STORY OF THE WEEK

Nothing Overlooked

By JAMES FREEMAN

(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

INSPECTOR Stephen Amsden laughed when I told him I'd been sent to get a story of his life for my paper.

"Story of my life, eh? Well, that makes me feel important. Where'll I begin?" He spread his hands in a gesture of helplessness.

"At the beginning," I replied. "Where were you born and when? And when did you become interested in police work? And what do you consider your most important case, and your most thrilling?"

He grinned and answered my questions readily enough, though with a certain amount of reserve and modesty. He is quite a famous man, having solved some of the country's greatest crime problems. He is now the oldest active member on the Holcomb police force, but you know, looking into his clear gray eyes, that his mind is as keen as ever.

"And now," I said, when the things he told me were carefully set down, "to what do you attribute your success, Inspector?" And I warned: "This is important. There'll be a lot of young chaps read it and heed whatever you say."

The old man sobered at this and was silent for some time. Presently he said: "Why, I guess noticing the little things is what helped most."

"The little things?" "That's right," he eyed me keenly. "Doesn't sound important to you, eh? Well, it's what every detective ought to pay the greatest attention to. It's the little things that count in this work, son." He was silent again and when I vouchsafed no reply, he continued: "I'd better demonstrate what I mean. I wouldn't want you to go

Our host glowered. "What more do you want to know? I caught him red-handed, and that's enough! He oughta get a ten-year stretch!"

Inspector Amsden smiled. "You're not a very sympathetic man."

"You bet I ain't. Trouble with this country today is that the crooks don't get what's coming to 'em."

"They do if we can prove they're crooks. Nolte says he heard a woman calling for help and came to her assistance. He claims he's not guilty."

"I know what he claims, but he's a liar! I caught him with some of our silver in his hands."

Inspector Amsden nodded indifferently and looked about the room. "Was that the door Nolte came through?" he asked, pointing to one through which we had just entered.

Oscar Rounds snarled his reply. "That guy never come in through no door. He jimmied a window. The door was locked."

The Inspector looked at me. "Well," he asked, "have you noticed?"

"Noticed what?" I asked blankly. And Inspector Amsden smiled. "Why, the little thing. The minor detail in Nolte's tale that will practically convict him."

I thought back over Nolte's story and shook my head. The thing had me completely bewildered.

Inspector Amsden turned to the farmer. "Have you a telephone here?"

"Sure. In there." He jerked a thumb toward an open door.

Amsden nodded and disappeared into the other room. I heard him calling headquarters and heard him give instructions to hold Nolte.

But it wasn't until we were on our way back to town that he explained about the little detail.

"Remember," he said, "when Nolte told about knocking and no one replied. He declared he unintentionally pushed against the door. I pulled it outward. Get it?"

He grinned at my amazement. "Well, I'm a son-of-a-gun!" I exclaimed. "Say, that's a fact, isn't it? How the dickens did you happen to notice?"

"I always notice," Amsden replied, "such things as details. A detective has to. That's his job." He chuckled. "Now when you write that story, don't neglect to mention the importance of paying heed to the little things."

"Don't worry," I promised, shaking my head. "I won't."

Makes Dinosaurs 'Work' For Him; Farm 'Products'

Carlton S. Nash of South Hadley, Mass., is known in scientific circles throughout the world. Visitors from 39 states and many foreign countries have made pilgrimages to his home to see the unusual products of his "farm" for he has the world's most bountiful crop of dinosaur tracks.

Deeply imbedded in layers of shale on his two acres are the imprints of hundreds of dinosaurs of all sizes, from little fellows no larger than a chicken to mammoth 30 and 40 tonners who roamed through the Connecticut valley in prehistoric times.

There is even an imprint of the tail of one weary old dinosaur who sat down to rest, a prehistoric item authenticated by the late Professor Loomis of Amherst college. Nash values this particular track at $6,000.

Formerly available only to museums and educational institutions, the dinosaur tracks on Nash's "farm" are so numerous and varied that he now sells them to individuals throughout the world who use them for stepping stones, doorsteps, novel book ends and fireplace decorations.

He does not know how deep the ledge of shale imprints extends although to date 16 layers of imprints have been uncovered, the shale containing each track varying in thickness from a half to five inches.

"The tracks were made by dinosaurs in mud millions of years ago," Nash explains. "They were petrified due to the clayish iron cement texture of the mud and compaction of the earth's weight. They are found in outcroppings of sandstone which seldom project above the surface of the earth. These layers of sandstone were originally mud flats which later were covered with glacial deposits from the North, slowly hardened into stone and eventually, from the earth's warping, volcanic action and erosion, were exposed."

Undoubtedly many people have wandered over what is now the "Nash Dinosaur Footprint Quarry" for years without paying much attention to the queer imprints in the shale.

Caesarean

One reason for the greater frequency of the Caesarean in the United States is that American women like fancy treatment. The foreign woman, unless she is of high birth, doesn't expect X-rays and examination. She's just a woman about to have a baby the way her mother did before her.

Household Hints

Water should never be poured on burning fat. It will spread the blaze. Flour will extinguish the blaze.

A raw potato put in soup that has too much salt in it and boiled for 10 minutes will remove the salty taste.

Always cut toast in small squares when making cream toast. It is much easier served cut in this way.

Always store baking powder in a tightly covered container. If it is exposed to the air some of the strength will be lost.

Fruit cake makes a delicious pudding served with either hard or hot sauce. Steam the fruit cake before serving.

Apply paint remover with a brush. When paint begins to curl remove with a putty knife. Remover takes time and cannot be hurried.

The unsightly ring left by cleaning fluids, when used to remove spots, may be avoided by placing under the spot a pad made of thick absorbent cotton.

Current Fashions Stress New Use of Daring Color Contrast

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AT FIRST this matter of using two or three colors together in daring contrast was regarded as an adventure that would give a new slant to fashion. It was a deliberate departure from traditional color technique that might reasonably be expected to prove a mere passing fad. However, this courage on the part of designers to start something new has not only added zest to fashion, but has developed a movement that is being carried over from one season to another with increasing enthusiasm.

This spring the fashion program fairly vibrates with breathtaking color contrasts that defy staid and sedate ideas as to which color goes with which.

In every phase of fashion, from bathing suits to sweaters and from simple daytime dresses to dress-up afternoon frocks and pretentious "formals," designers are courageously handling color in new ways with an artistry that is winning tremendous applause.

To demonstrate the brilliant and audacious spirit style creators express in their use of color, note the daytime dress shown to the left in the group illustrated above. The dress in this instance is of narrow wale corduroy with sleeves and collar of bright red wool jersey. A patch pocket has a striking heraldic design embroidered in multi-colored yarns.

By the way, this idea of contrasting sleeves might serve as an inspiration in stretching a limited budget to meet the exigencies arising in present war times when economy is a virtue every woman is urged to practice. For example, there's that dress hanging in your closet, "perfectly good," yet seeming to have outlived its usefulness. The sleeves show wear at the elbows. Why not rejuvenate this poor outcast with a new pair of sleeves in a bright, contrasting color? To complete the costume, add a belt, and, perhaps, pockets in the same bright color. You might even go so far as to do the contrast sleeves in a tri-color scheme, cerise for the top, gold for the center and purple for the lower arm portion, repeating the colors in pockets and neckline details.

Smartly typical of the new vogue for contrast is the dress shown to the right in the picture above. It has a definitely "peasant" feeling in its use of vivid colors and its trimming in a flower of self fabric.

There's something about the mid-day-blouse fashion done in red, white and blue that makes an irresistible combination. The pattern for the two-piece outfit, centered in the group above, with its easy-to-follow instructions, is especially interesting if you sew the modern way. If you aspire to be your own seamstress, your local sewing center will instruct you, at little or no expense, in the making of such expert dress-maker details as buttonholes. Crisp white rayon fabric is used for the midday blouse and cadet blue for the skirt. Bands of vermilion red accent the collar, cuffs and pockets and can be made in "jig time" with an edge stitcher sewing machine attachment.

And don't forget about the newest bathing suits. They have sprightly little skirts of ruffles, each in a different color. A bandanna for the head repeats the color scheme.

Flour Sack Dress

Imagine! A dress as attractive as this actually made out of ordinary cotton flour sacks! You'll need three large cotton bags for this charming frock. It is no trick at all to dye them a deep red and for trimming use beige colored yarn (died with coffee liquid). Add real pine cones for buttons and you have a dress for the farmerette that any city cousin would look upon with understandable envy.

Slim Skirts Have Soft Draped Lines

There's excitement coming in the way of skirt silhouettes. To say that they are versatile is to put it mildly. In the fashion picture there will not only be pleated skirts but there is an important trend toward pencil-slim draped effects.

Very smart, too, are the new wrapover effects, many of which tie on without any other fastening. The surprise is the skirts that are flounced in a new way. These will be repeated again and again in wash dresses. Also in long evening taffetas.

Ballerina skirts are making front page news, and the young set is wearing them like the dirndl.

Color Goes to Work—In New Defense Uniforms

Color is being advocated throughout the fashion field. Those who are studying conditions say that for defense work, particularly, bright color is essential to morale. The gabardines, denims and other cottons used for uniforms, field work and various defense activities will not only be thoroughly practical and functional, but they will spread a good measure of cheer.

Spring Hats

Flattering hats, many of them flower trimmed, will be worn from now on into the spring. The flower-trimmed calot is a favorite. The little sailor, of straw or felt, will also be shown. Many fabrics will feature back drapes over the hair.

Child's Slacks

Very practical and cunning for little tots are pinafore slacks with matching bonnets that are made with a view to stressing the "pretty" look. Chambray and seersucker are favored fabrics for these suits.

FARM TOPICS

FARM WOODLOT NEEDS CULLING

'Loafer' and 'Robber' Trees Should 'Get the Ax.'

By PARKER ANDERSON
(Extension Forester, Minnesota University Farm.)

The farm woodlot needs "culling" at this time of the year just as much as does the flock of laying hens. If the woodlot is to produce well in the future, loafer and robber trees should get the axe.

Trees culled out this winter will more than pay for the trouble and labor in fuel, fence posts and lumber logs. Woodlots will gain from this practice, he says, because the remaining trees can grow faster and straighter.

It is a good idea to have an eye out for trees that will give cash returns in the future. Productive trees should have the best in soil fertility, water and sunlight. Large trees that "overtop" and steal sunlight from promising young growth are among those recommended by Anderson for culling.

To avoid too extensive cutting here are some suggestions:

Leave enough trees to cover the forest floor, but thin out dense thickets of young trees so the straightest and healthiest ones will have growing room. Keep your eyes on the tops—tree tops should be fairly close but with some room for growth.

Raise More Food, Farm Youth Urged

Farm boys and girls are being encouraged to increase supplies of foods needed by this country through projects on pigs, calves, and chickens, according to word received from the U. S. department of agriculture.

Both the Farm Credit and Farm Security administrations are prepared to make loans to members of 4-H clubs and other rural youth groups—as well as to unaffiliated youngsters with responsible sponsors—to make more such work possible than in the past.

FSA will make loans to children of its borrowers where funds are otherwise unavailable, and FCA will make loans through local production credit associations. The State Extension services in co-operation with state agricultural colleges, will help to launch many of the projects, it is announced.

Many 4-H clubs and other rural youth groups have raised various foods as part of their work in the past. Last year, for instance, 4-H members grew 237,000 home gardens, 177,000 raised poultry, 150,000 raised pigs, and 74,000 had dairy cattle. The aim now is to increase the number of farm boys and girls growing foods deemed most vital to America.

Their contributions of milk, eggs, pork, and vegetables will not only add to needed supplies in the country but will make possible in many instances an improved diet for themselves and families, it is pointed out.

Carbon Monoxide Is Poultry Danger

Pink lungs reveal carbon monoxide poisoning in baby turkeys and chicks. According to George P. McCarthy, poultry husbandman of Texas A. and M. college, a grower may actually gas his turkey poulters or baby chicks with a sooty brooder stove and bad ventilation. Deaths from this cause might be attributed to other reasons.

Investigators by the Denver branch of the pathological laboratory of the U.S.D.A. into the high percentage of loss among baby turkeys delivered in good condition from hatcheries to poultrymen showed no external symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning, even when it was suspected. Chemical tests, however, were conclusive and physical examinations confirmed the positive cases by revealing the abnormally pink lungs which result from this type of poisoning.

McCarthy recommends that turkey growers provide good ventilation in their brooder houses without exposing the young birds to the hazard of drafts. Before placing baby chicks in brooder houses it is important to clean coal, wood and oil burning brooder stoves in order to remove all soot which might clog the burners and help form the dangerous gas.

Farm Machinery

Despite actual or threatened shortages of raw materials, last year was a year of record output of farm equipment, says the department of commerce. The monthly output of farm equipment continued steadily at the rate of $65,000,000 from April through September. Sales of farm equipment show an increase of 25 per cent over a year ago, accounted for entirely in the domestic market, since exports of farm equipment were the same.

Few More Years Would Have Toughened Uncle

The oldest inhabitant had celebrated his hundredth birthday and the reporter of a local paper called on him for an interview. "To what do you attribute your longevity?" the reporter inquired.

The centenarian paused a moment and then, holding up his hand and ticking off the items on his fingers, began: "I never drank alcoholic liquors, or overate, and I always rise at six in the morning."

"But," protested the reporter, "I had an uncle who acted in that way, yet he only lived to be eighty. How do you account for that?"

"He didn't keep it up long enough," was the calm reply.

A Little Bit o' DRIFT WOOD

THE PRINTER'S SONG
Pick and click
Goes the type in his stick,
As the printer stands at his case;
His eyes glance quick, as his fingers pick
The type at a rapid pace;
And, one by one as the letters go,
Words are piled up, steady and slow.

Steady and slow,
But still they grow,
And words of fire they soon will glow;—
Wonderful words, that without a sound
Traverse the earth to its utmost bound;—

Words that shall make
The tyrant quake
And the fetters of the oppressed shall break;
Words that can crumble an army's might,
Or treble its strength in a righteous fight;—
Yet the type they look but leaden and dumb,
As he puts them in place with finger and thumb.

But the printer smiles,
As his work he beguiles
By chanting a song as the letters he piles,
With a pick and a click,
Like the world's chronometer, tick, tick, tick!

O, where is the man with such simple tools
Can govern the world as I?
With a printing-press, an iron stick,
And a little leaden die,
With paper of white, and ink of black,
I support the Right and the Wrong attack.

Say, where is he, or who may he be
That can rival the printer's power?
To no monarchs that live the wall doth he give,—
Their sway lasts only an hour;
While the printer still grows, and God only knows
When his might shall cease to tower!
