Love and Sympathy

Almost everyone can love, but it is not everyone who can sympathize. Sympathy—that divinely tender element—is born of suffering, and is only truly possessed by those who have been educated in the school of trouble and experience. The premium at this school is high, but the lessons taught and learnt there are lasting and eternal.—Jean Maclean.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

LYNN SAYS:

When planning your luncheon dessert parties, be sure to use this season's rich color schemes on your tables and favors and placecards. White with silver, gold, blue, red are tops right now. If you like three color combinations, there's green, white and gold, blue, white and gold, or white, red and green.

For an elaborate color scheme use the rich tones of violet, emerald, gold, blue and red. This is especially good in a centerpiece.

Bridge placecards may be made out of paper chrysanthemums in your favorite color with the card tilting out of the flower. The white cards may also be decorated with painted flowers, or candy-shaped flowers pasted in the corner. Evergreen, holly, mistletoe, bright berries, pine cones, used alone or with a silver ornament such as a bell on the place card are sure to bring delighted murmurs from your bridge guests.

SPEED REPAIRS OF MACHINERY

Quick Action Will Protect Farmer Against Shortages.

By C. B. RICHEY
(Agricultural Engineer, Ohio State University.)

Farmers who immediately take measures to protect themselves against any possible shortages in machinery or repair parts will save themselves and their neighbors money and trouble.

The first step in this preparedness campaign is the inspection of all machinery and equipment to find broken or worn parts that are likely to fail the next time the machine is used. Some farm machinery will have to be partially dismantled before the amount of wear and tear on parts can be determined.

If repair parts are needed, labor can be saved by leaving the machine torn down until the parts are obtained. However, bolts, washers, keys, and other small parts of the machine should be placed in a container so they can not be lost during the period of waiting.

The second step in getting the machines ready for 1942 is to order needed parts immediately. This should be done whether or not the dealer says they are available. Back logs of orders for parts in the manufacturers' files are powerful arguments in getting supplies of materials for filling the orders.

While the machines are being inspected, all loose nuts and other minor lacks of adjustment should be corrected. Excessive vibration of machinery in operation decreases its efficiency and increases chances of breakage. Lock washers help keep nuts from working loose.

Good Farm Pasture Will Aid Uncle Sam

Good farm pastures will become as vital as munitions factories in Uncle Sam's war program as the demand for more meat and dairy products increases in months to come.

"The farmer's surest recipe for meeting this demand for food for our armed forces and our allies, lies in undertaking an intelligent program of pasture improvement that will insure him a good stand of legumes and grasses," says a statement of the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. "To accomplish this it is important, first of all, that the soil's productivity be built up by the use of fertilizer containing phosphorus and potash.

"Whether the crop is good or poor will be determined by the presence or absence of plant food. Thus it is important to have the soil tested to determine whether it is adequately supplied with the necessary elements.

"Agronomists at state colleges or county agents are prepared to cooperate in making these tests and likewise in providing recommendations covering the use of fertilizers on pasture crops in a rotation."

Soil Erosion Called A 'Fifth Columnist'

No "fifth columnist" ever worked more quietly than does soil erosion on a farm, but one difference is that evidences of soil erosion are easily seen. Every muddy stream that comes down the hill after a rain is a warning that somewhere on higher ground the soil has been loosened and is being carried away.

So says Prof. Paul Hoff of the department of agricultural engineering at Cornell university. As to the objection of some farm operators who know they have an erosion problem but can't find time or labor to correct it, he says:

"Soil erosion cannot be solved overnight; nor does it require a lot of work during the busy cropping season. A soil conservation program on any farm usually covers several years.

"On most central New York farms, for example, such a program consists of rearranging the fields into long narrow strips that are level from end to end. Sometimes one or more diversion terraces are needed to protect the strip-cropped slopes from unusually heavy rains or rapid spring thaws. The level rows of cultivated crops and strips of sod help to hold the soil and water."

During the past few years, about 2,000 farmers in New York state have installed strip-cropping systems on their farms.

Guarding Machinery

Because of the national war emergency program is expected to make it increasingly difficult to obtain new machinery and repair parts, it is suggested that farmers keep their implements in good shape.

Farmers can prolong the life of their machinery by observing the following rules: 1—Store implements in a dry place, 2—Overhaul machinery periodically, 3—Keep equipment in good adjustment, 4—Protect wood surfaces with paint.

High Time for Pert Miss To Catch Up on Reading

"Professor," she piped up, "have you read so-and-so's new novel?"
He confessed he hadn't.
"Oh," she said, "you'd better hurry—it's been out over three months."
"Young lady," he said, "have you read Dante's 'Divine Comedy'?"

Learn to Sew if Your Budget Is Limited—It's Fun, Too!

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

basque top of black cotton lace with a shirred wide-spreading rayon moire skirt which repeats the black lace in a hip border inset after the manner of the gown which the figure seated in the foreground is wearing.

THIS year the fashion picture is literally packed with drama. What with a whirl of midwinter festivities and gala occasions in full swing one is almost sure to yearn for more than the usual amount of clothes glamour. The good news is that, by making sewing your hobby, you can easily manage to have an enchanting array without suffering a single budget twinge.

Simply pick the pattern that measures up to your idea of a dream dress, get your material in hand and then dash off to your nearest local sewing center where expert help is cheerfully given in sewing short cuts and fashion tricks, at little or no expense.

Fabric counters are literally bubbling over with an endless display of smart, inexpensive rayon jerseys, tweedy weaves that tailor beautifully, gorgeous taffetas and moires that look twice as expensive as they really are; velveteens in alluring pastel and brilliant jewel-toned colors; handsome laces of every type from sheer to the new linen effects, which, for the most part, can be had for under a dollar a yard. This year a merry war is going on between traditional black-and-white and lush, ravishing colors like fuchsia, turquoise, black plum, alarm red, topaz, gold and beige, Kelly green and seafoam tones and tints.

For the twilight hour and its flattering candlelight, there's romantic elegance needed, and you will be equal to the occasion if you make a dinner dress which combines a long-sleeved, front-buttoned, long-torso

And again your evening splendor will be definitely established in a mist-blue jersey dress that molds and tapers to your form in draped and flowing lines like those of the gown shown to the right in the trio of evening modes pictured above. Drapery treatments are very important and are outstanding this season. They are ever so easy to manipulate, even for the inexperienced, with the aid of a new molded-to-you thermo-plastic dress form. With an exact reproduction of your figure before you, it requires no special gift to drape the folds of a material in a way that will most effectively dramatize your silhouette.

Gay and inexpensive materials make the luxurious looking dinner dress centered in the group above. There is style distinction reflected in the chrome yellow velveteen jacket that hangs with easy grace from broad-looking shoulders encrusted with importantly new embroidered motifs that are repeated on the pockets. This jacket would be lovely with a candle-slim forest green crepe floor-length skirt. Believe it or not, the embroidered motifs that so definitely enhance this jacket were stitched up in practically no time on a modern sewing machine, and the finished job looks for all the world like fine handwork.

The fashion suggestions above are destined to turn your "date" into a successful drama, and they will inspire repeat performances in the future.

White Fur

In keeping with the vogue for "winter white," this season, comes the prediction from furriers that snow white lamb will prove one of the most popular furs of the season. The young set is "rushing" the idea. It's a treat to the eye to see young girls wearing coats like the one pictured. These coats are strikingly new, and they top the now-so-modish white jersey "date" dresses to perfection.

Rain Now Calls for Gay Fashion Parade

Away with somber attire on a rainy day! No longer are leaden-cast skies, downpours of rain and muddy streets a sign that one must match the somberness of the scene with clothes equally depressing. According to the new theory, a rainy day is just the time to come out in bright array. In fact, rainy days are turning into cheerful events.

There are gay new capes, fitted coats and trench model coats, some in white, some in blue and, most exciting of all, those in bright red rainproof transparencies or processed cloth, if you prefer. You can get red or white boots to match.

There's style and charm, too, in the new processed black satin raincoats that are fashioned with smart details and given a glamour touch in that the newest out are fashioned with jeweled buttons.

Magazine Tells What the College Girl Is Wearing

According to a new women's magazine:

College co-eds are braiding their hair in "country cousin" style.

Earrings are being worn with the braids.

Sixty inch pearls worn on "Sloppy Joe" cardigans are "tops" everywhere.

Cowboy boots, plaid sweaters, lime yellow shirts, corduroy jackets, the "V" neck sweater and knee length argyle plaid socks also storm the American campus scene.

For the Young

Take yards and yards of bright red net. Fashion this into a full skirt. Top this with a snug-fitting bodice made of jersey in matching red. Outline the décolletage, sleeve edges and finish off the waistline with a single-row beading of sparkling red sequins.

CURRENT FICTION

Something He'd Read

By JAMES FREEMAN

(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

"WHAT a break!" Police Officer Spence Tuttle groaned as the short-wave radio in the patrol car began to bark their number. Officer Ken Johnson, Tuttle's companion, smiled sickishly. In just five minutes the pair would have been relieved of duty for the night.

Tuttle glanced into his code book, holding it beneath the instrument board light. "Code 76." He repeated the number that had come from the short-wave set. "Murder," he read. "Man shot and killer has escaped."

Tuttle closed the book and grinned. "Well, that ain't so bad. Murders was always my meat and drink."

Johnson, who was driving, spun the wheel sharply. They slued off the main thoroughfare and tore madly along a dimly lighted side street. Five minutes later the car drew up in front of a pretentious-looking apartment, before which a small crowd had gathered. The policemen pushed their way to the front door, ordered the liveried footman who was standing there to allow no one to enter and went inside. A greatly excited superintendent met them in the hallway.

"This way, gentlemen. I thought you'd never come."

He stepped into an elevator, and the officers followed. At the tenth floor they alighted and the superintendent pointed to the door directly opposite. "It happened in there, gentlemen. Harris, Mr. Wainwright's butler, will let you in. It was Harris who spread the alarm."

Tuttle rapped loudly on the door and stepped inside the moment it was opened. Johnson followed. The man who confronted them was

"It's true his brokers have run him ragged by continually calling up for more margin? And it's true that Wainwright was just about out of funds?"

"I don't know. I know he received a good many calls."

"And you know also his brokers called him this morning. You know he had to have money, and he asked you for what you had, promising to double the amount when he paid you back. You gave it to him—probably your whole life's savings. And tonight you discovered he'd lost it all. You were broke, without a chance of getting it back. So you waited for him to come in, intending to kill him, which you did! That's true, isn't it?"

For an instant Harris' eyes wavered. His expression was that of blank amazement.

"Why—why, how did you—that is—" he paused, staring helplessly into the officer's face. There wasn't much he could do. Tuttle had the whole story down to its minutest detail. It was too amazing, too shockingly true to be contradicted without fear of incrimination.

"Self-defense is your best alibi," Tuttle was saying as he snapped on the cuffs. "It's your only chance." His tone was not unkind.

Later, once more in the patrol car, Officer Johnson let out a long whistle. "How," he asked, "in the name of all creation, did you dope it out? And me always thinking you were a dumb bloke."

Officer Tuttle grinned pleasantly. This was his moment of triumph, and he took advantage of it.

"I don't know nothin' but what I read in the papers," he grinned.

"Yeah! Well, get it off your chest. It's your night to crow."

Tuttle lighted a cigarette. They were off duty now. "It was like this," he began. "I guessed it!"

"Sure. This evening I read how Wainwright was about ready to blow up, and his borrowing money from his butler seemed like the only logical solution. I took a chance, and made a bulls-eye. I'll bet Harris is still trying to puzzle out how I did it."

"Fine. But you must have had something to arouse your suspicions. You just couldn't accuse a man like that without a bit of evidence."

"Oh, that!" Tuttle flicked his cigarette airily. "Well, that's where the secret lies. You see, when I examined that screen I found a hole in it, just like Harris said I would. Only the bullet that had made the hole was shot from the inside, as was indicated by the fact that the pieces of wire were forced outward. I figured that Harris had shot that hole through the screen just to make it look like some one standing outside had killed the old man. And when he swore that no one else had entered the room, I knew I was on the right track. That's why I took a chance on hatching up the rest of the story."

"Oh, I see." Officer Johnson spun the wheel and brought the car to a stop before the curb at headquarters. "Well, that just goes to prove what I get for not reading the papers. I knew you couldn't have doped it all out yourself."

Foot Deformity Started Vogue of Pointed Shoes

Sometimes fads in shoes have lasted for centuries and probably caused about as much misery as all the wars fought in those same years. Pointed-toe shoes and the high French heels are two of the worst offenders that are still with us.

Pointed-toe shoes came into fashion in the Eleventh century in the court of William II of England, where a nobleman known as Fulk Rechin used them to hide a deformity, and by the reign of Richard II the pointed court slippers were so long at the ends that they were fastened up, out of the way, with light chains to the knees of the wearers.

Pointed-toe shoes have been in and out of fashion ever since. As recently as 1900 and 1905 the "sports" of that bygone era used to be proud of their bright yellow-colored "pig-stickers" that went nicely with their peg-top pants and broad-brimmed sailor straw hats.

By somewhat the same route—via the courts of royalty—came the French heel into the place of fashion which it still holds today.

Catherine de Medici came to the court of the French King Henry II to be his bride. Because she was so short and tiny she brought with her from Italy special shoes with built-up high heels. Because it originally was the mark of a queen, the fad caught on and has stayed with us ever since to the discomfort and torture of millions of women.

Back in the 1600s the fad for French heels became so great that court ladies in France used to wear heels from 6 to 20 inches tall. Even the men took up the high heel fad and short King Louis XIV once decided he would top all court retinue. He came out on stilts! No one topped that.

Many Desperadoes Are Still at Large in U.S., G-Men Reveal

Pushed Off Front Pages by War News, Criminals Yet Keep FBI Busy.

WASHINGTON.—War and national news have pushed the lawbreaking of "public enemies" off the front pages but the underworld still boasts a sizable population, Federal Bureau of Investigation officials disclose.

John Dillinger is dead. "Baby Face" Nelson is dead, and so are many other criminals who ruled gangdom during the past two decades. The race isn't extinct, however, and a dozen or more dangerous law violators still roam the nation.

"Their fields of operation extend from Maine to southern California and from the Florida bayous to the snow-white peaks of Washington, but their activities are concentrated mostly in the mid and southwestern states where roads are straight and clear and quick getaways are comparatively easier," the FBI said.

"And they are armed. Revolvers of all calibers, sawed-off shotguns, rifles and submachine guns are the weapons they use most frequently. And, almost always they carry side-arms between 'jobs'."

Always Dangerous.

"In other words, they are dangerous characters at all times, night and day—at rest or at play."

A survey of FBI records shows that hundreds of criminals still are at large in the United States dozen of whom are classified as real desperadoes—public enemies with imposing lists of crimes who have no scruples when it comes to a showdown.

"Take Irving C. Chapman, for instance," said the FBI. "He operates chiefly in the southeastern states. A native of Philadelphia, Miss., he has the reputation of being one of the most clever and dangerous bank robbers who ever operated in this country."

"He has been sentenced to enough years in state and federal penitentiaries to keep him locked up for the rest of his life—and even more. But he has always jumped bail or managed to escape."

"Once he sawed off the bars of the Shreveport, La., jail and lowered himself to the ground eight floors below with a rope made of mattress covers."

"The last time he escaped was in 1937 when nine prisoners at the Eastham state prison farm in Texas made a break armed with a couple of rifles. One guard was wounded and a prisoner was killed during the confusion."

"Three men, including Chapman, eluded recapture but eventually two of them succumbed to exhaustion from the rigor of their mad flight and were overcome by two men they had taken with them as hostages."

Still at Large.

"Chapman is still at large and has become a notorious and more or less fictional outlaw in Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida where he robbed banks and evaded capture by hiding in the sparsely populated areas."

Another criminal sought intensively by the FBI is Clarence V. Stevens. With two accomplices he allegedly kidnaped Miss Mary McElroy of Kansas City, Mo., in May, 1933, and obtained a $30,000 ransom, most of which subsequently was recovered. Stevens has never been found, but the search goes on.

Among other dangerous fugitives is James Straka. He is the "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" of the underworld. Investigation disclosed that at one time he lived in Bellaire, Ohio, under the name of George Greschner, a respectable business man during the day and the leader of a gang of burglars at night.

"And there's no doubt about his being dangerous. He allegedly carries a bottle of nitroglycerin at all times!"

Nose Operation Asked; It's Too Long for Mask

LONDON.—A man with a big nose walked into the Central London Throat, Nose and Ear hospital, and blandly informed the surgeon:

"I want you to cut off the tip of my nose. You see, it's so large that it's uncomfortable when I have to wear an oxygen mask when flying."

The man is a Polish pilot. Despite the fact that it was a big nose, the surgeon declined to operate. Not feeling discouraged, the pilot later turned up at Golden Square hospital, but, unknown to him, these two institutions are actually one and he was received by the same nurse.

"Sorry," she said, "but we still can't cut a perfectly good nose."

Relief At Last For Your Cough

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

It is not the greatness of a man's means that makes him independent, so much as the smallness of his wants.—Cobbett.

"All the Traffic Would Bear"

There was a time in America when there were no set prices. Each merchant charged what he thought "the traffic would bear." Advertising came to the rescue of the consumer. It led the way to the established prices you pay when you buy anything today.

Milford Leach is spending the week with Kenneth Mundt in Milwaukee.

Snow Valley had its formal opening last Saturday and though the snow came a little late to spread the news in the big cities, a fair crowd was on hand to enjoy themselves. Over 200 were there on Sunday afternoon. It was announced today that the ski slide would remain open all this week, though ordinarily it is only open on week ends. Over 50 people were turned away Tuesday, as men were working on a new ski tow.

Snow Valley is rapidly growing into a big thing. A ski club of 160 members from Iowa want to charter a train here and a ski club in Janesville expressed interest in the hill. The crowd can be handled easily enough if accommodations can be found. If this weather continues next week, rooms should be at a premium.

Nosing The News
BY RUSS DEVITT

And once again the Japanese demonstrate treachery, skull-duggery, and barbarism rivaling Pearl Harbor. And twenty four hours after Manila was declared an open city, after the Japanese radio had agreed to respect Manila as such, after Jap planes had made sure that all of the defenses of Manila were withdrawn, after all the treacherous Nipponese proceeded to bomb the helpless and defenseless city.

And though Manila was twice bombed from the air, and though civilians were killed and priceless buildings and architecture destroyed, the only answer Japan receives from the demand that the Philippine's cease resistance, is the enraged roar of an aroused people. And Philippine soldiers fight to the death, side by side with American troops in a desperate attempt to stem the invasion.

And so now in this great war it is "Remember Pearl Harbor and Manila." And an aroused nation demands retaliatory bombings against the "paper cities" of the Nipponese. And when the air arm of the navy is ready those bombings will come. And then the barbarous, pagan, and uncivilized nation we are at war with will taste a little of what they have been dishing out. And the taste will doubtless be sour.

And as 1941 bows out and the little rascal of 1942 makes his debut, he greets in the United States a nation of grim lipped resolute men and women with a job to do. And before 1942 totters off the stage in to the shadows of history that job may be accomplished.

A Little Bit o' DRIFTWOOD

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

These things I got by the sweat of my brow:

A fallow field and an ancient plow.

And these I bought with the songs I sung:

The wind and the spray and the salt sea flung.

And these are the things that I got from Love:

One tall pine tree and a star, a star above.

I, being in my right mind now, Bequeath to my son my land and plow.

And I'll leave him also the wind and the sea,

And I'll even leave him my tall pine tree.

But I'll keep that star, so my soul can wear

One golden trinket in her hair.

THE MOVING FINGER WRITES, AND HAVING WRIT MOVES ON: NOR ALL YOUR PIETY NOR WIT SHALL LURE IT BACK TO CANCEL HALF A LINE. —Omar

And so new year's here again with all of its reminiscing and thought about the past and the future. Every one vows to make their new year a bigger and better one, and they will vow the same thing on the first of January for many years to come.

It just seems natural for people to make changes and resolutions. One fellow I talked to said that he was tired of living on a hill. This year he is going to live on a bluff.

He never has amounted to much. The only exercise he gets is chinning at the bar.

If he starts out this year like he did the last one it will be a case of "beer today, gone tomorrow."

The night clubs and taverns always enjoy a rushing business on the eve of a new year. Strange, the more oiled a man is, the noisier he becomes.

Remember in the swear-of for the new year don't go beyond your moral strength to keep a good resolution.

Mrs. Rohde of Whitehall, Wis., was the guest of Miss Dorothy Anderson, Wednesday.

Mrs. G. A. Sprengel returned Saturday evening from an over Christmas visit with relatives in Ontonagon, Mich.

A bicycle, stolen from Elaine Jordan about a month ago, was recovered in Janesville by police of that city last week. The bicycle was one of two stolen in Palmyra. It was found abandoned by the Janesville police and, since all bicycles in that city are registered, it was immediately known for a strange one. A radio call sent to Elkhorn which got in contact with Palmyra, soon had the bicycle identified. The Jordan family journeyed to Janesville Christmas Day to recover the article. The police believe that the bicycles were stolen by two boys who escaped from the Waukesha Industrial School. The boys are still missing.
