NOSING THE NEWS BY RUSS DEVITT

And Mr. Churchill, in a stirring speech makes mention of a second front. And that is what is needed now, a second front against the Nazis to batter them from one side as the Russians hammer them from the other. And Russia, to have the pressure eased, needs a second front, a push from the Atlantic Coast that will send the Nazi policemen of occupied France, Belgium and Holland scurrying for cover.

And the second front is needed now, before the possibility of a Russian collapse on the Eastern Front. And we do not look for Russia to crack, and we pray to almighty God that Russia will not crack. And yet we do know they have been subject to the best that Hitler has for almost a year. And we do know that the commencement of a second front will take the Nazis so that instead of skeleton forces on the west they will have to have divisions and armies. And the western front and the eastern front can thereupon commence the squeeze-play that will mark the end of Mr. Adolph Hitler and his aspirations of world conquest.

And Mr. Churchill in his speech issued a warning to Adolph Hitler to forego the use of poison gas on the Eastern front. And for the sake of a suffering humanity it is hoped that at least this choking horror does not descend upon a humanity's whose cup of sorrow now seems filled to overflowing. And though Adolph Hitler through the press disavows that poison gas will ever be used, the only thing that will prove the truth of these assertions is time.

And one more broken promise or less is not going to worry Adolph Hitler. And yet, knowing that poison gas can be used by the foe as easily as he can use it may cause him to think twice.

And the USO has this week commenced a campaign for funds. And we should get behind this movement 100% and show the boys who are fighting and dying for us that we are with them to the bitter end or to the glorious victory.

Bowling Oddities

Didja Know???
THAT—you walk approximately one mile, to and from the foul line during a 3 game series.

THAT—a pin setter lifts around 25 tons while setting pins during a normal day.

THAT—the bowling balls lifted by every bowler in 9 games and carried to the foul line will total about 2,304 lbs. and will scatter about 3,000 lbs. of wood.

So it is....
What is the least number of balls needed to complete a game of bowling?

Despite the fact that everybody thinks that 12 would be the answer because it takes that many strikes for a 300 game—the answer is 11 balls. Here's the dope—

You get 9 strikes in a row for 9 balls. You then have an error in the 10th frame, which is 2 more balls giving you 11 in all.

AUTO RACES AT STATE FAIR PARK ON DECORATION DAY

Big car national championship auto races, under sanction of the Consolidated States Racing Association, will be held at the State Fair Park mile track on Decoration Day, Saturday, May 30, under direction of Hankinson Speedways America's largest auto racing promotional body.

The events will be the only big car races this year, it having been definitely established that Wisconsin State Fair will not offer regulation car races in 1942.

Ralph Hankinson, who promoted I. M. C. A. sanctioned races here as far back as 1919, and was here for several years in the "thirties" with A. A. A. sanctioned events both in the spring and summer, and also at the State Fair, will operate the races.

The date is the same as the former Indianapolis Speedway Memorial Day classic.

Hankinson has already opened his season at Reading, Pa., on April 19. Joe Chitwood, who competed at Indianapolis and Milwaukee in the past, won the opening with Bob Sall second.

Horn won the C.S.R.A. national championship last year after finishing third at Indianapolis and both A.A.A. to race for Hankinson.

Other 1941 champions were Rex Mays, AAA national titleholder; Duke Nalon, midwestern AAA champ; Jimmy Wilburn, IMCA national champion; Bill Holland, Eastern AAA Champion, and Rex Records, Pacific coast king.

In rounding out his field for the forthcoming events at Milwaukee, Hankinson plans to make overtures to every 1941 champion as well as the recognized "hot shots" of the east, midwest and the Pacific coast. The veteran speed promoter predicts the biggest and best starting field in the history of auto racing on the state fair track.

IN FLANDERS' FIELDS
By Colonel John McCrae

In Flanders' fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amidst the guns' roar

We are the dead,
Short days ago we lived, felt
Saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved and now we are
In Flanders' fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe,
To you from falling hands we throw
The Torch—be yours to hold it high;
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders' fields.

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, setting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed thruout the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Smartly Tailored Woolknits Are Ideal for All-Day Wear

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS EVERY woman knows, now that our country is in an out-and-out war, there are busy days ahead for all. One of the reactions brought about by the present war condition is the developing of a new psychology in dress which carries an urge to choose clothes that are simple and goodlooking at the same time that they underwrite a guarantee of dependable wearability.

For a perfect answer to the problem, let your quest lead you into the realm of woolknitted apparel, and you will be elated with what you will see in the way of smart clothes to victoriously keep you looking spic-and-span, fashion right and attractive through every hour of each busy day.

Gay deceivers they are, these new knitted suits. You'd never dream they were machine knitted until you test the "feel" of them as well as the "look." At first glance many a stunning woolknit looks as if it might be tailored of tweed or other material, for modern woolknits have a fabric-like appearance which is simply baffling. They glory in the fact that they sag not (neither do they stretch), and they are non-wrinkling. To which add a styling that embodies all the intriguing details of expert tailoring. Which is the same as telling you that a modern knit suit has everything that makes for a victory clothes program for patriotic women.

Representative groups of woolknit fashions are made up, to a large extent, of just such eye-appealing suits as the three shown in the above illustration. A closeup study of the woolknit suit to the right reveals highly significant details such as, for instance, the skirt which is a new achievement in machine knitting. It is full-fashioned just like a handknitted garment and consequently won't sag, stretch or spring. The jacket is softly styled with a ribbed waistband that lends the exclusive look of being hand done. The original model is in melon pink enhanced with plastic flower buttons.

Red Coat

There has been a record-breaking call for red coats this season and the demand is still going strong. The attractive all-purpose coat pictured above is made of bright red woolknit tricot-cord fabric in coating weight. Both in material and in styling it is outstanding. The bloused raglan sleeves which tie at the wrists and the casual swing of this coat, which is deftly tied at the neck, make it wonderful to wear over sports, daytime or evening clothes. Red coats have become such a sensation that "the little red coat" may join "the little black dress" as a favored tradition.

The sailor, by Sally Victor, is in a sheer lacy woolknit fabric. Here is a perfect outfit for town and country wear now that the major trend is toward bright hues for suits. In navy, so extremely important this year, this woolknit suit and hat will fit perfectly into the program of a busy woman.

Dress and jacket ensembles that look like suits but, without the jacket, give you a charming little frock for many an occasion are tophat favorites this season. See illustrated to the left in the above picture a citrus green dress-and-jacket two-piece ensemble done in woolknit with a fine cord stitch, with red arrows and pippings for smart accent. With its jacket it has every appearance of a suit and gives you the tailored look you want for general practical wear. When that short-notice invitation to afternoon bridge or tea comes unexpectedly this little knitted frock without the jacket will happily meet the occasion. Its simulated pleated skirt is an achievement in woolknit technique in that it is full fashioned. It can't and won't sag, and the miracle of it is you can't tell it from handknit. The hat by Jeanne Tete is made of matching citrus green woolknit fabric. It's very smart nowadays for hats and accessories to be made of the same print or the same fabric as dress, blouse or jacket. The big envelope bag is especially designed of matching woolknit green fabric with a border of bright red.

Quite "dress-up" is the lightweight woolknit tunic dress centered in the above group. Harlequin dots embroidered in red, green, brown and yellow are applied on the tunic top. Machine knitted to simulate hand knitting, it is gay in bright green. The scarf hat is a wool jersey draped turban with a clipped wool yarn border and top twist.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Cotton Hats Match Slacks or Dresses

Milliners are fashioning cunning hats of gingham, seersucker, pique, flowery chintz and quilted calico. They are a fitting complement to slacks and culotte outfits.

In fact, some of them are so smartly styled into little sailors and brim effects that they seem to be made especially for the new print suits and black cotton dresses. When you have a piece of dress goods left over, go into conference with your milliner. She can make a highly fashionable chapeau, matched to the dress with which it is to be worn.

This matter of making the hat of the identical material of the dress or blouse with which it is to be worn offers an intriguing program. Particularly smart are hat and neckwear sets made of taffeta silk. The little sailor type is stunning done in taffeta. Tie a huge bow of the taffeta to pose at the neck of your blouse or to wear with your smart new coat or suit.

Another Variation on Cotton Theme Is Lace

In speaking of the practicality of cotton weaves for summer wear, it is encouraging to know that a series of cotton laces have been produced that can be depended upon to wear perfectly.

These come in the loveliest pastels and also in navy. Made up into pretty daytime frocks they answer the demand for a dress that looks charming but has a sturdiness back of it that takes it into the class of assured dependable wearability.

Reason for Suspicion

By VIC YARDMAN
(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

SHOW me the one among your guests or cowpunchers," said Sheriff Newton Cook, "who's left-handed, and I'll show the man who stole your money."

Mac Brickell, owner of the Bar Z Y cattle ranch, looked up quickly. For a moment he studied the lean, bronze face of Pecos county's law officer, then turned to glance meaningly at his foreman, Dusty Prentice.

Sheriff Cook said, "Well? Is there a left-handed hombre on the ranch?"

"Yes," said Brickell slowly, "there is. Dusty here was trying to teach him a rope trick the other day and he had trouble because Landon was left-handed. His name's Warren Landon." He paused. "What makes you think that the thief is a left-handed jigger, Sheriff? Landon is one of my best paying customers."

"I'll explain that later," Cook nodded toward Dusty. "Go fetch him, Dusty, and we'll ask him a few questions."

"Wait a minute!" Dusty turned at the sharp command from his boss. "Newt," Brickell went on, "I ain't going to allow you to accuse Landon without knowing first what grounds you've got. Landon's been coming here every summer for three years. Business is too tough in the dude ranch game to risk losing a cus-tomber like him. Besides, the man's rich. What would he go stealing a paltry thousand dollars for?"

"Maybe if business is tough in the dude ranch business, it's tough in other businesses. Maybe it's tough with Landon, and maybe that's why Landon needed the thousand dollars." Sheriff Cook pushed his sombrero and scratched his head. "I can see your point of view, though, Mac, so suppose we attack the thing from a different angle. Suppose you an' me and Dusty go over to Landon's cabin and tell him about the robbery. We won't say nothing, but I'll look at him mighty suspiciously, and the fact that all three of us are there, wearing guns, too, will, if he's guilty, have an effect on him. I mean, by his manner he'll reveal his guilt."

"You're sure he will? Landon was supposed to be off fishing when the money was stolen."

Cook shrugged. "The man who stole that thousand dollars thinks he's so smart that no one would ever suspect him. When we pop in on Landon first shot out of the box, he'll be so danged surprised he'll give himself away whether he wants to or not."

Sheriff Cook pointed to the floor of the small room in which they were standing. "See those cigarette ashes? There's enough to guess that they came from three or four cigarettes, at least. But do you see any stubs? No. And why? Because the thief was too smart to leave anything around as identifying as cigarette stubs. However, here's this paper of matches. Probably dropped in the dark. But unimportant. Why again? Because, even though there were fingerprints on the package, they wouldn't do us any good. We're miles from anyone who has the intelligence or equipment to read fingerprints. Moreover, out here we don't resort to such new-fangled ideas. And the thief knew that."

"Now, listen," the officer went on, "this is the way I figure it. Landon knew that the thousand-dollar payroll arrived at the ranch yesterday morning, as did everyone else. He knew, because of his past three years' experience on the Z Y, that you always left it in this office overnight, until the next day, when you pay off. He needed a thousand bucks and he needed it in a hurry. So yesterday afternoon he sets off on a fishing trip alone, taking a lunch with him in case he didn't return by supper time. Toward dark, when everyone is in eating their supper, he comes back, climbs in the office window and waits there. He eats his lunch and smokes a cigarette or two while the evening wears away."

"Presently as is customary out here, the guests and most of the punchers gather in the main ranch house for the regular evening of fun. It is then that Landon, or whoever the thief is, climbed out of the window with the thousand dollars, went to his cabin, hid the money and then came up to the main ranch house.

"That," said Mac Brickell, "sounds like a darn good story and darn logical. Only what makes you think Warren Landon was the man?"

"Because he's left-handed, Listen, Mac, let's you and me and Dusty pop over to Landon's cabin like I said. If he's innocent, there'll be no harm done; if he's guilty, you can see for yourself."

For a moment Mac Brickell hesitated. Then he shrugged, and led the way out into the ranch yard. The three men crossed the brook that separated the main buildings from the two rows of guest cabins, and presently stopped before one whose door stood open.

Brickell rapped and peered inside, but Cook pushed his way past and ranged along the wall. The ranch owner followed, and then came Dusty.

A tall, blond man rose from the cot against the opposite wall, sat up and stared at them curiously. "Well, Brickell, what's up?"

Brickell shifted nervously. "Why, nothing much, Mr. Landon. You see, the sheriff here—"

"Came up to investigate the robbery of the payroll from Brickell's office," Cook cut in. He thrust forward his jaw belligerently. "Know anything about it, Mr. Landon?"

The officer's voice was filled with accusation and contempt. Brickell gestured futilely, almost apologetically.

Landon bounded to his feet. "Do I know anything about it? Me? Why the devil would I know anything about your lousy thousand dollars? Why, you insulting—"

"What thousand dollars are you talking about?" Cook barked. His hand was resting lightly on the butt of his six-shooter. "Who said anything about a thousand dollars? How did you know there was that amount in the payroll?"

Landon blinked, swallowed. The blustering bravado and indignation dropped from him like a cloak.

"Why—why—I've been coming here for three years. I ought to know by this time what Brickell's payroll amounts to. Eh, Brickell?"

He turned to the ranch owner, desperate appeal in his tones.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Landon, Brickell said, "I—at first I didn't believe it could be you. But I guess the sheriff was right. You see, the amount of my payroll changes every month what with letting hands go and taking them on during the height of the season. Sorry."

Landon was like an animal at bay. But almost at once he saw that escape was impossible, because both Sheriff Cook and Dusty had drawn their guns and were ready.

Later on, back in Brickell's office, Sheriff Cook produced once more the paper of matches. "You see these," he said. "Well, notice how the matches that have been used were torn from the left-hand side of the package. A right-handed man always holds the package in his left hand and tears the matches on the right side off first. That's how I knew your thief was left-handed."

Brickell nodded dismally. He had lost a first-class customer and wasn't in an especially pleasant mood. Later, after examining the partly used packages of matches belonging to half a dozen right-handed men, he was forced to admit that Cook was right—and clever.

Seventeenth Century Ideals Still Fresh

The customs, folklore and even the native tongue of France still exists in the little community of Old Mines, Mo, where the inhabitants have persisted in keeping their Seventeenth century ideals fresh.

Despite the flood tide of over-energetic Americans around them, a score or more of families, descendants of early settlers, remain French in religion and in every-day life. They speak a sort of old French patois, as a priest terms it.

Father Van Tourenhout, a Belgian born in St Louis, continues to make journeys to Old Mines to hear French confessions. He encourages celebration of traditional feasts such as the Guignoeie. He dons a brette and soutane for the occasion. The peasant women wear the blue kerchief of early France.

Each week these peasants drive to nearby Potosi—which they still insist on calling Mine a Breton—for provisions, herding their families into wagons. For entertainment they meet in the evenings at homes of their neighbors for a singing party or a tale-telling.

The stories are those passed down through the centuries. The peasant cannot always tell the meaning of the words he uses. They have been dropped from his vocabulary. He repeats them as a ritual—as a child says "fee-fi-fo-fum." Many are altered versions of tales from Bocaccio and La Fontaine. Others are fairy tales with a few details changed to fit the local scene.

Hats, No Hats

The wearing of hats has often been blamed for the loss of men's hair and going without a hat is supposed to promote hair growth. But both theories are false, according to one of the nation's leading trichologists. For over-exposure of the scalp to the hot summer sun is one of the most common causes of conditions leading to baldness. And it has never been proved that the wearing of a hat had the slightest adverse effect on the preservation of hair.

"Fuller," says Aunt Netty, the other day. "Folks are like wine. Some sour with age, and some, like you, get better!"

"Mebbe," says I, pickin' up that little compliment, "that's because I feel so good most of the time." For, you know, folks, when you feel good your disposition's apt to be good, too. But to do that, you got to eat right, which includes gettin' all your vitamins. And KELLOGG'S PEP is extra-rich in the two most often short in ordinary meals—vitamins B and D. Mighty fine-tastin', too. Try it!

Kellogg's Pep

Alertness Keeps Farm Buildings Free of Rats

Constant Vigilance Is Way Menace Is Stopped

By R. E. GROSS

(Agriculture Engineer, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

Use poison bait, fumigate, set traps or keep a good rat dog—but be sure to do something to protect your farm from the rat menace.

Rats multiply so rapidly that frequent attention to the problem is necessary all the time, and especially now when farm efficiency is playing an important part in the nations Food for Freedom program.

Keep the farmstead free from all piles of waste material or supplies stacked in such a way as to offer shelter and feed for rats. This is the first and most urgent measure. Supplies should be kept in rat-proof buildings or in stacks located away from buildings. Waste should be removed or destroyed.

Leave No Holes or Cracks.

Repair foundations, floors and sills of buildings, leaving no holes or large cracks offering a start for gnawing. Foundations must be intact to a depth of two feet below ground level. Sheet metal or wire screen tacked over holes or cracks and to the edges of doors are a sure stop.

Wood walls are rat-proofed by covering with half-inch mesh wire screen to a height of four feet above the ground and placing a smooth strip of galvanized metal above the wire mesh.

Rats can burrow through decayed, crumbly concrete or even sound new concrete while it is still soft and moist. Everlasting diligence is required.

Suggestions on Plows

Before using a new plow, engineers suggest that the farmer measure the down suction and land suction of the share, and make a record of the measurements. Later, when the share needs sharpening, it can be given the same degree of suction.

A wobbly rolling colter increases draft and makes a ragged plowing job. Hence colter bearings should be adjusted snugly to run true and vertical but freely, replaced if badly worn. Generally colters are set to cut one-half to one inch wider than the share, and the width of two fingers above it.

Best position for the jointer on a plow is just far enough behind the colter hub to prevent dirt and trash wedging against it and low enough to cut a three-cornered ribbon of soil about 4 inches wide and usually not more than 2 1/2 inches deep. Farm engineers say when a jointer is used without a rolling colter, its point should be set approximately over the point of the share, the same as when a disc jointer is used.

Normal Loss

Shell Eggs Shipped to Isle Getting There OK

Shell eggs, produced on United States farms, are getting to Great Britain with losses in transit amounting to no more than normal losses in domestic shipping, says G. T. Klein, extension poultryman at Massachusetts State college.

This was indicated by a recent report to the British house of commons by Major Lloyd-George, undersecretary to the minister of foods, in which he stated losses amount to no more than 5.3 per cent.

These losses, says Mr. Klein, are largely due to spoilage and breakage and compare favorably with normal losses in shell eggs shipped from producing areas to consumers throughout the United States.

This should be good news to the American poultryman who has wanted to know whether his eggs were reaching Great Britain without severe loss and in condition to be of use to the English people. Shipment of eggs under the Lend-Lease act has enabled the British government to increase allotments to stores and thus supply consumers with a greater number than they have had previously through the rationing system.

Farm Notes

Trailers and dormitories to be made available for temporary war housing by the Farm Security administration under a recent presidential allocation of $13,000,000 will provide 12,269 dwelling units for workers in 24 war-industry areas, the U. S. department of agriculture says. Housing facilities in these areas are expected to be ready for occupancy early in March.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

YES! Pattern No. 1541-B is truly a miracle dress. Not only does it whisk away pounds, it improves and dignifies your posture, gives you a more slender figure and gracious poise.

A fresh, youthful feeling is gained by the cleverly shaped side pieces—forming smart shoulder yokes at the top, gathered at the waist for a flattering fit and dropping the skirt line—as well as the low vee neck. From the point of this neck to the hem is a long straight line which draws attention to your height rather than your width! Graceful sleeves which just cover the elbows are suggested for this frock when it is intended for more formal wear.

A glance at our picture tells you that here is a dress of distinction yet it can be made without any special effort and is just as effective in lovely soft cottons as it is in silk or rayon crepes.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1541-B is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires, with short sleeves, 4 1/2 yards 39-inch material.

Pictureque Play Set. DON'T you find it fun to make your daughter's play clothes in cunning styles and pretty cottons? In Pattern No. 1570-B you'll find a play set for girls from 1 to 6 years old which has many practical features.

First comes a frock—delightfully cool with scalloped cap sleeves, a pert pocket, braid and button trimming and a button-down-the-back opening which makes it easy to get on and off. Second, there is an adorable bonnet to match, the crown of which buttons in place. The whole thing opens flat for ironing. Third is a pair of overalls—so sensible for play and so healthy, too, because in warm weather no top is needed and the wearer is exposed to a grand sun tan.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1570-B is designed for 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 year sizes. Size 2 requires 3 1/2 yards 32 or 35-inch material for ensemble, 3 yards bias braid for frock and bonnet.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Take especially good care of pots and pans now that metal is needed for war industries. Often old ones can be repaired. Heat them slowly and do not use too hot a fire, thereby reducing the strain on the metal and amount of heat used.

After use, dry steel wool in sun to prevent its rusting.

Unwrap soap before storing. The soap dries out, lasts longer when exposed to the air several days before use.

Cheese will stay moist longer if the edge is thinly spread with butter before the cheese is placed in the refrigerator.

Celery tops should never be thrown away. They may be used as stock in soup or may be boiled with turnips, carrots, or cauliflower. Remove them from the pan before serving. A new flavor will be added to vegetable stand-bys.

A stale loaf of bread, with crusts removed, will yield eight cups of crumbs. When stale bread begins to collect around the kitchen, grind it into crumbs, and store away in a glass jar until ready to use.

Colorless lacquer can help you cut down a lot of cleaning on large ornate pieces of silver used only for decoration. Thoroughly clean, polish, wash and dry the silver, then cover it with a thin coat of lacquer. When the lacquer begins to wear off, remove all of it by rubbing with a cloth dipped in denatured alcohol. Wash in warm water and soap and polish again, then repeat the lacquer treatment.

PREPAREDNESS by the AMERICAN RED CROSS

Two million volunteer Red Cross workers—a militant army of mercy.

GIVING a pint of blood for the army and navy is a new form of patriotism in which thousands of loyal Americans are now participating.

This blood, processed into life-saving plasma for emergency transfusions, is collected from volunteer blood donors at 18 Red Cross Blood Donor centers.

The program was launched in February, 1941, following a request by the surgeons general of the army and navy that the Red Cross provide 15,000 pints of blood to be processed into dried plasma. This program has now been expanded at the request of the army and navy to the point where over one million donors will be required. Eighteen centers have been opened, and donations are pouring in at the rate of approximately 60,000 a month. Giving blood is a simple process, requires but a few minutes time on the part of the donor, and has no after effects. The blood is shipped daily in refrigerated containers to the laboratories, where it is processed into dried plasma, a light, straw colored powder that can be kept indefinitely and transported easily.

Numerous cases have been reported where plasma saved the lives of American soldiers and sailors suffering from burns and traumatic shock, and Red Cross plasma has been distributed to our armed forces operating in the Atlantic and Pacific war theaters. However, thousands of additional donors are needed to supply the full requirements for the army and navy, and to provide plasma for any civilian emergencies which may result from enemy action in this country.

Red Cross Blood Donor centers are located in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Buffalo, Rochester, N. Y., Indianapolis, Detroit, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Boston, Milwaukee, Cleveland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Cincinnati, Brooklyn, and Washington, D. C. (Prepared exclusively for WNU.)

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers BY RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THIS new style of framing windows with boards gaily decorated, started with the black-out drills. The boards prevent light from showing around the edges of dark shades. The style is especially attractive and practical for kitchen windows as the frame gives the effect of colorful draperies, yet may be washed with a damp cloth.

This window strikes a patriotic note with blue paint and a red, white and blue border. Clear un-

Three-Mile Painting

The longest painting on record was the Panorama of the Mississippi, a canvas nearly 16,000 feet in length, which depicted the 1,300 miles of landscape of the river between the mouth of the Missouri and New Orleans, says Collier's. Executed by John Banvard between 1840 and 1846, this picture was exhibited by being passed between two upright revolving cylinders and required two hours to be shown in its entirety.

Oddities in Nature

The praying mantes are the only insects that can turn their heads like man, the pelican is one of the few birds that loses its vocal powers upon reaching maturity, and the python is the only cold-blooded animal whose temperature rises several degrees above that of the surrounding air when hatching its eggs.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jordan received word Saturday that their son, Earl, who is stationed in Mississippi, has been promoted to the rank of Corporal. The Palmyra baseball team, making its initial start of the season, showed real class Sunday at Elkhorn, as they pounded out 14 hits to score a 13-8 decision over Elkhorn behind steady pitching by Lake. Next Sunday local fans will have their first chance to see Palmyra's 1942 edition when the club tangles with Beloit at the local park. Beloit also won their first game of the year, beating Edgerton 7-5, so it looks like a good game Sunday. Let's have a big crowd on hand to watch the boys.

Jacob Oleson

Jacob Oleson was born at Palmyra, Wisconsin March the 23rd, 1866 and passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Lowe of Monroe, Wisconsin May 5th at 1:25. He was married to Lucy M. Grant April the 26th, 1894. To them was born one daughter, Gertie, now Mrs. J. H. Lowe of Monroe. The deceased lived in Palmyra all his life, with the exception of the last four years. He was engaged in the mercantile business for over forty years. During that time he served on the village board and the fire department. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen and a member of the Masonic Lodge of Palmyra and was a past Master, serving as Master from 1920 and 1921. Due to ill health he disposed of his business and he and his wife moved to Monroe and made their home with their daughter. He had been in his usual health and strength up until about five days before when feeling somewhat indisposed the physician was called who did not consider his condition in any way serious. But suddenly with his loved ones about him he quietly slipped away. Thus passed a man who was universally loved and respected. In business he was obliging, kind and of the soundest business integrity. He was always ready to lend support to anything that would benefit mankind. He was an ideal citizen, a true friend and a most loving husband and father. He is survived by his wife, his daughter and husband, one brother, Isaac, three sisters, Mrs. Clifford Pett, Miss Ada Oleson and Mrs. Peter Nelson. Service was held at the Masonic Temple, Rev. A. Tucker, officiated, assisted by Rev. Don Stannard. The Masonic ritual service was conducted at the grave, Rev. A. Tucker delivering the oration. Rev. Stannard pronounced the benediction.

Mrs. Savilla Stagg

Mrs. Savilla Stagg, 78, died at 9:45 a. m. Sunday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward Brewin, where she had made her home the last 15 years. She had been an invalid with arthritis and totally blind during all her residence in the village and confined to her bed most of that time. The former Savilla King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ruben King, Farmington, was born there June 2, 1863, and spent most of her life in the town of Hebron. She was educated in the Hebron schools and in early life was a seamstress. On Feb. 24, 1890, she was married to Frank Stagg at De Soto, Wis. They spent their married life in the Hebron community, Mr. Stagg working as a day laborer. He died a year and one-half ago. Survivors are two sons, Bert Stagg, Jefferson, and Harlow Stagg, Palmyra; and three daughters, Miss Charlotte Stagg, Whitewater, Mrs. Avis Noyes, Hebron, and Mrs. Edward Brewin, Palmyra. Funeral services were held at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Smith funeral home, Palmyra, the Rev. Francis Foulke officiating. Pall bearers were Fred Heinzelmann, Otto Schinke, Wm. Bird, Bert Meracle, Cecil Meracle and Ormel Meracle. Music was by Mrs. Francis Foulke, accompanied by Miss Linda Hack. Assisting with flowers were Mrs. Fred Heinzelmann, Mrs. Roy Oleson, Mrs. Mm. Holsinger, and Mrs. Wm. Bird. Burial was in the Hebron cemetery.

Mrs. Julius Froelich

A resident of Rome all her life, Mrs. Julius Froelich, 87, died at 3:30 p. m. Saturday in her farm home. She suffered a broken hip several months ago. The former Louise Zeddie, she was born in Sullivan September 26, 1854, and was married to Julius Froelich Nov. 13, 1874. They lived on a farm just north of Rome for 50 years and then moved to a farm southwest of the village. Mr. Froelich died 13 years ago. She is survived by two sons, Sylvester and Chester, and a daughter, Cora, all of Rome; two grandchildren; and twin sisters, Mrs. John Klein and Christine Zeddie, Waukesha. Funeral services were held at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday at home and at 2 o'clock in St Luke's Lutheran church, Rome. The Rev. Herman Thedinga officiated and burial was in St Luke's cemetery. Pall bearers were Frank Behling, Robert Raabe, Arthur Pinnow, George Miller, Albert Traeder, and George Reich. Music was by Matilda Hanf, Leda Hanf, Royal Hanf, and Albert Baneck. Anne Louise Froelich, Carol Jean Ley, and Shirley Hayes assisted with flowers.

CAROLINE SDANO - ORVILLE KNUTESON WED SATURDAY

Miss Caroline Sdano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Sdano, and Mr. Orville Knuteson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Knuteson, were united in marriage at the Lutheran church of Palmyra, Saturday afternoon, May 9th at 2:00 o'clock. The Reverend E. A. Henderson performed the double ring ceremony. The bride was given away in marriage by her father. She was beautiful in her long trained ivory satin gown with lace inserts. The dress had a sweetheart neckline and the long veil had a Mary Queen of Scots headpiece. The bride carried an arm bouquet of white roses and white sweet peas. The bride's two pretty attendants were gowned in shaded blues. Helen Bordeaux, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Her gown was a light blue, having a hook skirt and her headpiece—a baby poke bonnet, was in peach. Mrs. Glen Knuteson was bridesmaid. Her gown was a shade darker blue, the skirt was net over silk taffeta. Her bonnet was in blue. Both attendants carried arm bouquets. The bride's four year old niece was flower girl. Her floor length gown and baby poke bonnet in salmon pink and her Colonial bouquet made her look like a beautiful little doll. Mr. and Arnold Sdano, brother of the bride was best man. Mr. Glen Knuteson, brother of the groom, was groom's man. The ushers were Lawrence Talbert, Joseph Knock, and Le Roy Boltz. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns, white and purple lilies and tulips. Mrs. Thelma Mason, accompanied by Mrs. E. A. Henderson, sang "I Love You Truly," and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told". A reception in the church parlors immediately followed the ceremony; about seventy-five people gathered in the wonderfully decorated parlor. A three course dinner reception was held at the bride's home in the evening, with about thirty five relatives present. Many lovely gifts were received by the happy couple. After the evening reception the couple left for a few days' trip to Chicago and Southern Illinois. The bride and groom both are graduates of the Whitewater City High School. Since then the groom has been farming and the bride was employed at the Allis Chalmers Corporation in Milwaukee.

The newly married couple will soon be at home to their friends on one of the groom's father's farms, the former Knuteson homestead. The many friends of the young couple wish them much happiness.
