Memorial Day

Fred W. Seeling

After being confined in the Memorial hospital in Waukesha for the past eight weeks Fred W. Seeling, well known resident of Troy Lakes, died last Thursday at the above hospital, aged 63 years.

Mr. Seeling was born in Schneidermuhl, Germany, Jan. 21, 1878. When he was only two years of age his parents came to the United States and located near Mukwonago. They later moved to the town of East Troy, where he grew to manhood in the Troy Lakes community.

On March 11, 1908, he was united in marriage to Louise Rankie, and they took up their home at Eagleville, but for the past 12 years have resided in the Troy Lakes district.

Mr. Seeling was a kind and most considerate man, one who was ever helpful to his neighbors and friends, and thus will be greatly missed by many. To his bereaved wife we extend our most sincere sympathy. Two nieces also survive him: Mrs. Matt. Deneen and Mrs. Chris. Wollenhant, Muskego.

Funeral services were held at the Powers Funeral Home in Mukwonago last Sunday at 2 p. m., the Rev. H. Maaske of Mukwonago officiating and burial took place at Oak Knoll cemetery at Mukwonago.

Problem Solved

By MEREDITH SCHOLL

(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

BEGINNING with the day that Donald Winslow had blackened the eye of the town bully for trying to kiss Sylvia Quentin, Donald had been Sylvia's hero. At that time the pair had been aged 12 and 8 respectively. Now they were 26 and 22, and the situation hadn't changed a great deal. Sylvia still looked upon Donald as a protector and an adviser. A role which Donald filled willingly and capably. Today as Sylvia looked out across the lawn of her father's estate, across the highway and along the drive that led to the home of Donald's father and the abiding place of Donald himself, her expression was one of forlorn distress. At the moment she needed Donald's help and counsel more than ever. Yet she was reluctant to seek him out.

It was possible, she thought, that Donald might not take too kindly to this most important of all requests. That would hurt. And to be hurt right now, especially by Donald, would be torture.

Sylvia took the time to reflect back to the day when Donald had blackened the eye of the town bully in her defense. From this point forward her thoughts followed her own and Donald's career to the conclusion of grammar school, through high school, through college, and the years that followed after graduation. And not once could she remember a time when Donald had failed to come to her aid. He had been noble, kind, thoughtful, always considerate and concerned with her problems as much as though they had been his own.

No, she decided, he would not fail her now. No matter what the nature of her troubles might be.

And so, Sylvia arranged her hair, powdered her nose, caught up a

Donald nodded, as if the logic of her words had suddenly occurred to him also. He drew away his hand and stared moodily out over the lake. "Donald, can't you think of some way?"

Donald didn't return her look. "Sylvia, I don't want you to get married!"

"Don't want me to! Donald, what ever are you saying? Why don't you want me to?"

He didn't reply at once, and Sylvia went on, "I know what you're thinking. You're thinking he's a cad for making me miserable. But he isn't, Donald. He's wonderful and grand and handsome. And, oh, he could make me so happy. I've waited and waited for him to propose. And—and now, Donald, I've come to you for help. You simply must think of something!"

Donald turned at last and met her gaze squarely. "It isn't that that I was thinking, Sylvia. I wasn't thinking about him, or how miserable he's made you, or how to solve your problem."

Sylvia looked at him aghast. "You weren't! Then you won't help me; don't want to help me?"

"I was thinking," Donald went on, "that it isn't fair. It isn't fair at all—to have you want to marry."

"Fair? I don't believe I understand, Donald. What isn't fair?"

"It isn't fair," said Donald, drawing close to her, "it isn't fair to have you love someone else when—" He suddenly reached out, and his arms encircled her in a fierce grip. His lips crushed against hers. She yielded. He held her thus for it seemed, an eternity. He kissed her again and again.

At last he released her, looking fiercely into her eyes. "It isn't fair he continued huskily, "for you want to marry someone else when I love you madly, when I've always loved you, when I've dreamed endlessly of the day when I can claim you all for my own. That's what isn't fair!"

Breathless, flushed, her eyes shining with a strange, unaccountable light, Sylvia clung to him tenderly.

"Donald! Donald! Dear, darling Donald! It is fair! It is! Don't you see? Can't you understand what I was trying to say? Trying to make you do?"

And when he stared at her in speechless incredulity, she went on happily. "Donald, darling, precious, you're the man! You are the man I'm in love with, who won't ask me to marry him, who is making me miserable!"

And then the white frock became more grease besmeared than ever.

Africans Use Tom Toms

For Music, Messages

In the wilds of Africa, the swaying trees, moaning winds and rumbling thunder give sounds to which the natives listen. Song birds sing or twitter, and wild beasts screech, howl or roar. The more-or-less savage people of African jungles add to the sounds. They make music which has rhythm even when it does not sound very pleasant to the ears of a white traveler. The tom-toms of Africa are famed for their savage beat. A tom-tom is a drum, and was so named in imitation of the sound it gives forth.

Some African drums are made entirely of hollowed wood, and their boom may be heard for great distances.

African natives often use a signal system based on the beating of drums. Messages are sent far and wide in this way. Word of the coming of soldiers is obtained in one camp and then sent to another with the help of beating drums.

Certain tribes have learned to make drums by, stretching skins over wooden boxes, or over metal pots. There are "drum orchestras" with big and little drums; when one of these gets into operation, the natives have a wild time, dancing to the beat and singing as well.

One strange musical instrument of Africa is a kind of xylophone. It is composed of hollow tubes in a row. The tubes differ in length, and for that reason make different notes when they are struck. This instrument has been nicknamed "the African piano."

Robert Burns

Scotchmen in all parts of the world assemble on January 25 to observe the anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, when they celebrate the glories of their country as well as the fame of its greatest poet. Burns was born near Ayr in 1759. He worked as a plowboy on his father's farm and read the Spectator and Pope's translation of the Iliad and learned a little French and Latin. When his father died he and his brother took a farm, where he wrote poetry and failed to earn a living. He planned to go to Jamaica, but the publication of his first volume of verse in 1786 won so much praise that he decided to remain in Scotland. The second edition of the book netted him about $2,000. In 1789 he accepted appointment as an excise officer. He died in 1796, worn out with excessive drinking. His fame has grown with the years and he is regarded as one of the greatest lyric poets of his race.

TOLEDO, OHIO.—Daniel Bielawski, 27, died suddenly in St. Vincent's hospital while he was giving a blood transfusion to his father, Frank Bielawski, 50, following an emergency operation.

Coroner Frank G. Krefl said that emotion may have caused a sudden dilation of large arteries, causing his death.

Sacrifice Limbs For Few Dollars

Insurance Companies Hit Hard by Claim Racket.

ST. LOUIS.—What price an arm? Or a leg? Or weeks of pain? Postal inspectors who break up fake accident rings by bringing the operators to trial for using the mail to defraud insurance companies, hundreds of thousands of dollars annually say the deliberate sacrifice of a limb almost never pays the ring members more than $1,000.

According to William L. Noah, chief inspector in charge of the St. Louis office, by far the greater number of faked accidents results in small claims of a few hundred dollars being paid.

He recalled the notorious "serum case." In 1925, a widespread ring of fake accident victims was uncovered in northern Arkansas and southern Missouri. The ringleaders had discovered that heavy injections of turpentine with a hypodermic needle would result in swift and lasting breakdown of the surrounding tissues.

The resultant blotch on the flesh had all the appearance and characteristics of a deep-seated bruise. Infection and sloughing often followed. For years the ring succeeded in collecting small claim after claim.

Inspector A. F. Burt said that fake accident victims who are able successfully to simulate paralysis following supposed injuries were nonexistent. Reflex action and response to the stimuli of pin pricks or electrical shocks are impossible to fake, he pointed out.

However, Burt said, many persons have been able to collect liability or accident insurance claims by simulating injuries to the back and muscles.

Aged Trio Spurns Relief And Dies of Starvation

LINDSAY, ONT.—Choosing death in preference to charity, a 75-year-old woman and her two brothers died of starvation here.

Charlotte Shouldice and her brothers, Isaac, 70, and Thomas, 68, lived a secluded life on their 50-acre farm in Mariposa township. The farm, ordinarily, provided for their needs, but last year, failing health prevented them from working it.

Recently a neighbor, visiting the lonely farmhouse, found all three occupants in a state of exhaustion from hunger. He notified the township relief officer, who walked more than a mile through deep snowdrifts, to bring the trio an offer of food. They rejected it, insisting "We don't want charity."

The relief officer called health authorities, who ordered all three removed to a hospital here. The sister and her younger brother died within an hour of each other and were given a double funeral. Five hours after their burial the other brother had joined them in death.

A Triple War Tragedy

PLYMOUTH, ENGLAND.—Mrs. Gladys Faulkner learned last Sunday that her son was missing at sea.

While she was standing amid the wreckage a boy handed her a telegram. It said her husband had been killed at sea "by enemy action."

Holes in Pants May Keep Policemen in Their Cars

DENVER.—To avoid embarrassment Colorado highway patrolmen soon may have to "call politely out the window to traffic violators," Supervisor Joseph Marsh said.

Continual getting in and out of their automobiles has worn thin the seats of their pants. The $8,000 needed for repairs or new ones isn't available.

Drives Taxicab 25 Years

With Only One Accident

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA.—Frank Smrcheck, veteran taxi driver here, has rounded out his twenty-fifth year of driving with a record of one accident in 500,000 miles.

Smrcheck said the accident was not his fault. It occurred four years ago when another car skidded into his taxi on an icy street.

Diner Turned the Tables On Conniving Couple

Upon receiving his bill, the diner added it up and found that he had been overcharged $1.

"How come?" he asked, looking sharply at the waitress.

"Well, you see, sir," she replied, "the cashier bet me half a dollar that you wouldn't see it and I bet him you would. Just a friendly little wager."

With a smile the customer wrote something on the back of the bill, folded it, and said: "Take that to the cashier."

She did so, and on opening it the two were startled to read: "I'll bet $5 I shall not be here when you get back."

Smartly-Styled Knitted Clothes Ideal for Town, Country Wear

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

KNITTED fashions may "steal the show" this season, according to reports from style headquarters. The enthusiastic demand for knitted things has gone beyond what even the most optimistic dealers anticipated. Not for many seasons has there been such a tremendous vogue for handknits and for machine knits that look like handknits.

The wonders that are being performed in simulating, through knitted technique, tweeds and patterned wools seem almost unbelievable until one sees the 1941 knitted apparel.

In modern displays one comes across such stunning machine-knit models as are pictured in the accompanying illustration. The town suit shown to the left is a tailor knit of navy wool combined with a nubby white yarn. The horizontal stripes are cleverly worked through the long-torso fitted jacket. The navy skirt of nubby wool knit is simple in line—a wonderful light machine-knit fabric that gives body for good tailoring. White gloves and shirt and bright red straw hat make it crisp looking for town.

The casual dress to the right, a clever simulated handknit in crayon beige, is one of the reasons for the new enthusiasm for knitted clothes. Fashioned on simple line, its yoke, sleeves and skirt introduce interesting texture in ribbed effect. The bodice is closely knit and it is trimmed with metal buttons and belt.

Hound's tooth check in sage green and white and tricot cord, both machine knitted of lightweight wool, make a wonderful casual suit for the country, as shown centered in the group. The softly tailored one-button jacket with deep revers has narrow yellow zephyr knit piping as its only trimming. This is a woolknit that won't sag or stretch, the perfect costume for casual country wear.

There is fine opportunity in the knitted realm to mix and match skirts and jackets. While most of the newer knit skirts have the pleated look there are also skirts with stylish gored flares. In jacket styles one finds endless variety. Wrist-length tailored jackets, often with small notched collars, novelty gold buttons and four patch pockets, are leaders.

One very stylish jacket is the shorter-than-wrist-length type, with slight easy blousing above a belted waistline. Stripes are often favored in jackets worn with plain skirts.

In dresses a popular choice is wool chenille that looks as if it is handknitted. Also a favorite is a collarless line plaid wool knit model with round neck, and buttons down to the waist.

Jacket sweaters are very important. They are interesting because of their novelty and variety. The cable stitch cardigan, which comes well down over the hips is a favorite type.

Novel trims in endless variety add zest to the jacket mode. One of the interesting decorative touches is narrow fringe made of the yarn of which the jacket is knitted. Enthusiasm for things knitted is reflected in a revived vogue for swim suits that are fashioned most intriguingly, a favorite model being striped and styled along princess lines. Red and white is the most popular color combination.

Underbrim Flowers

Here's how flowers are being worn on the underbrims of the new large summer hats. Those pictured are bright yellow. Milliners everywhere will tell you that there's nothing smarter than a touch of yellow on your chapeau. The biggest flower news of all is that it is very smart to pin natural flowers on your hat. Lots of girls have put roses and even orchids, real ones, on their hats. The hat above is black felt, tied on with a black tulle bow.

Fresh mimosa sprays are on the underbrim. The suit worn is black faille silk, with a snugly fitted jacket, over a Val lace and white batiste blouse.

Nylon Dresses

Nylon dresses are making their debut in the better-dress sections of leading stores. Daytime styles include afternoon types in navy with cape shoulders and finely pleated skirts. A model in black has an all-over shirred jacket.

Evening styles, including dinner and more formal gowns, have crisp full skirts.

Tissue-Like Crinkle Sheers To Predominate in Summer

The major trend is "sheers for summer." There is a sheer character about most of the new summer fabrics. Perhaps this trend is most notable in the new tissue-like crinkle sheers. These come in dark as well as light flowery prints and therefore are practical, being washable and ever so good looking.

Cloque organdies in delicately flowered prints, marquissettes, tissue voiles, processed so as to be non-wrinkable, are all on the first-in-fashion fabric list.

The topic-making conversation throughout style centers at the present moment is black sheers for summer. Best-dressed women are voicing widespread favor for costumes done in black sheer. Perhaps this is a natural reaction to the wild color extravaganza that has taken the world of fashion by storm. But whatever the reason, the fact remains that thin dresses and suits for summer are being given an earlier-than-usual promotion. Black sheers are referred to as "siren black," "black magic."

Hats of black shirred net, some huge of brim, will be worn this summer. Milliners are also turning out handsome large hats made of exquisite black lace. The vogue for black sheer is even extending to hosiery.

Roses, Strawberries Vie For Popularity in Prints

Roses and strawberries are contestants in the summer fashion picture. When you go "print" shopping, keep your thoughts centered on roses and strawberries. It is an open question as to which is leading in the print mode.

The rose theme appears in every conceivable form from tiny sweetheart roses to huge American Beauties.

The same may be said of strawberries. The very newest prints play up the strawberry in realistic colors.

FARM TOPICS

CROP ROTATION GOOD ECONOMY

Increasing Yields Repay the Extra Cost, Labor.

By GUY W. MILLER
(Specialist in Rural Economics, Ohio State University)

Farmers who follow crop rotations which maintain or improve the fertility of their soil consistently obtain higher incomes than farmers who follow cropping practices which reduce their soil productivity.

Some farm operators may find it more difficult than others to change their cropping plans to a system that improves soil instead of depleting it, but in the long run, the change will pay. Immediate need of money to pay debts usually is given as the reason for following old crop rotations, but taking the money out of the soil is bad economy in the end.

Farms which have been badly depleted respond slowly to soil improvement practices and it may be possible that the adoption of these practices will reduce farm income temporarily. However, the farmer who expects his land to support himself and family must make up his mind sometime to protect the soil, and the decision should be made early enough to avoid long and costly soil improvement practices.

No rural economist advises farmers to go heavily into debt to buy soil improving materials for a whole farm at once. Applications of lime or of fertilizer can be made on a few acres at a time, and the increased yields from the first acres treated will help pay for materials used in later years on other acres.

In some cases, better use of farm manure or the adoption of cultural practices which stop soil erosion will improve the farm without the expenditure of any money. It also is possible in many cases to feed more of the crops to livestock on the farm and thereby obtain more materials for soil improvement.

Returned to his home in Montreal after 11 years' missionary work in the Arctic, Father Stephen Bazin says he had great difficulty in explaining the war to the Eskimos. They could not imagine anyone angry enough to fight. He told them the war started because one people tried to steal another's property.

"The Eskimos who, I believe, are the most peace-loving, happiest people in the world, know now that a war is going on, though they still think it is strange," he says. "By nature they are calm and patient. Anger is a grave crime with them. They spend hours laughing and talking, and have really no worries. There is no such thing as a sad Eskimo."

Contrary to popular opinion, the appearance of a farm may not be a good indication of its value. It's true that the condition of farms and buildings in a community may be taken as an indication of the productivity of that area, says H. C. M. Case, head of the economics department of the University of Illinois college of agriculture. But, he explains, a particular farm may show the effects of conditions under which it has been owned and operated.

For example, previous management may add to or detract from the farm's real value. A good soil may show to a disadvantage if poorly farmed. In fact, the difference in the way adjoining farms have been operated over the past 25 or 50 years may greatly affect their present value. Also, a particular type of soil may respond better to one kind of season than another. Fresh paint on buildings may cause one to overlook poor foundations or frames.

Case says it should be considered whether a farm to be purchased is of proper size and adapted to the type of production the farmer wants to follow. He needs to consider whether the farm is located in a good community which will provide the proper opportunity for his family in educational, religious and social aspects. Soil types, control of obnoxious weeds, available water supplies, and the condition of buildings also require consideration.

Appearance Is Deceiving When Evaluating Farms

Returned to his home in Montreal after 11 years' missionary work in the Arctic, Father Stephen Bazin says he had great difficulty in explaining the war to the Eskimos. They could not imagine anyone angry enough to fight. He told them the war started because one people tried to steal another's property.

"The Eskimos who, I believe, are the most peace-loving, happiest people in the world, know now that a war is going on, though they still think it is strange," he says. "By nature they are calm and patient. Anger is a grave crime with them. They spend hours laughing and talking, and have really no worries. There is no such thing as a sad Eskimo."

Grasshopper Threat Smaller This Year

Grasshoppers are less threatening to crops this year than in 1938, 1939, and 1940, Dr. Lee A. Strong, chief of the U. S. bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, predicts. A grasshopper egg survey, on which federal entomologists forecast infestations of these pests, indicates that in 1941 the 'hoppers will be fewer in numbers and less widespread in area. However, large numbers of grasshoppers are expected in North and South Dakota and western Minnesota.

The grasshoppers will appear also throughout western Kansas and immediately adjoining areas of other states, but not in such large numbers as in the northern part of the Great Plains, Doctor Strong says. Large numbers are expected in parts of California and Nevada, though in limited widely scattered areas.

Horse's Teeth Need Care

At least once during each year a competent veterinarian should examine the teeth of all horses, according to the department of agriculture. Generally all that will be required will be the floating or filing off of the long, sharp corners which are due to uneven wearing. This roughness first causes sore tongues or cheeks, followed by a lack of proper mastication together with digestive troubles. Older horses particularly, need proper attention.

Where Anger Is a Crime

A. A. Anderson, Enterprise Employee, Killed Saturday

August A. Anderson, 35, deaf inter-type operator for the Palmyra Enterprise for the past two years, was fatally injured when he was struck by a car driven by Edward Ross, 35, of Delavan, as he was walking across the intersection of Walworth Avenue and Beloit Street in Delavan where highways 11 from Janesville and 15 from Beloit meet, about 6 o'clock Saturday evening, May 24. According to witnesses, the body was tossed about 80 feet, the right leg was completely severed below the knee and the face and body badly cut and bruised. He also suffered internal injuries. He died, without regaining consciousness, enroute to the Elkhorn hospital in the arms of John Moore, a teacher at the State School for the Deaf. Moore identified the body. Because of the severe lacerations, identification at first was hard, although Marvin Rood, printing instructor at the Deaf School, recognized the shoes and clothes. A card with Anderson's name on was found in a pocket.

Anderson left work Friday morning to go to Delavan because of a severe headache. His wife, Mary Sali Anderson, a waitress at the school, said he felt much better Saturday morning. They had driven to Lake Geneva and he seemed to be in exceptionally fine spirits.

He had just visited his wife in the school and was crossing the street, presumably to visit another deaf person who lived near there when he was struck. The corner is particularly dangerous but is well marked. Both highways have warning signs and a red flasher light is in operation at all times. The Stop sign is clearly visible.

In a talk we had with an eye-witness of the accident, John Redenius, who operates a Texaco Service Station at the intersection, we were informed that the car was travelling, in his opinion, pretty close to 70 miles an hour when it passed the School for the Deaf.

The driver, it appeared, failed to see Anderson until he was within a few feet of him, testimony at the inquest Monday before Coroner Carroll Rice at Delavan indicated. A jury consisting of L. E. Stermwalz, Roland Mitchell, Bradford Little, Fritz Sorenson, Fred Moser and F. J. Udey, all of Delavan, heard the testimony of witnesses as they were questioned by Dist. Atty. Buckley.

Skids 89½ Feet William Butler, Urbana, Ill., medical student hitch-hiking to Madison, John H. Redenius, filling station operator, and Carl Ramsey, Delavan, eye-witnesses to the accident, were among those questioned. A picture taken by Butler a moment after the accident, and a sketch prepared by Deputy P. Pramer, which showed that the car skidded 89½ feet after the impact, were introduced in evidence.

Dr. C. Y. Wiswell, Williams Bay, who was at the hospital when the body was brought in, and Dr. Howard J. Kenney, Delavan, were heard. Dr. Kenney entered results of alcoholic tests made on Ross. The tests, made by Dr. Edward Fahringer of the Milwaukee police department, indicated alcohol sufficient to affect "sound judgment and precaution." Dr. Kenney testified.

Alice, Verna, Ruth and Eleanor Storck, passengers with Ross in the car at the time of the accident, testified to being in Janesville with him during Saturday afternoon, and Verna said that she had asked him to drive slower three times before the accident. He was travelling between "50 and 70 miles" per hour most of the time, she said, and was going "about 55" when Anderson was hit. Mrs. Will Storck, mother of the girls, was also a passenger in the car. Ross, Verna, and Alice had been at the Franklin Gardens in Janesville during the afternoon while others were shopping, and the girls testified that Ross had not more than two or three glasses of beer.

Harry F. Jones, owner of the Franklin Gardens, denies the party was there as his place was closed all Saturday afternoon. The jury returned a verdict merely to the effect that Anderson came to his death as the result of being struck by a car driven by Ross.

Charged With Manslaughter

A warrant charging Ross with fourth degree manslaughter was obtained late Monday by District Atty Robert Buckley. Ross has posted a $500 bond and will appear for preliminary examination before Justice Herbert Weiland, Delavan, June 4.

Conviction on a fourth degree manslaughter charge carries a penalty of one to two years at Waupun or up to a year in the county jail and a $1,000 fine. And, if we can add our comment, the maximum sentence is still none too severe.

Ross had no liability insurance. He is alleged to owe $500 on his car. August Anderson was a graduate of the Missouri School for the Deaf, and was formerly employed as a boy's supervisor and athletic coach at the Fulton, Mo., school. He was vice president of the Delavan chapter of the National Fraternal Society of the Deaf.

He was born in St. Louis in 1906 and was married in June, 1939. The couple had recently purchased new furniture for the Kowalski apartment which they had rented. They were to take possession the first of June. Mrs. Anderson had been working in Delavan but intended to make Palmyra her permanent home. She plans to continue working at the Delavan school.

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon at 4:30 from the Lackey, Little and O'Brien funeral home and burial was in Spring Grove cemetery, Delavan. The Reverend C. A. Townsend, an Episcopal clergyman officiated with interpretation by Miss Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Williams of Delavan. The pallbearers were Wayne Hogle, Russell Devitt, Kenneth Elwood, Elmer Stites of St. Louis, Marvin Wood of Delavan, and Warren Anderson of St. Louis.

Fred Parsons

Frederick Parsons, aged 63 years, died at his home here Wednesday, May 21, 1941 after a long illness. He was the son of Philip and Mary Parsons and was born March 27, 1878 at North Petherin, Cornwall, England, coming to America 40 years ago with his brother, John. He worked in Eagle township for eight years, then returned to England for a visit and married Miss Annie Bird Feb. 27, 1909.

They came to America after their marriage, settling on a farm at Zion, near Palmyra, where they lived for eight years, then moving to the Thomas Lean farm, La Grange, which they operated for 24 years. Because of his illness, Mr. and Mrs. Parsons moved to Palmyra Last December. A daughter died in infancy.

Survivors are his wife; four brothers, John, La Grange, Frank, Pleasant Valley, Dan, Eagle, and Walter Parsons, in England; one sister, Mary, in England; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at 2:00 P. M. Saturday in the Smith funeral home, the Reverend Arthur Edwards officiating, assisted by the Reverend Adelaide Raby.

Pallbearers were Walter Parsons, Wm. Bird, Phillip Parsons Fred Parsons, John Brereton and George Brereton. Music was rendered by Mrs. Oliver Juntwaite, accompanied by Mrs. Ashley Rhodea. Those who assisted with the flowers were Mrs. Wm. Bird, Mrs. Frank Smale, Mrs. Tom Brereton and Mrs. Leo Erickson. Interment was in the Zion Cemetery.
