Local Boy in Patrol

News comes to us through the Milwaukee Journal that Lawrence Thayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Thayer is a member of a patrol in New Guinea interviewed by a Journal War Correspondent.

Five Wisconsin soldiers have just returned to this American army camp near Buna after having been part of a six day patrol in search of a certain native trail in the unmapped tropical jungle.

Corporal Lawrence Thayer, 31 of Palmyra, told me the story a moment ago and now is sitting with me in a palm thatched hut while I write this dispatch in triplicate with pencil and carbon paper.

Each man carried half a pup tent, mess kit, head net, emergency rations side arms and rifles. Several native carriers packed canned food, bully beef and hardtack. The patrol covered 60 miles.

Thayer told of the hardships encountered in the 60 mile trek. The viciousness of the mosquitoes the almost midnight darkness of the jungle.

"I never knew when I left Palmyra that I'd be doing anything like this, but I like a patrol job better than sitting around," said Thayer.

Thayer and the other Yanks here want to be on the move toward Buna. Several soldiers are having a refreshing swim on the picturesque tropical beach. There was a flurry of excitement a moment ago when a shark's fin poked up near the swimmers. Corp. Harry Hardy, an Australian, went out in a boat and sent the shark on its way with a hand grenade.—From the Milwaukee Journal by its staff War Correspondent, Robert J. Doyle.)

A Week of the War

President Roosevelt ordered the Lend-Lease Administration to make available as soon as possible, food, clothing and weapons of war to the Armed Forces and the citizens of the areas in North Africa occupied by U. S. troops. "No one will go hungry or without other means of livelihood in any territory occupied by the United Nations," the President said, "if it is humanly in our power to make necessary supplies available to them. Weapons also will be supplied to the people of these territories to hasten the defeat of our common enemies."

The late November 13 Allied Forces had extended the Algerian zone of occupation as far east as Bone, just 50 miles from Tunisia. When French destroyers at Casablanca put up strong resistance against American naval units protecting U. S. troop landings there, the U. S. surface forces and dive bombers destroyed an entire flotilla of French destroyers and light craft and left the 35,000-ton French battleship Hean Hart a burning hulk. All hostilities in French North Africa ceased November 11, 77 hours after the U. S. offensive began. In many places the local population and U. S. troops joined in Armistice Day ceremonies. The War Department said the American casualties were light.

The President described the African campaign as a smaller second front launched in lieu of a big-scale offensive against the Axis forces across the English Channel. He said that during Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Washington in June it was decided a major offensive across the Channel could not have been started until next year at the earliest. The African offensive was decided upon by the end of June. By late July the number of men necessary and point of attack had been determined, and the approximate date as set by the end of August.

Egg Laying Contest

Mr. Jack Freeman is again featuring an egg laying contest at the Hoganson & Freeman Lumber & Supply Co.

A list of the flock owners will be published in this paper, also winners' names and the records which their pullets made.

Ten per cent of your income in War Bonds will help to build the planes and tanks that will insure defeat of Hitler and his Axis partners.

WAR BONDS

Thousands of Wisconsin women will be on the march in a whirlwind campaign to make the state war bond conscious during the week of November 22 to 28, which has been designated as "Women's War Bond Week."

While some women will man war bond and stamp booths, others will conduct house-to-house canvasses, or war-bond teas, war stamp dances, parades, pageants, radio broadcasts and mass meetings. Women's War Bond Week is expected to be the greatest week in Wisconsin history. The women are determined to arouse the state as only women can, according to Mrs. George J. Ritter, of Madison. State chairman of Women's Organization on the Wisconsin War Savings Staff.

"Our goal will be to sell more bonds between November 22 and 28 than have been sold in Wisconsin in any week since Pearl Harbor," said Mrs. Ritter. "Every wage earner not in uniform will be asked to invest at least 10% of his or her wages in war savings bonds. Every housewife will also be urged to set aside another 10 per cent from her allowance."

Every organization, industry, labor union, retailer, wholesaler, newspaper and professional group is requested by Mrs. Ritter to co-operate with the "Minute Women of 1942" when they appear on the scene and ask for war bond purchases.

Sick Leave Scanty

Every teacher in Wisconsin will be guaranteed sick-leave of five days a year with the unused time accumulating up to thirty days, if the Welfare report adopted by teacher delegates at the recent state convention is enacted into law. A comprehensive report of sick-leave practices in the schools, other governmental units, and business, summarized in the current number of the Wisconsin Journal of Education is the basis of the recommendation. The study points out that in a large number of schools, especially in the smaller ones, no time is allowed for personal illness or illness and death in the immediate family. The teacher must pay the substitute most, if not all of his salary, leaving him without funds when money is most needed.

The magazine article reveals that 72 city and village school systems in the State of Wisconsin provide time off for personal illness on a cumulative basis; that is, all or part of the unused time granted in any one year may accumulate for future use up to a specified point. A total of 159 village and city schools provide a set number of days sick-leave each year but have no cumulative feature, according to the study. Twenty-three of the larger state graded schools also report no some definite form of sick-leave, and a number of other schools report no definite number of days each year but a very liberal board policy.

The section of the survey reviewing sick-leave practices in business indicates that many other occupational groups have met the problem of time off due to personal illness, or illness and death in the immediate family, much better than the schools. Certain companies grant employees having a long period of service with the company as much as a full year's pay in cases of extended illness.

No Rationing for Dobbin

"Get ready to use more horsepower," J. G. Fuller, animal husbandman at the University of Wisconsin, warned Badger farmers this week. "A pinch in mechanical power is almost certain to come. Farsighted farmers will be ready for it."

While Fuller does not envision the tractor going out of the picture, he foresees the need to strengthen farm power reserve by saving the tractor for the seasonal rush jobs it handles best.

"Rationing of fuel for motor cars is only a few weeks off. It is entirely possible that a similar curtailment, both of fuel and rubber, may be in store for the farm," The Wisconsin authority adds.

Fuller urges farmers to decide now how many horses they can profitably use, get the animals soon, and give them good care this winter to put them in good shape for heavy spring work. There's little waste in that program, he reminds farmers, because from now until spring there are jobs almost every day for the work team.

A possible rise in graft horse prices this winter should give an added reason for filling horsepower needs now, Fuller continues. Metropolitan businesses—dairy, candy and newspaper distributing agencies, for instance—are easing into horse power, he warns.

Animal power means war salvage on the farm, he concludes. Machinery and machine parts, on priorities now, prove to last longer when horsepower is used than when implements are tractor-drawn.

Military Wedding

Chrysanthemums and soft candlelight provided a background for the wedding Monday evening, Nov. 16 of Miss June Northey and Corporal Arthur Massz. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. H. Rubel at the St. Stephens Lutheran church of Concord. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The brides gown was of pure white heavy faille taffeta, fashioned on quaint and simple lines with a fitted twist basque, sweetheart neckline, and long tightly fitted sleeves, a full skirt fell into deep folds and then extended into a long court train. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion was caught from a seed pearl tiara and in her bridal bouquet were white mums and pompons.

Miss Marian Northey, her sister's bridesmaid wore a gown of pink faille taffeta. The same pink tint was repeated in her bouquet of mums and pompons. Leroy Maasz was his brother's best man. Ushers were Lyle Northey and George Hayes.

A wedding dinner was served to the family members at the home of the bride's parents.

The bridal couple left on a short wedding trip, after which the bridegroom will return to Fort Bragg, No. Carolina, where he is stationed.

Quisling Dollars

The Treasury Department has requested newspaper and radio commentators to acquaint the public with this exasperating news: The War Bond Quota for September has not been reached. And only two days to go!

By Walter Winchell
September 27, 1942

The dollar in your pocket is worth no more than the bayonets that protect it. The securities in your bank could not defend the Solomons, and they cannot defend your coastline. Only our fighting forces can; and your money is part of their legitimate weapons. Furthermore, our fighting men consider THEIR LIVES expendable. YOUR DOLLAR GETS YOU 3%.

An idle dollar is a Quisling dollar. Your men are fighting for you, and so must your money. Your government repends more on the IRON of Pittsburgh than on the GOLD of Fort Knox. And so do you! In short, when you buy a War Bond for as low as $18.75, you are putting down a bet that your country will win. Gold alone cannot WIN a war, of course. But LOVE of gold can certainly LOSE one.

The irony of this appeal to you is bitter, indeed. Any street corner faker who offered $100 for $75 would be mobbed by crowds. But your government pleads with you now and has to urge you to take FOUR dollars for THREE—in the name of PATRIOTISM!

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The government's goal is to produce synthetic rubber at a rate of more than 800,000 tons per year by the end of 1943.

Even without a war program requiring tremendous quantities of rubber, the U. S. used 648,000 tons of rubber in 1940.

Any tire made in the last two or three years is good for eight to ten years if not worn out in service.

In 1933, 900 farm tractors were sold with rubber tires and 3,000 steel wheeled tractors were changed over to rubber. Six years later 161,500 rubber-tired tractors were bought by American farmers and in addition 49,300 were converted to rubber wheels.

Following a steadily advancing position, tire life in the U. S. has roughly doubled in each of the past decades.

Lace Is Feminine, Practical And, of Course, Non-Priority

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

LACE, the indispensable item in every woman's wardrobe, is prominent in the news for winter. The flattery, the prettiness, the allure of lace has been a theme throughout the centuries for painters and poets and fashion creators, but this year lace takes on greater importance than ever in that it is non-priority. It's patriotic to wear lace.

Designers are making the most of the materials still available for civilian use and emphasizing the importance of using fabrics not needed for the armed forces. So, in addition to its magic and fascination, the wearing of lace becomes a patriotic gesture.

Lace has a way of making women look prettily feminine, as they should look to please soldiers on furlough. One of the fashion successes created to meet the wartime demand for a not-too-formal dress is the street length dance frock. Styled of lace, with special attention focused on flattering necklines, these dresses are styled according to a formula that is working like a charm (especially if the lace is filmy black).

The use of lace over color is again in fashion, black Chantilly over pink being favored. Black with chalk white is also especially chic in such combinations as a white lace skirt with a black velvet or jersey blouse top. Jewel colored laces, too, have a prominent place in the mode. The colors that lead stress the fuchsia purples and reds, and also a luminous blue that is gorgeous at night.

The dress to the left in the above illustration is fashioned of a beautiful scroll-patterned plum colored lace. It has just the right lines to achieve a suave, slim silhouette. The open throat V-neckline and the gathered sleeves contribute to the flattery of this gown. This is the type of frock that is regarded as a necessary luxury in the wardrobe of an active woman.

With velvet and velveteen suits holding the spotlight as they so definitely do this season, the lace blouse holds forth in the fashion picture in all its charm and seductive loveliness. Certain it is that there is no surer way of dressing up a suit than to glorify it with a beguiling lace blouse. The dainty blouses inset in the ovals above are furlough week-enders that will team perfectly with the new velvet suit, which will probably be black or a rich autumn color. Val edging trims the becoming neckline and mirror buttons accent the center of the scalloped front of the model pictured in the top oval. This attractive blouse comes either in chalk white lace or in ecru.

Sugar-white lace sweetens the other blouse. Here you see the favorite jacket-type blouse that carries a look of distinction all its own. The open neckline and three-quarter sleeves are smart details. Lace is frilled around the neckline, the sleeves and the edge of the blouse. Mirror buttons twinkle down the front.

It's news, too, that the new lace blouses are introducing exciting adventures in color. The column-slim dress with that "couturier" look of expert design and workmanship shown centered in the group tops a coffee-colored crepe skirt of fluid grace with a blouse done in cocoa lace over pale blue. This new color alliance is dramatic and very lovely.

Clever Beret

Smart? Well, smart is a mild word to use in describing this gem of a beret that tells you at the very first glimpse that it is a winner. It is a black felt beret, and if there is a type of hat more popular with the young set than a jaunty beret, it is yet to be discovered. The double accordion crown is a new note. The unique and amusing bright yarn treatment is right in tune with the present trend. And the wide use of yarn crochet and knit and ingenious treatments that include yarn fringe, ball dangles and hair-braid novel effects, has given to millinery a new interest.

Long Gloves

Long gloves "up to here" are back again to be worn with short afternoon gowns and cocktail dresses. Bracelets are worn over the gloves with earrings and clips to match.

Greater Farm Safety Part of War Program

Accidents Cost People $4,000,000 During '41

"I knew I shouldn't have done it," is a remark often made by accident victims after the damage has been done. And because the war now makes the full working ability of every man and woman more important than ever before, greater accident-prevention care should be taken.

Accidents cost the American people $4,000,000 in wages, medical expenses, insurance, and property damage last year. A total of 102,500 persons were killed, 350,000 permanently disabled and 8,950,000 temporarily injured.

Much has been written on how to prevent accidents, but the best remedy is individual care and thoughtfulness.

Common among the causes of accidents is placing hands between gears, chains, cutter knives, or other parts of machinery in motion. In addition to avoiding this danger, other precautions are listed as follows:

A picture of an excellent Spartanburg county, South Carolina, farm showing strip rotation of cotton and small grain, with the small grain followed by annual lespedeza.

- Do not cut toward yourself when using a knife.
- Do not climb a ladder until it is properly placed, firm and steady.
- Use a safety rope or strap when climbing a tree for pruning.
- Drive tractor and car carefully.

Field machinery will last longer if operated at moderate speed. Farm machinery and equipment, as well as industrial machinery, are now provided better than ever with safety devices.

Tung Nuts

Back in 1904, Dr. David Fairchild of the government bureau of plant industry secured a quantity of Tung nuts from China. They were planted widely in this country, in all except cold climates, and from this beginning, has sprung a new industry which aims to furnish essential quick-drying oil to the paint industry.

A bumper crop in 1940 provided 5,000,000 pounds of tung nuts with a million dollar income to growers. A narrow belt in the southern states, 50 to 100 miles wide, has been found best suited to growing tung trees.

These come into bearing in the third year. They yield nuts with woody hulls the size of small apples inside of which are from three to seven seeds. Machinery used in crushing the seeds is similar to that used for crushing oil from cotton seed, peanuts and soybeans. The residue left is pressed into cakes and returned to the grower who uses it for fertilizer.

During the last ten years, before the outbreak of the war with Japan, oil valued at ten million dollars was imported from China each year. Much of this was of inferior grade and adulterated with other oils. It has sold from 5.1 cents to as high as 27.2 cents per pound in barrels at New York. With this foreign supply unavailable, the superior American product is finding a ready market.

Mills equipped for dehulling and crushing tung seed have been established in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Is Your Food Pounding Up?

In a population of 133 million, appetites vary tremendously. There may be hearty eaters, but adding machine experts have calculated that each of us would have had on the average, 1,422 pounds of food in a year if all the food were evenly divided in the five-year period 1920-1924. In the "prosperity" years 1925-1929 the average went up 52 pounds to 1,474 pounds.

Freakish Styles

Shoes with pointed toes one to two feet long were favorites with English men during Edward IV's reign. The points were tightly stuffed with hay or moss. Put they were out-pointed by the men's shoe points in Richard II's reign. Those were so long the toes had to be fastened by chains to the knees or waist so the men could walk!

Fans were two feet wide in 18th century England, and large enough to shelter an entire family in a rainstorm. Men, as well as women, carried them. The dressier lads liked theirs frilly, with ruffles and mirrors.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS

Manufacturers and merchants sense the power of the press. Early they began using it to carry their advertising facts and ideas into homes. And they found it a most profitable way in which to tell their story to buyers. And the buyers in turn found it profitable to deal with those who were willing to state in print the values and services they offered.

Sentinels of Health
 Don't Neglect Them!
 Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.
 When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.
 Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.
 The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Regains Memory To Find She Wed Total Stranger

Entire Year Is Gone From Consciousness of a Hollywood Beauty.

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—Her second husband a total stranger, her home—even the color of her hair—foreign to her, Glory Weller Miller cannot pierce the fog of amnesia that enveloped her upon the death of her wealthy first husband nearly a year ago.
 Henry Miller, a commercial photographer, says he married the attractive 25-year-old blonde model last May 1 at Las Vegas, Nev. But Detective Lieut. B. S. Diller, who took her to Miller's studio when she was brought to the detective bureau as an amnesia victim, said:
 "I have never heard a woman scream as she screamed when I told her Miller was her husband."
 Twenty-four hours earlier Miller had reported her missing. The detective identified her from a photograph Miller left with police.

Future Undecided.
 Asked if she planned to continue as Miller's wife, she said:
 "I'll have to get my bearings. I can't say what I'll do. All I know is that I have absolutely no recollection of marrying this man. Last night he said he was going to stay here in the apartment, and he did—but he slept on that davenport over there."
 The Millers agreed that they would "live together for a while to see how it works out."
 Miller told police his wife failed to return one night from a little theater rehearsal.
 To Diller she related: "All of a sudden I found myself driving along a North Hollywood street in a strange automobile. The last thing I remember was finding my husband dead."
 Diller said Mrs. Miller told him her first husband—the only husband she can recall—was H. Pierce Weller, 60, retired Binghamton, N. Y., editor, who died November 4, 1941, at Atascadero, Calif. She walked into the elaborate 16-room home he had built for her and found Weller dead in a chair.

Amnesia Victim.
 Diller said he was convinced Mrs. Miller was a victim of amnesia when she was brought to the station.
 "I took her first to the apartment where she and Miller lived," he said. "She looked around as though she had never been there before."
 "Then she saw a suitcase. She said: 'Why, that's mine. What is it doing here?' She also recognized an old coat and a dressing gown in the apartment. The funny thing was that these all were articles she'd had in Atascadero, before her first husband died."
 "She looked in the mirror and said, 'That's not the color of my hair. My hair should be brown,'" Diller said.
 "I can't remember ever meeting Mr. Miller or marrying him in Las Vegas," she continued. "He says he met me at the Caliente races last February."
 As she talked, she recalled the existence of her diary. A later examination of the book showed Weller's death had never left her mind, for the entry of May 1, 1942, the date on which Miller says he married her, read as follows:
 "Dearest Pierce: Up at 5:30. Dressed in new wedding clothes. Off at Las Vegas. Got room in hotel. Breakfast. Went to gambling places. Henry got me a corsage. Marriage license—justice of the peace, 9:30. Champagne. Took pictures. Boarded train."

Licking From Dad Saves Boy From Court's Wrath
 DE MOINES, IOWA.—Jack Terrell, 15, appeared before Judge C. Edwin Moore for driving without a license.
 "Does your father know about this?" asked the judge.
 "Dad licked me," answered the boy.
 "Good and hard?" asked the judge.
 Tears welled up in the boy's eyes and he made it clear he could still feel the effects of the punishment.
 "The 10-day sentence is suspended," decided Judge Moore.

Steals New Wardrobe; Leaves Dirty Clothes
 PHILADELPHIA.—If clothes make the man, the thief who broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Hannigan is on the road to success. While six members of the Hannigan family were asleep on the second floor he raided the third floor, stole three suits, two extra pairs of trousers, a shirt, necktie and hat. He left behind a pair of dirty dungaree trousers, an equally dirty sweatshirt, a greasy brown peaked cap and old kid gloves.

Alibi

By CARLTON JONES

"THIS," said Captain Howe, is the most ingenious alibi it has ever been my pleasure to run across." A thin smile played about his lips. "By golly, it's lucky I can count!"
 I stared at him, and then looked at Albee, the butler, and Anna, the maid, and at John Munroe who sat at the desk in his study and at the faces of the half-dozen house guests. Any one of them might have been guilty of the murder of Harlan Bean. They all had motives. Good ones. They owed Harlan Bean money.
 It had been Albee who had summoned the police. Captain Howe and I and Medical Examiner Field and a couple of photographers went out to the Munroe place.
 Albee met us at the door, and Captain Howe made him talk before we went in to look at the body. It seems that the butler had entered John Munroe's study at eight o'clock that morning, as was his habit, and found Munroe handcuffed to his own desk. Simultaneously Anna, the maid, had discovered the dead body of Harlan Bean in another part of the house.
 Captain Howe led us into the study. John Munroe was still chained to his desk and not acting very pleasant about it.
 "Damn you, Albee, why don't you look around on the lawn and find the key to these blankety blank handcuffs?"
 "I was just going, sir, when the police arrived." He started to leave, but Howe stopped him. He nodded to one of the photographers and the man disappeared.
 "What happened?" Howe asked John Munroe.
 "How should I know? I've been chained here since three o'clock this morning." He became calmer.
 "We're having a house party. Last night everyone got pretty tight and was carousing around. About three o'clock I started for the kitchen to order Albee to bring in more liquor and someone knocked me over the head. I didn't go out, but darn near it. Whoever it was carried me down here, manacled me to the desk, and left. I yelled my fool head off, but no one heard. Then I remembered that Albee always came in mornings to straighten up the room, and so resigned myself to wait. I guess I must have slept. That's all I know."

There was an ash tray at Munroe's elbow filled to overflowing with cigarette stubs. There were ashes scattered on the floor. The master of the house must have passed an extremely unpleasant night.
 Captain Howe went outside and I followed him. "Round up the guests," he said, "and herd them into the study. I'm going to take a look at the body." He nodded to Examiner Field and they started along the corridor. Just then the front door opened and the photographer came in.
 "Found it," he said, exhibiting the handcuff key. "Shall I unlock the old man?"
 Surprisingly Howe shook his head. "No. Stay out here. Don't let him know you've found it."
 It took me a half-hour to round up the guests. There were six of them. For the most part they acted indignant, not knowing, or pretending not to know, what had happened. At last I had them all together and we went down to the study.
 Inside, Captain Howe was poking over the ash tray on Munroe's desk, paying no attention at all to Munroe's demands to be liberated. The guests sensed that something pretty serious had happened. When questioned they offered hesitating explanations of their whereabouts at three o'clock that morning.
 "Had you been in your study during the evening?" Howe asked Munroe.
 "No, you fool! I've already told you that. Now unlock these cuffs and let me get up!"
 Howe turned to Albee. "When was the last time you cleaned up in here?"
 "Last evening at seven o'clock I came in to make sure everything was all right."
 "Were there any cigarette stubs in this ash tray?"
 "No, sir. If there had been, I would have disposed of them."
 Captain Howe took a half empty pack of cigarettes from his pocket. "I found these in Harlan Bean's pocket," he said, looking at Munroe. "They're a special brand. A man who goes to the trouble of importing them wouldn't be likely to smoke any others."
 Munroe scowled. "Well?"
 "Well, there are some stubs of this brand in your ash tray."
 Munroe looked puzzled, then annoyed. "So what? What's it all about? Bean gave me a package of his special brand this evening. I smoked them all while I was handcuffed here last night. Is that unnatural?"
 "Not at all," Howe smiled. "But it is unnatural for a man to smoke thirty-five cigarettes in five hours' time."
 There was a moment of silence. Munroe licked his lips and glared. "You killed Bean, Munroe. You and he were in his study last evening, probably talking business. You got mad and shot him. No one heard the shot because the study is so far removed from the rest of the house and almost soundproof. Then you carried the body upstairs and left it and came back here and handcuffed yourself to the desk and threw away the key. You thought that would assure your alibi. It might have except for the cigarettes. If you smoked one every ten minutes for five hours steady that would only amount to thirty stubs. But you admitted yourself you slept awhile. Also, where's the empty pack from the special brand that Bean gave you?"

 Captain Howe smiled thinly. "It's the most ingenious alibi it's been my pleasure to run across," he repeated.

Figurin' Wrong

By VIC YARDMAN

WHAT we couldn't figure out was why Walt Hodges stuck on the job. You see, Harry Fontenalla, who owned the Horizontal Bar F where Walt worked, had just been acquitted of a charge accusing him of the murder of Cliff Sterling, one of his hands, who was Walt's buddy.
 We found out a week after Harry went back to the ranch, but finding out didn't help Walt much, because Walt was dead—shot three times.
 Sheriff Sam Shepard rode out to look things over. Now, Sheriff Sam was smart.
 Four of us from town, friends of Walt, accompanied the sheriff out to the Horizontal Bar F.
 "Looks like you figure on having some trouble, Sheriff," Harry Fontenalla remarked as we rode up.
 "No," said Sam. "No, I don't figure there'll be no trouble, Harry." He hooked his thumbs in his belt. "So Walt attacked yuh, eh? And you had to shoot him in self-defense?"
 "The damn little fool!" Harry blazed up suddenly, and we knew he had been drinking. "Do you know what? I think the little runt figured I killed his pardner, despite the fact that the court acquitted me. I come into the office this morning and there he was sittin' at my desk openin' drawers and lookin' into them."
 "I reckon he figured I was nowhere around, 'cause when I spoke he whirled, an' went for his gun."
 "And you shot the gun outter his hand?" said Sam.
 "Yeah. I shot the gun outter his hand and then plugged him twice more. So what? That's self-defense, ain't it?"
 "Yeah," said the sheriff, "that's self-defense, all right, Harry. Let's go take a look at Walt."
 So he went into the office and there was Walt sprawled out on the floor. Sam knelt down beside him and examined the wounds. He looked at the hand wound the longest, then he looked at Walt's gun, which was lying in a corner of the room.
 "You boys wait here," Sam said. "I'm going down to the bunk house."
 "I'm going with you," said Harry, looking ugly.
 Sam hesitated. Then he said: "All right. Don't know as I can stop you. You boys come along, too, if you want."

So we all followed Sam down to the bunkhouse and watched while he went through Walt's belongings. Then Sam led us out to the corral and hunted around and pretty soon he found a bullet hole in one of the fence boards.
 "Harry," he said. "This will make the second time I've had to accuse you of murder within a year. This time I don't figure you can get out of it."
 "No?" said Harry, his lips sneering, his eyes full of insolence. "You were just as sure the last time, Shepard."
 "There's a bullet hole over there in the corral fence," said Sam. "Now I figure that's one of the bullets you shot at Walt. I figure the murder took place down at the corral."
 "I figure you and Walt had words. I figure he was in here ropin' out his horse. I figure he had a rope in his hand an' couldn't get at his gun very handy, if he wanted, which gave you a good chance to shoot him down."
 "I figure," says Sam, "that the fact that Walt kept on here was drivin' you nuts, because you knew he thought you killed his partner. You didn't dare fire him because of the way it would look. So you killed him."
 "Hold on now, Harry. I'll explain how I know. I know that Walt had a rope in his hand when you shot him because there are some fibers embedded in the wound in his hand. Anyways, if Walt had a rope in his hand he couldn't have had a gun, and if he didn't have a gun, you couldn't have shot him in self-defense. See?"
 Now, Harry was drunk, and when he's drunk he's crazy. At any rate Sam's "figurin'" must have touched off the necessary spark. He reached for his guns and reached fast. It was only the fact that four of us were standing near enough to grab him that saved Sheriff Sam's life, I reckon. It was a dead give-away.

HERE is a hooked hearth rug that may some day grow up to room size. So far every female member of the family has hooked at least one square, and the males are all represented by materials from cast-off suits, socks and sweaters. The turquoise flowers and red cherries in the alternate squares are from dyed pieces of the old cream colored wool blankets.
 Twelve-inch squares of burlap overcast around the edge make the foundation pieces. Patterns for the repeat design were cut from paper and the burlap was marked by drawing around these with wax crayon. Loops of fabric strips were drawn through with a steel rug hook. Red was used for the curved lines shown at the upper left. Tones of brown for the flower and gray for the cherry background. Mixed colors for the rest of the design.

Treat Constipation This Gentler Way!

Many folks say that almost as bad as constipation are harsh cathartics and purges. That's because many medicinal laxatives work this way: they either prod the intestines into action or draw moisture into them from other parts of the body.
 Now comes news of a gentler and pleasanter way of treating constipation, for the millions of people with normal intestines whose trouble is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. This way is by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, a crisp, delicious cereal, and drinking plenty of water. ALL-BRAN, unlike many medicinal laxatives, acts principally on the contents of the colon and helps you to have easy, normal elimination. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, better see your doctor.

Witness Exerted Himself A Bit to Put It Nicely

During the progress of a lawsuit, a witness was cross-examined regarding the habits and character of the defendant.
 "Has Mr. M—a reputation for being abnormally lazy?" asked counsel, briskly.
 "Well, sir, it's this way—"
 "Will you kindly answer the question asked?" struck in the irascible lawyer.
 "Well, sir, I was going to say it's this way: I don't want to do the defendant an injustice, and I won't go so far as to say he's lazy exactly; but if it required any voluntary work on his part to digest his food, he'd die from lack of nourishment."

If you have any doubt at all what to give that fellow in the service, send him a carton of Camel cigarettes for Christmas. According to latest surveys, cigarettes top his gift list, with Camel his favorite cigarette, according to actual sales records from Post Exchanges and Cantens. If he smokes a pipe, send him a pound of Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco—the National Joy Smoke. Local dealers are featuring Camels in the Christmas-wrapped carton and also in a holiday box of four "flat fifties" (either way you give 200 Camels).
