The Low Down

THE LOW DOWN      ar; f; p -p M
Gen. Hershey is looking every place for men for his draft. I got an idea for him.

Out here where we hang out there is only one rural delivery per day. It is enough. Sometimes I even think it would be even better every second day. The bills we get, if they only came every odd or even day, would save half on our headaches. But in town, in the residential section, there are two deliveries each day. The idea of two deliveries got started, I guess, when some congressman had no other place to park his son-in-law. He had to get him off his hands, so they had to put two deliveries. The P. O. has been having a deficit every year, ever since.

If Gen. Hershey could get one-half of these mail carriers in the city residence sections, he could go to town—and the P. O. would not need so many barrels of red ink which they keep asking us to dig up for, every year—and which we do.

"About once in a season, you get an idea that amounts to a hoot—and this is one of 'em, says Henry.

Yours with the low down,
Jo SERRA.

From Our Boys in the Service

Ft. Bragg, N. C., Sept. 5, 1942
Dear Dad:

Thanks for taking care of my insurance and bees for me. I haven't forgotten you. I will never do that. I am just fine but terribly busy. I am so far behind in my letter writing I don't know when I will catch up. The reason for all this rush here now, is that we will soon go across and they are trying to teach us everything they can in the short time we will be here. Next time we move out it will be no maneuvers, we're going across the water somewhere, we know not when or where, and we probably won't know until we get there.

There is a general here now, who had been in the war at Bataan, he is to be in charge of taking us where we will be sent.

Please don't worry about me, Dad, I'll take care of myself and will write as often as I can. I hope we can settle this war once and for all, and settle it fast, maybe by next spring it will be over. We hope so. It seems as though the turning point of the war has been reached. Old Hitler is feeling the effects of our planes and men right now and he is going to see a lot more of them before it is over.

Except for being very busy, we are all just fine and the boys are all in almost perfect health. Of course all of us won't get out of this army and go back to our homes and live as we always have, but I guess we will have to wait a while yet.

Have you seen the Steinhoffs lately and have you heard of Bob Von Rueden, is he still in So. Carolina? When you see the Steinhoffs please say hello for me.

Well Dad, I won't be able to see you for a while, remember I am always thinking of you, and I'll be back, don't worry.

May God bless and keep you always.

Love, Frances.

P.S.—I have been advanced since I was home. I am now Corporal, receiving $66 per month, a lot better than $21, isn't it?

Watchmaker Kept Word As Well as Man Waiting!

The customer was obviously very angry as he strode into the watch-repairer's shop. "Look here!" he shouted. "I brought my watch here a month ago, and it's not mended yet." "Well, sir," said the other soothingly, "we're short-handed and spare parts are hard to get. Remember there's a war on!" To the customer that was the last straw. "I know all about that!" he raved. "But you have the impudence to display a notice in your window that watches will be repaired while you wait!" With a smile, the watchmaker retorted: "Well, you're waiting."

Spread of Forest Fires

Forest fires have traveled five miles an hour, lava has flowed at the rate of 50 miles an hour and clouds have attained a velocity of over a hundred miles an hour.

The gaily enameled unit insignia you see on a soldier's lapels and overseas cap are reproductions of his regimental shield displayed in the center of the eagle on his regimental flag. It's a part of U. S. Army tradition. Traditional, too, is the Army man's preference for Camel Cigarettes. (Based on actual sales records from Post Exchanges and Sales Commissaries.) It's the gift he rates first from the folks back home. Local dealers are featuring cartons of Camels to send to service men.—Adv.

9 Drift 48 Days On 2 Life Rafts; Eat Raw Turtle

Survivors of a Torpedoing Lose From 40 to 58 Pounds Each.

NEW YORK.—Nine men who drifted on two life rafts for 43 days in the Atlantic after their ship was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine told their story at an East coast port.

Among them were seven Norwegians, a Dane and a Swede. They were members of the crew of 44 aboard a Norwegian merchant vessel that was struck by two torpedoes in June about 300 miles off the Atlantic coast. Thirteen men were lost and the ship went down in 15 minutes. The sinking of the ship had been previously announced by the navy.

Wearing rubber life belts, coats and sweaters over their regular clothes, the 31 survivors abandoned ship and took to two lifeboats and two rafts.

Of the survivors 17, including the captain and the wounded, were in a motor boat, five in a jolly boat and nine on two rafts. The boats and rafts were lashed together at first, with the motorboat towing.

Try to Get Help. When smoke was sighted on the second day, the jolly boat set off in an attempt to get help but failed. That night the jolly boat started for land alone. On the third day the motor boat did likewise, after the captain decided it was necessary to save the wounded. Both boats reached land a week after the sinking.

The nine were left alone on their two rafts, which were lashed together by tow line. They were only 200 miles from shore, but from then on the gulf stream kept moving them seaward. The tow line kept breaking. At the end the tow line had been reduced from ten to two fathoms.

On their 16th day afloat the men sighted a ship only two miles away and sent up flares, but she failed to stop. Again on the 30th day they saw a vessel, headed straight for them and only a mile away. They ran up signals, but she turned and ran away at full steam.

"I am absolutely sure they saw us," said a spokesman. "They probably thought we were a submarine trap."

Three heavy gales drove the rafts hundreds of miles out to sea.

"When the first gale struck most of us were asleep, and we were nearly swept off the rafts," he said. "We clung to everything in sight."

Ate Raw Turtles. The men had rations that lasted three weeks, or less than half the time they were on the rafts. After that they caught fish and turtles.

"We caught three turtles, each about 50 or 60 pounds, and I guess it was the turtle fat that nourished us," said the spokesman.

They ate the fish and turtles raw, and drank the turtle blood. They also drank rain water that they caught in the sails.

The men bathed in the ocean in turns, others wielding oars to drive off the sharks that swam around the rafts.

When the rescue ship picked them up all nine were able to climb the ship's ladder without help. One dived from the raft and swam 100 yards to grasp a line thrown from the ship.

The nine, who ranged from 21 to 59 years in age, had lost from 40 to 58 pounds each. The ship's doctor found them suffering from malnutrition, but otherwise all right physically. They said the summer weather and their life suits saved them. When interviewed ashore, they had regained much of their lost weight, and were bronzed and clear-eyed.

All said they were ready to go back to sea when fully recovered.

'Hundreds' of Villages Razed in Yugoslavia

LONDON.—German and Italian troops have destroyed hundreds of villages throughout Yugoslavia in an attempt to break patriot resistance, a Yugoslav government spokesman said.

Quoting "unimpeachable" reports, the spokesman said that along the Montenegrin coast on the Adriatic, Italian warships had wrecked whole villages in the interior with incendiary bombs. In June, the spokesman said, the Italians burned 42 villages in Slovenia.

"In some provinces of Yugoslavia, villages were wiped out and farms burned to the ground," he asserted.

White Crow Reverses Adage in Illinois County

JERSEYVILLE, ILL.—The old comparison of "black as a crow" may have to be discarded in the Jersey county area, for this locality has a snow-white crow.

Last spring, according to observers, a pair of crows nested in a big tree in the vicinity of the William Schaefer farm northeast of Delhi.

When young birds emerged, three were black and one was white. The four grew to adult size.

Charles Terry, assistant cashier of the Jersey State bank, recalls seeing a white crow in almost the same neighborhood, about 40 years ago.

Fit for a King

The finest palace in India, a country famed for its palaces, is Government House, the home of the British viceroy in New Delhi, says Collier's. Costing $13,000,000 and requiring 15 years to build, this two-storied residence contains 340 rooms, 14 elevators, 227 columns, 35 loggias and 37 fountains.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Make aprons out of worn house dresses. The worn parts around the arms are cut out and the dress shaped like a big apron. Or if small aprons are desired, two can be made, one from the front of the dress and one from the back. The lower part of a short sleeve can be used for a pocket, already hemmed.

To prevent mold from growing on stored fat be sure the container is dry, cook until the moisture is all out when cooking down the fat for storing, keep in a dry place.

A rug shifted every six months so that all sections have a turn at the more traveled parts of the floor will give more years of wear.

Add a small onion, a pinch of ginger, a few cloves and a bay leaf as a gourmet trick when boiling corned beef.

Wrap cheese in a clean cloth dampened in vinegar and keep in a cool dry place.

Suede garments should be kept dry if possible. If rain does catch them, let them dry away from heat, then brush in a circular motion with a wire brush. A rubber sponge or art gum will help to keep a suede jacket clean.

I BELIEVE in nationally advertised brands. They are trusted friends in my house, for national advertising is a pledge of quality . . . a guarantee of the maker's good faith.

I believe that manufacturers who win millions of friends through advertising will never betray these friends by lessening quality . . . demanding unfair prices . . . or by substituting inferior ingredients.

I am going to show my approval by observing Nationally Advertised Brands Week*. I urge you all to join me in asking for nationally advertised brands that week . . . and every time you go into a drug store. It is the surest way to safeguard the health and happiness of your family.

Little Worries

It is the little worries more than the big sorrows which make life dark, partly because we do not arm ourselves against them. On the other hand, we do not treasure as we should the little blessings. We have so many of them that they are stupendous in total amount. They are each so beautiful as to mirror in a wonderful fashion the glory and love of the Father.

Whoever thinks about them as he should will have little time or inclination to think about the little or the big worries.

SPAGHETTI?

What's Happened To Yours, Mussolini?

ONE to feed Nazi soldiers? Something's wrong with that picture, Mussolini. Maybe you did start out with ideals, but you got into bad company.

We have spaghetti in America—plenty of it. We send some abroad to the United Nations. We also send great quantities of tomato juice, fruits, vegetables, meats . . . and still have enough left for the home front.

Yes, it's a job. We've never tried to feed half the world before and some equipment is lacking. Our food-canning industry is taxed to the limit. But we have the finest women in the world, Mussolini; they're fighting this war with kettles and spoons, pressure cookers and home-canning jars . . . preserving food at home, each for her own family. You see, it not only means a low food cost and a balanced diet—it means that commercially-canned foods can be loaded on hundreds of "food ships" for our fighting sons and brothers.

That's typical of America, Mussolini—this nation of weaklings. Come over and learn a lesson.

Colorful Velveteen Is Smart For 'Dating' or Classroom

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT IS a triumphant program that fashion seers are predicting for velveteen this fall and winter. Enchanting colors, sturdy texture, the dress-up appearance it always together with its wearableness from the utilitarian standpoint; its adaptability to versatile styling for everyone from tiny tots to fashion-minded grownups, the fact that it is not affected by the priority rulings, and many more of its virtues that might be cited, all contribute to the glory and triumph of velveteen in the fabric realm today.

The wardrobe that does not make a goodly showing of gay and handsome velveteen fashions this fall and winter will be the exception rather than the rule. So velveteen-conscious have style creators become they are vying with each other to see who can turn out the most attractive velveteen fashions. Nor does their enthusiasm end with the use of velveteen for dresses, coats and suits, for velveteen is also playing a stellar role in the accessory field.

There's a big thrill awaiting you in the stunning accessory ensembles which milliners are displaying with utmost pride. For a grand and glorious uplift to your fall suit or coat you'll find that a hat and bag two-some will come nothing short of proving ideal. These velveteen sets are to be had in lush colors that carry flattery to the 'nth degree. You can get a beret and underarm bag made of velveteen, or a chic "padre" hat over the brim of which sweeps a colorful pheasant feather. Later you will be seeing muff, bag and hat threesomes, so be on the lookout for these beguiling velveteen fantasies.

The styles pictured are utterly convincing as to the charm and the style prestige which makes velveteen one of the most to be desired fabrics that fashion has to offer this season.

There is an important style message in the dress to the left in the group illustrated above in that it is made of check-and-double-check vel-fashion seers are predicting for velveteen this fall and winter. Enchanting colors, sturdy texture, the dress-up appearance it always together with its wearableness from the utilitarian standpoint; its adaptability to versatile styling for everyone from tiny tots to fashion-minded grownups, the fact that it is not affected by the priority rulings, and many more of its virtues that might be cited, all contribute to the glory and triumph of velveteen in the fabric realm today.

It's a loveable gown to wear to "dates" and really as practical to wear to class. This handsome check-printed velveteen does honor to the cotton textile theme, for that's what it is, one of those stunning cotton materials which are a persuasive argument in favor of adopting smart cottons for winter and fall as well as spring and summer wear. This classic shirtwaist model achieves a new look with its pegtop skirt that brings discreet and flattering fullness to the fore. Unusual blouse fastenings clip on and off like the buttons on a military uniform. You can envision this dress in rich autumn green or brown or the new fuchsia tone, but there's no end to the colors available.

Shown to the right in the above picture is a swank and practical "date" costume made of spruce green velveteen, with the new hip-bone jacket length. The scallop treatment is most beguiling. Be it said also of this costume, as well as its two companion fashions, that they have been made to conform to the government fabric-saving program in every detail as issued direct from the Office of War Information. For downright practicality and the utmost chic and charm, here is a costume that will measure up perfectly to every requirement.

Fall Hats

Crowns of the new fall hats go soaring to dizzy skyscraper heights. The crown and brim of the hat at the top in the above illustration is of green stitched chenille cloth which is contrasted with the black felt brim edging and crown band. The bag is of the same green chenille cloth with a top fold of black felt.

Lace Trims Many Pastel Sweaters

For entertainment and for enlightenment as to the newer style trends, you will find a stroll about in the knitted-wear departments and shops well worth while. All signs point to an outstanding season of individual-looking sweaters.

They are doing some clever stunts with sweaters, even going so far as to trim them with lace. You'll find black lace edging or applique on the pastel sweater very effective. Then there are the jewel-bespattered sweaters you will see at evening functions this winter. You will be intrigued with the sweater that displays a gorgeous butterfly alight on the shoulder of a black or pastel knitted background.

Rich in promise is this new departure in sweater technique. One of the new effects widely employed is the use of brilliant jeweled buttons. Plastic buttons in colorful flower themes are also much in evidence on dressier sweaters.

Hat and Bag Ensembles Are Simply Irresistible

It is going to be a case of "must have" when you see the lovely and cunningly designed hat and bag sets made of superbly colorful velveteen which are so conspicuously present in this fall's millinery displays. You will find that these perfectly charming twosomes of bright velveteen are just what you have been looking for not only from the standpoint of flattery, for the hats in such beautiful colors "do something for you" at the same time that they add a new note of glamour to even the simplest suit or costume with which they are worn, but also for their practical qualities. These hat and bag ensembles can "take it."

Are You Needlessly Suffering Constipation?

Many people think that constipation is "one of those things" you must put up with. That the only thing you can do is take a purge or cathartic—and hope it doesn't come soon again. How foolish that is if you, like millions of others, have the ordinary kind of constipation that's due to lack of "bulk" in the diet.
Kellogg's All-Bran is probably just what you need! This crisp, delicious cereal has the "bulk"-forming properties your intestines need to function "regularly"! It gets at the cause of your trouble and corrects it—helps you get back to normal, easy elimination. Eat All-Bran regularly, drink plenty of water, and help free yourself from constipation. All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

Farmers Should Fill Own Nitrogen Needs

Increase of Legume Crops Stops Depletion of Soil

By growing legume crops that produce nitrogen naturally in the soil, American farmers are making it possible for Uncle Sam to use a very large amount of the commercial nitrogen supply for turning out bombs, shells and submarine depth charges with which to beat the Axis, according to a statement made public by the Middle West Soil Improvement committee.

"How essential nitrogen is in the war effort," says the statement, "may be understood from the fact that there is enough of this element in a ton of nitrate of soda to make three aerial bombs or three submarine depth charges.

"As the war progresses, more and more nitrogen will have to be diverted to the armed forces. This means that farmers will have to produce more of their own nitrogen supply through a greatly increased acreage of legumes this fall and next spring.

"Science has revealed that the air is about four-fifths nitrogen. Legumes such as alfalfa or clover have the ability to fix atmospheric nitrogen in nodules on their roots. Under proper plant food and bacterial conditions in the soil, a good crop of legumes will add over 100 pounds of available nitrogen to an acre of land, plus a goodly supply of organic matter.

It is all right by farmer Asa Ashworth, Singer, La., if the demands of war use the commercial nitrogen for explosives to put an end to the Axis. He's talking things over here with a few soldiers from a nearby camp.

"Fortunately for agriculture, the commercial supply of phosphorus and potash is sufficient to meet the needs of farmers everywhere for fertilizer. This is especially important in view of the fact that legume crops require a bountiful supply of phosphorus and potash to insure good stands and promote the fixation of nitrogen."

Cranberries

Good news for cranberry growers is the discovery of "ursolic acid" which is derived from skins discarded in the making of cranberry sauce. The acid is an emulsifying agent which helps make oil and water mix, and is so rare that it is valued at $80 an ounce.

From the oil of cranberry seeds is obtained vitamin A which can be added to other foods lacking in this vital element. Until this discovery, cranberry seeds were discarded in canning. It may be some time before either of these new products will be manufactured commercially.

Meanwhile the canning of cranberries and bottling of cranberry juice are growing industries. Experiments are under way to find a use for the wax-like coating of the cranberry.

The best land for the cultivated berry are the bogs and marshes of Massachusetts, Wisconsin and New Jersey where the bush once grew wild. The land is flooded to prevent drought, to protect the bushes from frost, and destroy insects. It is drained for the ripening and picking season.

Cranberries got their name from the trailing branches and stems curved like the neck of a crane, and the tiny flowers, shaped like a crane's bill. The original name, craneberry, was shortened to cranberry.

Home Pork Consumption

There should be a 225-pound hog slaughtered on every farm annually for each two members of the family, says Ellis V. Vestal, extension swine specialist of North Carolina State college. The average person on the farm requires about 72 pounds of pork and 15 pounds of lard each year.

The extension swine specialist recommends the selection of feeder pigs which are of a medium-weight type, and have good-sized bones.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.
It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.
When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasurable feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

On Duck Hunting

If you can say "took tooka tooka" into a duck call in the proper timbre, there are a lot of mallards that will think you are having a first chop meal of wild rice.

And if you can keep 'em thinking that until they wheel over your blind, you'll get a close up shot and probably go home with a bag of birds for your table.

Contrary to barnyard opinion, ducks don't just say "Quack"—or even "Quack-a-ack Qua-a-ack". They have a language all their own, says Russ Gaele, duck caller extraordinary and teacher of the fine art of duck calling.

"Mallards," said Mr. Gaele today, at one of the opening sessions of his calling school in Marshall Field & Company's store for men, "are as American as Cherokees and they can detect a Jap or Nazi accent easier than a University of Wisconsin professor. It is important that the caller get just the right tonal nuances to get a mallard's acceptance of an invitation to lunch."

For instance, there's a raucous holler that Gaele calls the Hi Rawl—and he's not fooling—which is the attention getter. In the list of the major calls comes the greeting call—a sort of "Hi Toots" affair that smooths the way to further conversation.

It is usually a good idea to follow a mallard call with a feeding call, he aver s. Something like the "Pauc" which, if you say "pauc" into a duck call comes out something like Donald's "Ohboyohboyohboy"—or is that the chatter?

Soldiers of Production

More than three million working days are lost each month in defense industries in the United States, largely on account of ill health. That is enough time to build 44 medium sized bombers. Much of this loss is due to inadequate diets. "It is essential that this situation be corrected," states Milton Hult, President of the National Dairy Council, "and that workers on the home front be in the best of condition to turn out the products of the factories which are needed to adequately supply the armed forces of our nation."

Dietary studies of workers' families in many sections of the country indicate however, that the average employed worker and his family consume meals far from adequate. The Committee on Nutrition in Industry of the National Research Council reports the facilities for feeding workers in industrial cafeterias are very poor at present. Only one of 33 cafeterias surveyed was in charge of a trained dietitian who knew how to provide nutritionally adequate meals. Furthermore, the workers were making poor choices even when wholesome foods were available. Vending machines or rolling carts which are sources of between meal feedings sell more soft drinks and candy than milk or fruit juices. All of this evidence indicates that the nutritional status of the industrial worker needs much improvement.

Employers, becoming suddenly alert of the importance of good nutrition among employees, have in some cases become ready victims of the vitamin campaign waged to sell synthetic vitamin concentrates. In some cases employers are passing out vitamin tablets to employees in indiscriminate fashion in the hope of quickly raising the efficiency to a higher level. The American Medical Association brands this practice as "irrational, unwise and uneconomical." The nutrition needs of industrial workers can be fully met by the proper selection of common foods such as dairy product, vegetables, fruits, eggs, meats and either whole grain or enriched cereals.

Madison—The annual get-together conference of the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture will be held at the Hotel Loraine in Madison on November 16 and 17, according to Milo K. Swanton, Executive Secretary of the Council. "The problems and responsibilities of agriculture are of such vital importance to the war effort that it is especially necessary for Wisconsin farmers to consider them and make a unified plan to meet them," Swanton said. In line with the usual procedure, there will be a general program the 16th and the Annual Business Meeting on the 17th.

NOTICE TO RETAILERS

If the labor service which you render come within the classification covered by Maximum Price Regulations No. 165, you are required to file your charges with the War Price and Rationing Board of your county. Such price statements were to be filed by September 10th, but a great number of retailers have failed to do so.

Regulations covering calculation of maximum prices on seasonal commodities, ordinarily not sold during the month of March, have been received at the local Rationing Board office and are available as long as the supply lasts. This bulletin will tell how to price items such as Christmas decorations, shot gun shells, footballs, etc., items on which you have been unable to place a ceiling price due to the fact that no sales or deliveries were made during the month of March.

While the wheat is poor, too much rain, clover, both sweet and red are best ever and alfalfa unsurpassed. The corn prospects fine. ## 4 Ways to Save

Light in Your Home

Keep lamp bulbs clean and dust free. Wipe them frequently with a damp cloth and you'll get much more light from your present lamps. This will make seeing easier and protect your eyes from strain.

If lamp shades are dark or turned yellow inside, you may be losing as much as 50 per cent of the light. Clean and brush your shades regularly. If they are too bad, replace them with new ones.

Place lamps to make light more useful. By arranging furniture, one lamp can often serve two or more people effectively. Be sure, however, that it is not too far from either one.

Turn off lights when you don't need them. Electricity and eyesight are both vital today — conserve them. Be sure you have enough light to read, sew, or study, but don't leave unnecessary lights burning.
