Dear Harriet:

Just forget about telling me all about Nairobi. Did you ever read any one of the three books written by a Danish Baroness? Her writing alias is a man's name ISAK DINESON. In one of those books she tells all about running a coffee plantation in Kenya. I myself loved it. She was a good writer.

I am hobbling around as usual. We are back in a rain, rain, rain spell again! In all the almost thirty-six years I have lived in California, I don't remember ever resenting a rainy spell the way I do this year. Maybe it's because I am so disabled. Maybe I'd resent this year anyhow!! Well, we just have to make the best of it. Any-now I don't have to go outdoors, which really is a blessing. I count my blessings better than I used to!!

March will come in (maybe like a lion) tomorrow. I must remember to write to Zulalia Sherman ^{on} St. Patrick's Day. Gae is French and Irish. I'm a hodgepodge, which includes 25% Irish. We always say "Gin no Bragh" to one another at St. Pat's time.

Hope all is well with you. Love — and much to it — Mabel Improved with insulin one day last week. Good!!
