RUSTY'S NEW HOME

RUSTY was a little brown and white dog without a home. One day he found Kenneth. Rusty followed Kenneth into the yard and under the big maple tree.

Rusty was not sure that he wished to stay. He needed a home, but it must be with a boy who was friendly and kind.

Kenneth's mother called from the porch. "Kenneth," said she, "Peggy is coming to play this morning. What can you do to give her a happy time?"

"I have two apples," said Kenneth. "One shall be for Peggy."

"Spread the cloth under the tree," said mother, "and have your lunch there. I will give you biscuits and jelly and milk."

Kenneth whistled to Rusty. Rusty tagged at Kenneth's heels. Back and forth they went until the cloth was spread and the biscuits and jelly and milk set out under the tree.

Then Peggy came to play.

"I have two apples," said Kenneth, bringing out the plates. "One is for you, and I'll get a bone for Rusty."

Rusty wagged his tail. "This is the home for me," said Rusty to himself. "There is a boy here who is friendly. He shares his good things."
