein for coating paper, making window shades and manufacturing a paste paint which is thinned with water. It is the base for insecticide sprays and a filler for cloth. Textiles, leather tanning, and color plating industries use lactic acid in their manufacturing processes.

Akin to the many food uses are the new milk-derived animal feeds for poultry and livestock. Some ingredients for popular vitamin capsules are also obtained from milk.

Milk plastics are being made into small articles such as buttons, door handles and book ends. Casein is fabricated into lamp bases, backs for pin-up lamps, and bowl diffusers for indirect lighting.

Still in the experimental stage are wines of sherry and sauterne type which can be made from milk whey. A resin made from lactose may be adaptable as lining for food containers.

There is probably more research going on in dairies and creameries than in any other industry, but in spite of the advance, there remain 24,000,000,000 quarts of skimmed milk without a commercial outlet.

Agriculture News

The farmer's share of the consumer's dollar spent for 58 different foods, averaged 42 cents in 1940, compared with 41 cents in 1939 and 40 cents in 1938.

Farmers of the United States are now passing up every year $150,000,000 of income that could be realized through better management of farm woods, says the U. S. forest service.

CAT CLUE

By JAMES FREEMAN
 (Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

INSPECTOR Will Hatch climbed the last of four flights of dirty stairs and paused. His chief aide, Detective Jed O'Brien, followed, puffing and blowing like a steam engine.

Will grinned, "That's the last, Jed. Catch your breath and let's go."

O'Brien chose not to reply. Silently, like a faithful dog, he followed his superior to a door.

Will knocked on the door, and then opened it without waiting for a reply. A man had partly risen from a table in the center of the room. A man's hat and coat were thrown across the bed. A soiled shirt hung over the back of a chair. There was an ashtray on the table, a half-filled bottle of milk, a glass and a box of crackers.

The man was in his shirt sleeves. He must have been under thirty. His features were dark and swarthy. He watched Hatch from black, close-set eyes. His attitude was that of suspicion.

"Hello," said Hatch, easily. "Your name Volkoff? Leon Volkoff?"

"Well, what if it is?" The man at the table scowled and stood up to his full height, which wasn't a great deal.

Hatch advanced across the room, studying the man. His expression was not hostile, though he was wondering how difficult Volkoff was going to be to handle. For he was sure the man was Volkoff. The description fitted in perfectly.

Behind Hatch, O'Brien leaned heavily against the door casing.

"What about it?" the man repeated darkly.

"I'm looking for a man named Volkoff," he said. "Wanted for murder."

A man was sitting on the bed. He looked up, startled.

der." Hatch paused, and when the man made no reply, he went on, "I think you're him."

"Yeah?" the man sat down. "So you're a copper, eh?" And you're lookin' for a killer named Volkoff, an' yuh think I'm him? Well, what about it?"

Hatch shrugged. "Either you prove you're not him, or I'll take you along."

"Smart guy, eh? One of them coppers what never makes mistakes. I hate coppers."

"Start proving," said Hatch, "or put on your coat."

The man's eyes left Hatch's face and moved about the room, coming to rest at length on O'Brien, standing at ease by the open door. A tom-cat had come in through the door and was stretching himself just inside the room. With a sudden display of savagery, the man picked up the ashtray and flung it at the cat, missing by inches. The cat looked at the man in sudden alarm, turned and fled from the room.

"I hate coppers," the man repeated, turning back to face Hatch, "and cats." He paused, studying Will's face with hatred in his black eyes. "I ain't tryin' to prove nothin' to a copper. I'll talk to the judge; prove who I am."

Hatch shrugged, his face expressionless. "Suit yourself, feller. Get your coat."

The man stood up and walked over to the bed. Hatch watched him. O'Brien, standing by the door, watched him, too.

Presently the man was ready. They descended the stairs. On the second landing they paused. Hatch produced a pair of handcuffs and clamped them on the man's wrist. He told O'Brien to wait. Then he began ascending the stairs again. The man shouted a protest, but O'Brien silenced him by clamping a hand over his mouth.

Hatch came back up the stairs softly. He crouched before the door a moment, listening. Then stepped inside.

A man was sitting on the bed. He looked up, startled. He was small, compared to Will. His features were dark and swarthy. His eyes were black and close-set.

Hatch said, "Come on, Volkoff. You're wanted for murder!"

O'Brien was puzzled about it. Hatch had to explain.

"Murder is serious business," the inspector said. "In the first place, the man took it too lightly. He didn't want to get away. On the contrary, he wanted us to take him in. That wasn't natural. There must have been another reason. I figured he wanted to get us out of the room. It was the cat that made me sure I was right."

"The cat?"

"Sure. Cats don't come into strange rooms and stretch and act like they lived there unless they expect a welcome. The man didn't own the cat, or it wouldn't have acted like that. The answer must be that Volkoff liked cats and owned one."

"What was the other guy doing there?"

"The other guy was a stall. Volkoff kept him there in case we came after him. When he heard us on the stairs, Volkoff hid under the bed. The other guy got us out of the room by posing as Volkoff and letting us arrest him. When Volkoff was well away, the other guy would prove who he was, and we'd have to let him go."

Hatch threw away the butt of his cigar and thought of Volkoff's white, frightened face.

"Murder," he said musingly, "is serious business."

Ultra-Violet Light Assists Fight on Potato Ring Rot

Because an ultra-violet light happened to be delivered upon a certain day, potato growers throughout the world were given a powerful weapon to fight bacterial ring rot of potatoes, a disease which has spread throughout the nation in 10 years.

The accidental discovery was made at Montana State college, Bozeman, Mont., by Dr. V. E. Iverson and Dr. H. C. Kelly. Iverson, a horticulturist, was searching for a quick and positive means of identifying ring rot in seed potatoes. His search was prompted by the rapid spread of the disease within Montana. Within two years it had spread throughout the state, causing a large percentage of rotted potatoes in the field and heavy storage losses capped by further shipping losses.

Iverson believed that a quick and positive means of identifying the disease was the key to the situation. If seed potatoes could be examined quickly, ring rot infected potatoes could be discarded and only disease free stock planted. The only means of identifying the disease was the old gram stain test. To use this test meant a laboratory, a high power microscope and plenty of time. One man could test about 200 potatoes a day, altogether too slow for a disease that spread so rapidly and it was impractical for use by seed producers.

Dr. Iverson started, with the aid of Dr. Kelly, a physicist, to explore the possibilities of X-ray identification of the disease. This failed. While the two men discussed the failure, Kelly unpacked an ultra-violet lamp his department had just ordered. Obeying an impulse, Iverson cut the end off a potato and thrust it under the light. The result was unmistakable. The ring rot area of the potato fluoresced brilliantly.

Since then the two scientists have tested this light under every condition and it detects ring rot or any tissue breakdown accurately. The light is the H-4 type ultra-violet black lamp of 100 watts. In use the operator cuts the end of the potato, holds it under the light and if it fluoresces, the potato has ring rot or some tissue breakdown. If it does not fluoresce its tissues are unaffected.

The use of this means of identification has spread to a number of states and is used by several commercial seed growers in Montana now. Instead of 200 potatoes a day, an operator can test nearer a ton a day. Anyone can use the lamp with a few minutes practice and its low cost puts it within easy reach of seed producers.

Dr. Iverson points out however that the ultra-violet light is only one part of the fight against ring rot. The disease spreads rapidly by infection so every sanitary precaution must be taken to prevent infection.

Rice for Third Population

Rice is one of the oldest known foods, is mentioned in Chinese records dating 2800 B. C. It is native to India, which grows some 60,000,000,000 pounds annually. China, largest consumer of rice, issues no data on annual production.

Rice is a member of the grass family, grows best in warm and moist regions. Usually rice fields are flooded during the growing season, but in some districts such irrigation is not required.

The cultivation of rice began in United States in the Carolinas about 1700. Today the annual U. S. yield amounts to 50,000,000 bushels. Louisiana, California, Arkansas and Texas are the chief centers of rice production in America. The wild rice of North America's swamps, while not adaptable for cultivation, provides an important food for wild ducks.

Rear-end Collisions

Grades often are the scenes of rear-end collisions at night because they tend to increase the normal differences in speed, particularly between automobiles and trucks, according to the National Automobile club. For protection against accidents of this kind, the association suggests one should be on the watch for changes in grade, keep a wide margin of safety in the distance between his car and the one ahead and have brakes and lights always in good condition. There would be many less traffic crashes, the organization claims, if drivers refused to leave anything to chance when approaching or driving through intersections.

BEAUTY HINT No. 2

Dainty Lingerie . . .

Real beauty is all inclusive—appearance, personality and that extra something that we choose to call—Glamor.
Frequent and careful laundering of clothing that is worn closest to the body is a real beauty requirement.
Do not let an unpleasant odor deprive you of that extra something so necessary to every woman who seeks to be considered glamorous.
An automatic gas water heater will assure you of an ever-ready source of economical hot water at a cost much lower than you imagine.
