TRAFFIC LAW FOR WAR WORKERS

One war worker, writing to the motor vehicle department, complained that local police were too strict in enforcing speed laws. He contended that his work should allow him to exceed the speed laws, at least when he was in a justifiable rush.

Much as the war workers efforts are needed and appreciated, the laws must be obeyed for the safety of other motorists and pedestrians, many of whom also are vital war workers.

'Once Bitten, Twice Shy'— So Goes the Old Adage

Getting ready to perform his final and greatest feat, the local amateur magician stepped out to the edge of the platform and said:

"For the purpose of my next trick, which I assure you will be a good one, will some gentleman in the audience kindly lend me his hat? Will you, sir?" he added persuasively to a man in the front row.

But the man in question clutched his hat firmly with both hands and shook his head.

"I will not," he retorted indignantly, "not until you return the lawnmower you borrowed last summer."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Super War Board Spurs National Effort; Russians Press New Caucasus Drive; Dual-Threat Allied Bomb War Blasts Nazi War Plants and Italian Ports

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Up the Yangtze river toward China's capital Chungking a powerful Jap offensive had moved. The area in black on the map above indicates the forward extent of the Jap movement. Although Chinese troops succeeded in blunting the drive at various points, the menace to China's future participation in the war still remained.

EUROPE:

Bombs Move Factories

As Allied bombers continued to plummet destruction on Axis European industrial and transportation centers, evidence mounted that the Nazis were seeking to cushion the impact of these raids by moving their war industries to less vulnerable spots in Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Austria.

The dispersal of German industry eastward was further indicated by the fact that Allied reconnaissance had disclosed no effort to repair or clear such key installations as the Focke-Wulf aircraft works in Bremen or the Renault plant near Paris wrecked by Allied bombs weeks ago.

Grimly and steadily, however, the Allied airmen continued their mission of disaster as Axis city after city was checked off the schedule. Examples of this thorough job were Dusseldorf and Dortmund, coal and transportation centers of northwestern Germany, where 4,000 tons of bombs were dropped on successive nights by the RAF. The munitions-making city of Essen was likewise blasted again, while daring RAF Mosquito bomber pilots penetrated to the central German city of Jena, home of the Zeiss factories making optical instruments for the Nazis.

Meanwhile, invasion's prelude was paced by a series of port-wrecking raids by U. S. and British planes from French Africa on Italian shipping cities.

CHINA:

Jap Drives Menace

Chinese official observers had frequently warned United Nations headquarters that a collapse of their resistance against Japan was possible unless Allied air and military aid was speeded up.

The stark truth of these warnings became evident as a four-pronged Japanese drive along the Yangtze river had reached within only 275 miles of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's capital of Chungking.

Doggedly the Chinese defenders had contested every mile of territory with the invaders, even winning local successes in some areas, notably Ichang where Chiang's soldiers had blunted the enemy drive.

But the threat of Nippon's might was still poised within striking distance of Chungking and the Allied high command still faced the problem of abating that threat.

RUBBER:

Strikers Go Back

Back to their jobs in Akron, Ohio, streamed 51,500 rubber workers following a curt ultimatum from President Roosevelt that ended a five-day strike stopping essential wartime rubber production.

Termining the walkouts "inexcusable" and a "flagrant violation of the no-strike pledge," the President had warned that "necessary steps would be taken to protect the nation's interests" unless the strikes were terminated. The President acted after the dispute was certified to him by the War Labor board.

Earlier, national CIO officials had urged the strikers to return to their jobs.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

BATH KNIGHTS: Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gen. Douglas MacArthur were appointed honorary knights of the Grand Cross Order of the Bath by King George of England.

FLOOD AID: Expenditure of $55,000,000 for rehabilitation work in the flood-stricken areas of the Middle West was proposed by Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois.

MOBILIZATION:

Super Board Formed

President Roosevelt's appointment of James F. Byrnes as director of the newly formed Office of War Mobilization meant that now the home front would be marshalled behind the war program on a scale hitherto undreamed of.

Coming after the historic series of conferences between the President and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain the establishment of the Office of War Mobilization marked a significant milestone. For now the responsibility for production, procurement, transportation and distribution of military as well as civilian supplies, materials and products was vested in one man—James F. Byrnes and the committee working with him. That committee included Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of Navy Knox, Harry Hopkins and WPB Director Donald M. Nelson and Judge Fred M. Vinson who succeeded Byrnes as economic stabilization director.

RUSSIA:

Red Power Rises

After the Nazis had tested the Reds' mettle on four separate sectors from Veliki Luki on the north to the Caucasus on the south, the Russians themselves provided the fireworks by hurling 150,000 infantry and tank men in a vast assault against the Axis Kuban lines in the Caucasus.

While early Russian accounts of this movement were characteristically laconic, a Berlin radio dispatch conceded that the first Russian waves had thrust the German lines back more than a mile on the Kuban front protecting Novorossisk and added that Nazi defenses were taking a terrific battering everywhere along their last remaining Caucasus foothold. Berlin said the Reds employed 10 divisions, at least 170 tanks, 200 planes and strong artillery forces.

Whether this Russian move heralded the long-awaited summer battle was still a matter of conjecture among observers.

UNITY:

French Leaders Agree

Unification of French leadership with all conflicting forces submerged in the grand task of liberating the empire was a dream that had had many nightmare interruptions. But with a spirit of give and take evident among the Giraud and DeGaulle forces themselves and with persistent urging from the United States and Britain, the dream had become a reality.

Gen. Charles DeGaulle, Fighting French leader, hailed the new era in a radio broadcast on the eve of his historic trip from London to Algiers to meet General Giraud.

"Union of the empire will be accomplished," he said. "When it is realized how this is done in the face of difficulties . . . then one's respect for France and one's faith in her destiny will become even greater. . . . We have paid heavily enough for our absurd division to be convinced we shall emerge from the abyss only by uniting."

LANDING CRAFT: President Roosevelt signed legislation authorizing the construction of one million tons of landing craft and special boats at a cost of $1,700,000.

TOLERANCE: The Junior Chamber of Commerce of Odessa, Texas, asked the city council to adopt a resolution eliminating the first syllable from the word "dumyankee."

CASUALTIES:

U. S. Losses Light

Balancing Axis versus American casualties in the Tunisian campaign, Secretary of War Stimson found the scales overwhelmingly in favor of the United States. The North African victory cost the United States 18,558 casualties, including 2,184 killed, 9,437 wounded and 6,937 missing or taken prisoner.

Axis casualties amounted to 323,000, or 18 times the American total. German and Italian losses included 30,000 men killed and 26,400 wounded, with another 266,000 taken prisoner. In comparison, over-all Allied losses were less than 70,000.

In addition to prisoners, the Allies captured tremendous quantities of military supplies, including large numbers of aircraft and many naval vessels, he said. Despite small American losses Stimson said the Tunisia campaign had developed nothing to cause the high command to reduce its manpower estimates under which the army is expected to total 8,200,000 men.

ALEUTIANS:

Cleanup on Attu

Even as a senatorial committee was digesting a report that Japan would send a naval and land invasion force against continental United States this summer, American forces in the Aleutians were pursuing a relentless cleanup of enemy detachments on Attu island.

Purveyor of the tidings of Jap offensive intentions was Kilsoo K. Haan, Washington representative of the Korean National Front federation, who had established a record for prophecy by warning two months in advance of Jap plans to attack Pearl Harbor. Burden of Haan's report was that Admiral Tojo had disclosed plans for this offensive at a party in Tokyo at which Korean spies had been present.

In the Attu engagements, bayonets and hand grenades in the hands of American infantrymen had taken the place of trench mortars and automatic rifles, as the few resisting enemy were pressed into a narrow area from which escape was impossible.

WHITE HOUSE:

African Precedent

The late Booker T. Washington had been a dinner guest of President Theodore Roosevelt in 1901, but Edwin T. Barclay, president of Liberia, was the first member of the Negro race to spend the night in the White House as the nation's guest.

Head of the Negro republic of Liberia founded by repatriated African freemen after the Civil war, Barclay was repaying President Roosevelt's visit to him after the Casablanca conference last January. Including his meeting with high government officials and members of the cabinet, as well as his address before the house and senate, President Barclay received the full honors accorded all top-ranking foreign dignitaries.

RAIL WAGES:

Nonoperating Upped

Wage increases of eight cents an hour recommended by an emergency fact-finding board of the National Railway Labor board panel for more than 900,000 nonoperating employees will increase the rail industry's annual wage bill by approximately $204,000,000, authoritative transportation sources estimated.

The 15 nonoperating unions had asked an increase of 20 cents an hour, with a minimum wage of 70 cents an hour and the union shop. The board declined to recommend these proposals. Subject only to approval by Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes, the board's recommendations were retroactive to February 1.

The wage increases, a report of the board said, are "the minimum noninflationary adjustments necessary to correct gross inequities and to aid in the effective prosecution of the war."

'NEW DIKES':

To Stem Inflation

From the obscurity in which his retirement had shrouded him, Leon Henderson, former OPA director, emerged to warn the nation that "another set of dikes" is needed to dam what he called the rising tide of threatened inflation in the United States.

"New dikes, new types of controls, new kinds of exercise of power over production and distribution and over credit are bound to be needed," he said in a speech before the National Association of Purchasing Agents' convention.

Henderson declared that if congressional, private or executive action "are insufficient to dam the flood of hot spending power," a credit control agency "is plainly indicated and cannot long be avoided."

WAR PROFITS:

Contractors Curbed

Smaller profit margins for war contractors loomed ahead as the war department's price adjustment board reported the elimination of nearly $2,000,000,000 of what it termed excess profits through the renegotiation of army contracts.

The savings to the government represented readjustments on contracts covering 1941 and 1942 business to date. It was estimated that 1943 savings would be bigger.

Who's News This Week

By Delos Wheeler Lovelace

Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—Some day a hard-pressed U-boat commander may surface to find a dozen airplanes riding herd on his craft in mid-ocean. If he finds, in addition, a mother blimp drifting aloft until her birds do their job and come back to roost, all the blame will be Rear Admiral Charles E. Rosendahl's.

Looks as If This Backer of Blimps' Moment Is Nigh

Rosendahl, a captain but up for promotion, has been ordered back to his favorite post, the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N. J., after a tour of sea duty. All through this war he has been asking for blimp plane-carriers.

Since the wreck of the Shenandoah Rosendahl has been accepted as one of the best informed men on lighter-than-air craft. When that big dirigible broke in two he drifted away in the bow section, no motors, no rudder, no anything. He and a few helpers free-ballooned the fragment until he could land her.

Rosendahl is a Chicago-born citizen of Texas who finished Annapolis '14, served eight years on surface craft and then volunteered for a tour at Lakehurst, then as now the navy's chief station for experiments with dirigibles.

He helped develop the stationary and mobile stub masts, he worked out mooring problems and ground-handling and he never stopped preaching the virtue of the big gas bags.

For a long time, catastrophes, such as the loss of the Los Angeles, the burning of the Hindenburg and the Shenandoah accident kept him from getting far. But now congress has ordered 200 blimps for anti-U-boat work.

YEARS ago the Kansas City baseball team was in a slump and had no bat boy to boot. Somebody remembered a smart kid making Bat Boy to Baker in the In 13 Steps; Now freshment Deputy Food Chief stand. That afternoon the team sprayed hits all over, won hands down and the kid got a steady job, though he had to quit finally because he needed more money.

Now the War Food administration, judged by some to be slumping and certainly lacking a deputy administrator, remembers the same kid, a solid citizen these days, and E. Lee Marshall is drafted again. Since the old Kansas City days, Marshall has held a baker's dozen of jobs and in his last was, actually a baker. He quit the chairmanship of the Continental Baking company to go with the food administration.

He was born on a Missouri farm 58 years ago. When he was only 20 years old he owned his own food brokerage company. Later he managed a bakery, and after a merger was called east to become, eventually, head of Continental.

He is a big man, and a nose flattened at the tip lends an accent of good nature to his round aggressive face. On his family tree is a notable ancestor, John Marshall, first chief justice of the Supreme court.

IN THIS year of grace the Bellamy blueprint for Utopia is like Hitler's uglier new world, behind schedule. After "Looking Backward"

75, He Heads Big Project for Less Than $1 Per Year reached its first wide-eyed readers Bellamy, in 1888, figured that 50 years would be plenty for his happy revolution. Fifty-five have rolled along and we haven't even those superheterodyne houses, state-owned and suited to the tenant's "taste and convenience wholly."

Closest to them, maybe, are the different but promising projects of the private enterprise Bellamy snubbed. Consider the huge new construction with which the Metropolitan Life Insurance company and Chairman Frederick H. Ecker, mean to revive a blighted East side area on the still far from Utopian island of Manhattan.

This will be a major unit in a nation-wide apartment community program that Chairman Ecker is directing at the age of 75. And he is working for nothing.

He is working for only a little less than he got when he joined Metropolitan 60 years ago. He was a $4 a week office boy then. At 20 he had charge of all the company's real estate transactions and later was the treasurer and finally, president.

Two generations back, the Ecker family made their home in Alsace. That was the Jacob P. Ecker branch. Jacob served with one of Napoleon Bonaparte's generals. He came to this country when his son John was but seven years old. When the Civil war broke out, John fought in 32 engagements, on the Union side. He was left for dead once, but lived to become a major. When peace came, he moved from Phoenicia, in upstate New York, to Brooklyn. Here young Frederick went to school until he was 15 years old, then took a job as office boy with the Metropolitan.

Ready for Anything

After the optician had tested the professor's eyes and found them wanting, he asked:

"And now, sir, which shall it be—eyeglasses or spectacles?" "Spectacles, please; and I think I'd better have three pairs."

"What ever for?" demanded the optician in surprise.

"Yes," said the professor; "one pair for home and one for my office, and a third pair to look for the other two."

That Nagging Backache May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up at night, leg pains, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass out the waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Applying Varnish

Question: In spite of all the dilligent trials, it has been impossible for me to master how to apply varnish over stained wood without showing infinite little bubbles as big as pin heads. The surface was cleaned and stained properly. What kind of precipitate are these spots? I would go to any limit in order to learn how to varnish.

Answer: To get good results in varnishing, the room in which the work is done should be free of dust and the temperature not less than 70 degrees. The brush should be of a good quality and a kind intended for varnish. Do not shake the can of varnish; this is one of the causes of air bubbles in the finish. Pour enough varnish into another can to last a half hour or so. The brush should not be dipped into the varnish more than one-half the length of the bristles. Do not wipe off surplus on the edge of the can, but throw it off. Varnish should be applied in straight strokes in one direction and with the grain. After applying the brush full of varnish, go over the same area with the empty brush to carry the varnish forward and to spread it into a thin coat. "Slapping" the brush against the surface may also cause air bubbles to form on the surface.

Fixing a leaky faucet by the simple process of putting a new washer in the offending tap. This phase of the art of plumbing can be performed very handily by any woman who sets her mind to it.

Metal Window Sill

Question: What should be done to the paint on a metal window sill that peels every year?

Answer: Remove the paint down to the bare metal. Rub down well with sandpaper, then wipe with turpentine. Apply a prime coat of good quality red lead paint and allow it to dry for at least a week. Finish with a coat of enamel undercoat, then with a coat of top quality quick-drying enamel. These paints should come from the same manufacturer.

Leak in a Boiler

Question: I have a hot water heating plant about seven years old. Last year I had an oil burner installed and it operated satisfactorily all winter until recently. A small leak has now developed on the side of the boiler near the bottom. Can this be welded or brazed?

Answer: Yes, it can be welded. Or you may be able to repair the leak with iron cement. Your local hardware dealer should be able to supply you with the proper grade.

Moth Killing

Question: I have a fur coat, so badly damaged by moths that it is not worth repairing. I should like to use it as a laprobe in my car, but am afraid the moths will get into the upholstery. What could I do to the coat to make this impossible?

Answer: Having it dry cleaned will kill all life in the coat. The treatment should be repeated later in the spring before putting the coat away.

Scratches in Glass

Question: How can I remove slight scratches from a glass surface?

Answer: The work can only be done by dealers in plate glass and mirrors, who have the machinery for this type of work.

Shelf Hangers

Question: How can I hang shelves on concrete cellar walls?

Answer: At a hardware store you can get appliances for that purpose; plugs to drive into holes, and other devices.

Camp Life Thrills
And Naval Drills
For Boys 12 to 15

A limited number of boys between 12 and 15 years will enjoy six weeks of camp life and naval drill this summer, on the beautiful 75-acre campus of Northwestern Military and Naval Academy, Lake Geneva, Wis. It was at this institution that the idea of motorized war equipment was developed more than forty years ago.

Naval uniforms and a variety of interesting maneuvers will be provided for this summer course. Included in the schedule are cutter drills, signal reading by semaphore, competitive swimming, body-building exercises, and other activities of seamanship and sport.

The boys chosen will have excellent camping facilities, good meals and the companionship and counsel of instructors of high moral character and technical ability.

The camp is situated on one of America's most delightful lakes, easily accessible for relatives and friends. Parents desiring to give their sons the advantages of constructive, wholesome training, with enjoyable camp life, are invited to write the Academy for particulars. Reservations close July 1st.—Adv.

Presidents' Widows

Here is a bit of information which may surprise you. There are six wives of former Presidents living today. Moreover, they are doing their bit in the war effort by helping out in the sale of war stamps and bonds.

Oldest of the former Presidents' wives is Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, who is 84. The other five are Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Thomas Preston, formerly Mrs. Grover Cleveland, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge.

ON THE HOME FRONT
with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

MANY a bride today is doing her furniture shopping in second hand stores where she finds a choice selection of the over-elaborate discards. These are not antiques and it takes a discerning eye to see any possibilities of beauty in them. The trick is in figuring out good proportions and modern comfort.

Chintz covers will hide padding over woodwork and carving. Legs may be cut off to give a low seat and if the back legs are cut a little shorter than the front, the backs of chairs and settees are given a comfortable tilt. Here, a loosely stuffed seat cushion fills in the edges of the rounded spring seat. Narrow cotton fringe trims the flowered cover and the resulting piece is full of informal charm.

NOTE—Do furniture transformations fascinate you? You will find some exciting new ones in BOOKS 9 and 10 of the series of booklets offered with these articles.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Improper brake adjustment is a rubber-waster. Have your brakes checked regularly. If one wheel "takes hold" before the others, its rubber carries the full brunt of stopping the car, with resultant excessive rubber wear.

In their search for rubber substitutes, scientists are now probing myrcene, a turpentine derivative discovered about fifty years ago. The list of rubber "sources" is growing almost daily.

It is expected that the 1943 harvest of crude rubber in the United States will total 600 tons, all guayula. Normally this country consumed about 600,000 tons of rubber a year.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Here is a way to prevent loose casters from dropping from the furniture when it is moved about. Put melted paraffin in the hole and insert the caster before it is set.

Odors on the hands resulting from peeling and slicing onions can be removed by washing the hands in vinegar.

Use a potato ricer to squeeze out that hot compress. With it you can use water much hotter than your bare hands can stand.

To save time and hosiery, just rub paraffin on the inside of the toes of your stockings. You will have no darning to do for a long time and one application lasts through many launderings.

Weekly News Digest

Calling upon retailers of women's rayon hosiery in Wisconsin to observe strictly dollars and cents ceiling prices placed into effect on such stockings May 15, the Office of Price Administration at the same time assured merchants that OPA will watch operation of this regulation closely to determine whether inequities result.

The War Production Board sub-regional office in Milwaukee urges homeowners to act immediately to insulate their homes as a fuel conservation measure for next winter, if they already have not done so. WPB estimates that home conditioning can save a third of fuel consumption. In many instances the insulation job can be done by the homeowner himself.

Price panels and panel associates, integral units in OPA's new plan of increased consumer participation in price and rationing programs, are being named for local War Price and Rationing Boards throughout Wisconsin. Typical scene of this new activity is Milwaukee county, where 800 panel associates, enlisted from the ranks of consumers, already have been named. This number will be increased to about 1,200.

Questionnaires being mailed to Wisconsin operators of commercial vehicles in connection with the Office of Defense Transportation's nationwide recheck of truck gasoline are to be filled out and returned to the proper ODT district offices by June 1, ODT says.

Parents intending to enroll children in summer camps this year are asked by the ODT to make travel arrangements now, due to wartime curtailment of civilian transportation.

Any Wisconsin man in the armed service may apply for Government insurance without a medical examination under a special plan continuing in effect through August 10, according to Major P. G. Froemling, manager of the Veterans Administration Facility, Wood, Wis.

After Tuesday, June 1, fleet operators of commercial vehicles no longer are required to maintain tire records on the back of unit Certificates of War Necessity. Under the new ruling, however, they must maintain completed records elsewhere, such as in the terminal or main office, ODT says. Truckers also are reminded that tires must be inspected every 60 days or 5,000 miles, whichever is first.

They often say we were all born with equal chances, but one might add that along comes marriage and changes our status.

CHILDREN FIRST
The subject of Children's Day brings up the thought of the different ways folks in Palmyra raise children. Some youngsters go unrestrained so that they may develop character and assert their individuality, some parents explain. Surely though there still remains the necessary method some place along the line, of developing character by guidance, by pointing out tactfully the need of self-control and restraint. Developing their own resources and standing on their own feet is necessary, but childish feet slip and how splendid that when very young there are parents there to guide and steer. Later on when man's estate demands they work those problems for themselves, they will have had this early training for it. Children need to be shown and it doesn't kill initiative or detract from ambition but being impressionable they will be benefited by the loving control.

COMMISSIONER TROUBLES

DAIRY PRODUCTION CONTEST
George Wright has been named chairman of the county dairy production contest committee which will select a county champion to compete in the state contest at the State Fair, Aug. 21-27, it was announced Wednesday by Horace L. Burl, manager of the Jefferson County Fair.

Serving with the chairman on the county contest committee are the following: T. J. Freepartner, Jefferson; John Fuetz, Milford; Mr. Jensen, Fort Atkinson; Clifford Merriman, Jefferson; Glenn Pacey, Jefferson; and O. T. Olson, Fort Atkinson.

Winners in the county contest will receive special recognition at the Jefferson county fair, August 5-8. The county dairy production king will be given a trip to the Wisconsin State Fair where he will compete for the Governor's trophy to be awarded the state production king. Eight cash awards are being offered by the Jefferson county fair.

The local prizes are as follows: First, $25.00; second, $15.00; third, $10.00; fourth, $5.00; fifth, $5.00; sixth, $5.00; seventh, $5.00; eighth, $5.00.

Every dairy plant in the county is entitled to nominate production king candidates, according to chairman Wright of the county contest committee. The basis for nomination is the percentage increase in milk production during the 4 months ending July 1, 1943 compared to the same period a year ago. Other factors are also considered.

MAD HATERS!

Each year we think we have seen everything in the way of hats but again this season in Palmyra we are again wordless in amazement. Men don't change their hats much from felt to straw and from plain hat band to faintly figured silk or maybe just a wee little feather. But look at what the women are doing with their headgear this spring if you want a change of scenery! There are those things they call snoods that hang to the shoulders and are like big nets now they are fastening them full of flowers and bows. Look at the little skull caps with enormous bunches of flowers or birds perched on top to sway and nod and even almost chirp, behind the lady's pompadour. And the veils are loose and full and flowing or tied in big bows and caught tightly under the chin. But our Ladies, God bless 'em, are still as pretty as a picture.

One thing about not having vacation this summer, you won't go through the peeling process after the burn.

Senator Wiley

This country has been the host to kings and princesses and prime ministers, but now we are entertaining a president. The president's name is Edwin Barclay. He is a negro, and he is from Liberia.

Liberia is on the coast of Africa situated at the Atlantic narrows where the African continent faces Brazil.

Every school child knows the story of Liberia. It was set up as an independent government in 1847, and its capital, Monrovia, was named after our fifth president. This country was first colonized by American freed slaves nearly a century and a quarter ago.

We have American troops, airports, and installations in that country.

OUR JOB

While our boys are fighting on the seven seas and on all the continents of the globe, and we at home are producing the planes and the war material, the ships, and the arms which are needed to carry on the conflict, we have another job to do of equal importance. It has three segments.

The first is to make certain that we do not have a runaway inflation. This calls for no stampede buying, no buying in black markets, paying 50% of our war costs in taxes and financing the balance by individual buying of bonds.

The second segment requires that we do not generate class hatred or a race hatred in this country. Other countries went to pieces on that rock. It is very important that we now antidote any tendency in that direction.

The third segment requires that we do our part now to prepare for the post-war era. This calls for clear thinking, simplified thinking, unbiased and poised thinking, because the post-war will have great economic challenges, great social challenges, and great international challenges.

There will be room and need for the action of both the idealist and the practical man, but they must learn to work together.

SENATE BILL 883

The Commerce Committee of the Senate has been holding hearings on my bill, S. 883, which would create an Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Small Business.

There seems to be no apparent opposition to this bill, and I hope that it won't be long before it comes the law of the land.

I feel that in the post-war period it will be very vital to have someone representing the middle class of America in Washington. That is what the small businessman is.

Passing the bill would be a move toward preserving the system of free competitive enterprise in the United States now and in the post-war period.

THE QUARTERMASTER CORPS

There was brought to my attention on a recent visit to an army camp, the many valuable results which are going to come from basic military training. The camp I visited was a quartermaster replacement training center. Here the trainee learns many military techniques by means of lectures, training films, demonstrations, and actual practice.

But what was more significant to me was to see the amount of technical skill which is acquired by many of the boys. Many of them are trained to become first-class bakers, cooks, and mess sergeants. Others become technical workers in canvas, webbing and upholstery repair work, while others become very proficient as carpenters, cabinet-makers, and mechanics.

Those who take the electrical course receive knowledge in the fields of interior wiring, motors and generators, motor control equipment and power transmission. Another school trains men to become plumbers, steel fitters and sheet metal workers.

I also observed how men become very proficient shoemakers, shoe and leather repair workers, and specialists in refrigeration and cold storage. Others again take the blacksmith and welding school course.

All of this means that in the post-war period many men who come out of the service will be better equipped to meet the problems of civil life than when they went in.

The battle today will go as the supply goes. Any offensive action is geared to the speed and efficiency of supply. The men in the quartermaster corps not only furnish what the men in action need, but they defend the movement of those supplies from their point of origin to their destination.

MEMORIAL DAY

This year I was privileged to be the speaker at the Battle Ground National Cemetery at Brightwood in the District of Columbia.

The danger was very serious because Grant had taken most of his men in the march on Richmond. Every man in Washington was utilized for the defense. Veteran reserves, district volunteers and all available sailors and marines were called out. All the men that could be spared were drawn from the forts south of the Potomac.

The situation was so serious that the sixth corps was sent back from Richmond to aid in the defense of Washington. President Lincoln, who had been at Fort Stevens in the morning, drove to the wharves and met this corps. They cheered him and he warmly greeted them, and then the corps marched to the firing line, up past the Smithsonian Institution, the Patent Office, the Post Office, to the north of the city—and Washington was saved.

CONSERVATION NOTES

Although the opening of the general black bass season is more than a week away, these fish have been giving a preview of the season to come by taking baits intended for legal fish. Fishermen angling for walleyes, northern pike and panfish contend the pre-season black bass are a nuisance. They will become welcome bait-grabbers on June 20 when they become legal game in most Wisconsin waters. The black bass season does not get under way until June 25 in the Menominee river in Florence and Marinette counties. The last of the black bass seasons, July 1, applies to Green Lake, Lakes Michigan and Superior, Green bay and the Fox river from its mouth to the dam at DePer. The late season applies to the popular bass waters around the Door county peninsula.

SOUTHERN MUSKIES

Muskies promise to be at least an occasional surprise catch in southern Wisconsin waters this year. One was reported taken in Koshkonong shortly after the season opened. Mendota, one of Madison's lakes, is expected to produce some muskie catches this year as a result of stocking over a period of years. Reports of excellent early season fishing are coming to the conservation department from a number of points, including Delavan, Lake Wisconsin, Lake Koshkonong, and the Horicon neighborhood.

REJUVENATE LAKES

Three Bayfield county lakes have undergone major operations and are on the way to again becoming bass lakes—such as they were originally. The small lakes, Long, West and East Twin Lakes, were among the best bass lakes of the county 60 years ago. Then they were stocked with carp, crappies, perch, and pike. The result was that the lakes degenerated to the point where few took the trouble to fish on them. The small size of the lakes made it possible to kill out all of the fish they contained in order to make a new start. The work is being done by the biology division of the conservation department. Two of the lakes were once noted for their small mouth bass and the other one for its large mouth bass.

THE PHEASANTS

More than 300,000 pheasant eggs have been produced at the state game farm, Poynette, to date and the flow of baby chicks to cooperators who will rear them to release age continues. Cooperators are continuing a large scale pheasant program in spite of the fact that many of the sportsmen have been drawn into the armed forces and other war work.

NO STOPPING THEM!

Daily we come into new fields for the women to conquer. We have a woman's unit of about 60,000 city and town women in the U. S. Crop Corps which has been set up as a migratory land army to meet the food crisis. There will be jobs for short-time emergency work on farms and for all-year. In the latter case the women will receive training in agriculture in colleges. In England women have for many years studied in horticultural colleges and learned fully fruit, flower and vegetable culture, plowing, driving tractors, felling trees. The future in this is the same as some instances here in America, as editors of gardening publications, research workers in agricultural laboratories, but are also employed by their government as county agents or county advisers. Many schools of England have long had their gardens where classes experimented in farming, the children are taught to help out on farms and to learn about flower gardening. After the war we will find many women pursuing this course of horticulture in its many branches.

Flag Day

"June 14, 1777, Congress made this flag, recently constructed in design by a lady named Betsy Ross, the official emblem of our country. Since that day we have observed June 14 as the nation's Flag Day. President Roosevelt has asked that this year we fly the Stars and Stripes with the flags of the United Nations, to make it a symbol of unity since today our flag flies over foreign lands beside the ones of friendly nations fighting with us. We regard Flag Day in the light of its reflection on lives of others, not just Americans. Though the flag has always stood for glory, power, freedom and honor, to each of us these words are more pronounced today as we thrill to the banner in the breeze. To enemies those stripes of red and white, that field of blue studded with white stars, does not reflect this meaning or earn us much other than hate, but to us it more deeply signifies strength and bravery. So do other countries, our allies, herald their flags which fly in the same cause today. These lead us forward in a common bond, with a single purpose, to free this earth from an enemy who would destroy us and our banners. So as Old Glory flies side by side on the battlefield with the flags of the United Nations, we are asked to display the banner at home with ones of our allies. As Franklin K. Lane, a true American statesman, wrote of our stars and stripes, this message holds for every flag of every nation, friend or foe. He spoke for his flag: "I am not the flag; not at all. I am but its shadow. I am whatever you make me, nothing more. I am your belief in yourself, your dream of what a people may become. I am the day's work of the weakest man, and the largest dream of the most daring. I am the clutch of an idea, and the reasoned purpose of resolution. I am no more than you believe me to be and I am all that you believe I can be. I am whatever you make me, nothing more."

WAR TIME CHILD CARE NEEDS
Recognizing the necessity of meeting wartime child care needs, committees on child care have been organized in 1,000 communities and every state to help mothers in war work, OWI says.

On the whole industrial front, manufacturers in Wisconsin and other states are introducing countless substitute materials in order to save war materials, OWI says. Examples: lifejacket padding from cattails, and household utensils from synthetic resins.

We can go through almost any kind of trouble here as long as we can look forward to corn-on-the-cob.

One battle won does not win a war. We've got tougher times ahead.
